The Tillamook Headlight.

Japan is getting ready to annex Korea, the ancient land of morning calm. No doubt the present calm is equal to the order that reigned in Warsaw.

In his speech at the Frontier Celebration at Cheyenne, Col. Roosevelt can describe something really wild by giving his time chiefly to African exploits.

Another Sunday-school teacher has surrendered to the charm of a Chinese pupil. Missionary work among the heathen seems to have its compensations.

A man has been found starving himself because he feared the end of the world was at hand. There must be such a thing as the rash bravery of cow ardice.

It has been demonstrated that an aeroplane can fly from P. r. a o London in less than eight hours, running time. A lunch in one city and dinner in the other would satisfy any globe trotter.

Although first announced as a Spaniard, it is not surprising to hear that Aviator Moissant is an American. When a man does a great feat nowadays it is only surprising to hear that he isn't.

In the United States last year the average consumption of sugar was 82 pounds for each person, or seven billion pounds in all. One-seventh was beet sugar produced in this country, which is a large gain in an important domestic industry.

Something like a Taft family reunion has followed the line of the president's travels in New England. There are many Tafts in New England, and all of them, of course, hark back to the rock of ages which stands near Plymouth.

It is an 80-year-old St. Louis preacher who is staying at home and occupying, during the summer, the pulpits of younger men away on vacations. If Dr. Osler's chloroform plan could be adopted it might rob the world of the means of saving grace.

If Mr. Roosevelt had been chosen temporary chairman of the State Republican Convention in New York, he might have found himself lost in the jungle and commenced firing to attract the attention of his party. We like his stories of lion shooting, but we must protect the elephant.

The only significance which attaches to Representative Longworth's opposition to the re-election of Mr. Cannon to the speakership lies in the possibility that the president incited it or assented to it. Mr. Longworth says that, in the republican caucus, he will work against the renomination of Mr. Cannon. He makes a positive disclaimer, however, of any outside influence in impelling him to prepare his statement. "I want it especially understood that I say this wholly on my own responsibility, and on the suggestion of no one else," he adds. As he has been at Beverly, though, for several days, and as he gave out the statement there, the impression will be created that it is inspired by somebody higher up. But unless Mr. Taft, directly or indirectly, furnishes some tangible evidence that he stands behind Mr. Longworth in this position the assumption that he is a party to the war upon the presiding officer of the House will not be entirely safe.

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under the strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters, the matchless tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength, satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c. at Chas. I. Clough's.

Why?

From a small beginning the sale and use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has extended to all parts of the United States and to many foreign countries. Why? Because it has proven especially valuable for coughs and colds. For sale at Lamar's drug store.

A Sprained Ankle.

As usually treated a sprained ankle will disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may, in most cases, be effected in less than one week's time. This liniment is a most remarkable preparation; try it for a sprain or a bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords. For sale at Lamar's drug store.

PROHIBITION.

Edited by Tillamook Ministerial Union.

A CHALLENGE—The liquor forces have issued their defiance to the reputable and law-abiding citizens of the state. They admit that their "business" is to destroy young manhood and young womanhood, that they pay money for this privilege, and if any man joins in a parade or assists in any way in destroying their "business," they in turn will boycott him. They mean to say that if they can't destroy the morals and manhood of the young, they will destroy the business of the old, but destroy something valuable they must. The glove has been thrown down. Who will pick it up? Years ago, Arthur Tappan, the merchant prince of New York, threw himself heart and soul into the abolition struggle. His firm did a large business with the slaveholding merchants of the South. As the struggle deepened, Mr. Tappan received word from his Southern customers that he must cease his agitation for the abolition of slavery or they would withdraw their trade. He sent back this message: "Our goods are for sale but not our principles."

Liquor men say they are opposed to prohibition because it does not prohibit. They insist that the law will not be obeyed. Who will break it? Not temperance people; not Christian people; not law abiding people. Wherever it is broken it will be because some liquor dealers have broken the law. Because they are anarchists and criminals in heart and life, they demand that the law be made to suit them.

Say: There are more blind pigs in Portland than licensed saloons—and the authorities know where most of them are. That is going some for license "regulation." Vote Oregon dry 1910.

If the state-wide prohibition amendment and law should be defeated in November, the local option law as it now stands would still be in force and all territory now "dry" would remain "dry." Don't let anybody fool you on this point.

TWELVE REASONS WHY THE SALOON SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO LIVE.

1. Because of its moral uplift in the community.
2. Because of its purifying effect on politics.
3. Because it is such a law abiding institution.
4. Because its patrons get so much value for their money.
5. Because drinking helps one to get a good job and keep it.
6. Because it makes business for the courts and county agent.
7. Because drunkards—the saloon's finished product—make such good husbands and loving fathers.
8. Because saloons always make a city safer and better places for boys and girls to grow up in.
9. Because all right minded fathers and mothers pray that their boys may become saloon keepers.
10. Because it raises public revenue by a tax upon what the poor people drink so that the rich may dodge taxation on what they possess.
11. Because to close the saloons would cause such an increased sale of home comforts that your children would be run down in the street by delivery wagons.
12. Because without saloons vice, crime, pauperism, graft and corruption would be eliminated and unspeakable injury would result to the public in consequence.—The Stainless Flag.

The selfish desire of a Grant county "Home Rule" advocate to make a living by robbing his neighbors of their manhood and money (over a saloon bar) cost the county $7500 and the lives of two young men, and the state has yet to pay the cost of guarding, feeding and clothing three other men in prison during the rest of their lives. But—that is nothing—the county needs the revenue derived from its license.—Free Press.

A Paying Investment.

Mr. John White, of 38 Highland Houlton, Maine, says: "Have been troubled with a cough every winter and spring. Last winter I tried many advertised remedies, but the cough continued until I bought a 50c. bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery; before that was half gone, the cough was all gone. This winter the same happy result has followed; a few doses once more banished the annual cough. I am now convinced that Dr. King's New Discovery is the best of all cough and lung remedies." Sold under guarantee at Chas. I. Clough's drug store.

Best Treatment for a Burn.

If for no other reason, Chamberlain's Salve should be kept in every household on account of its great value in the treatment of burns. It allays the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a severe one, heals the parts without leaving a scar. This salve is also unequalled for chapped hands, sore nipples and diseases of the skin. Price 25 cents. For sale at Lamar's drug store.

Dying to Order.

Dying to order is one of the most sacred customs of the American Indian. Many years ago Standing Elk went to Major James McLaughlin, the author of "My Friend the Indian," and said, "Father, my wife will die today, and she wants a coffin from you." The major asked him what the ailment was, and he replied: "Just nothing but that she heard the ghosts calling and must go." "Somebody had told her, it turned out, that she was sick, so she had 'painted for death,' and all her relatives had gathered about to benumb her—and incidentally divide her property as soon as she was dead. There was no use in the major's arguing about it, so he had the coffin made. In many cases those "painted for death" are actually bullied into dying, but Mrs. Standing Elk was still too vigorous. Finally in despair she carried the coffin into the house on her own shoulders, and several years later the major saw it still standing on end in her house. Shelves had been fitted into it, and it was doing duty as a cupboard.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Improving Americans.

"Nothing is fixed but the certainty of change," said Goethe, and we know that the future American will represent a change. He may be taller or shorter or thinner or fatter than the American of today, but there is nothing in the existing state of society—and we use society in its broad sense—to indicate that he will not be better in many ways. Confidence in this is based largely on the evident determination of the American of today to leave our institutions and our ideals better than he found them. Every American, native or foreign born, wants his children to have a better education than it was possible for him to secure. He wants to have his children live in a community of higher standards and ideals than he has; he wants betterment in local, state and national conditions, and the result of the want will be improvement and a demand by his children for still greater improvement.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

An Economical Man.

A commercial traveler told of a man who was riding on a train and pretended to become ill after eating a sandwich. The man opened his grip and took out a hot water bag. "He got a sympathetic porter," the commercial man continues, "to fill the water bag with boiling water, and then he opened up his lunch basket, took out a piece of fried steak and warmed it up on the water bag. You talk about your tight housekeeping! Then after he had warmed the steak he cut it all up with a pair of scissors and fed it to himself with a pair of sugar tongs, because he would not take a chance with a fork going around a curve. But his finish was a limit. After he had eaten the steak he unscrewed the stopper of the water bag and poured himself out a cup of hot coffee. He had the grounds in the bag all the time."

In a Quandary.

The young lady sighed deeply and was almost affected to tears. "Harold," she said, "declares that if I don't marry him he will end his life. And I am afraid he will." She stifled a sob, then continued: "And Randolph declares that if I don't marry him he will go into politics and become great and famous, and then he says I shall see what I have missed. And I am afraid he will keep his word too." Overcome by emotion, she buried her face in her hands, not knowing whether to save a life or to spare the country another politician.—Exchange.

An Amendment.

"Are you ready to live on my income?" he asked softly. She looked up into his face trustfully. "Certainly, dearest," she answered. "If—?" "If what?" "If you get another one for yourself."—New York Journal.

The Dreaded Doctor.

"How did you like your dinner?" inquired the epicure. "Well," answered the dyspeptic, "it was admirable in every respect. But my doctor has put me into such an apprehensive frame of mind that whenever I really enjoy eating anything I become utterly miserable."

The Analysis.

"Did you have the soil of your back yard analyzed by the agricultural department?" "Yes. They said it consisted largely of glass, tin and putty, with traces of builder's lime, and suggested that it might do to raise a mortgage on."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Great Achievement.

"And what do you regard as the greatest triumph of modern surgery?" "Collecting the bills," promptly responded the great practitioner.—London Spare Moments.

Especially in the Subways.

"There ain't but one trouble with this here city air," said Uncle Rufe, sniffing the atmosphere speculatively: "It do need ventlating."—Holland's Magazine.

His Reason.

"Why do you always leave the house, James, when I begin to sing the old songs?" pointed Mrs. Howitt. "Fresh air," said Howitt.—Harper's Weekly.

He who has the truth in his heart need never fear the want of persuasion on his tongue.—Ruskin.
