SCHOOL CHILDREN.
 Your eyes are worth more to you than any book. Your safety and your success in life depend on your eyes; therefore, take care of them. Always hold your head up when you read. Hold your book fourteen inches from your face. Be sure that the light is clear and good. Never read with the sun shining directly on the book. Never face the light in reading. Let the light come from behind or over your left shoulder. Avoid books or papers printed indistinctly or in small type. Rest your eyes by looking away from the books every few moments. If in doubt about your eyes consult me. I will tell you the truth about them and the information will cost you nothing and you will not be asked to buy.
 Dr. HENRY E. MORRIS, Eye Specialist, Tillamook, Or.

A Generous Company.
 The late Geo. Bennett, who committed suicide in this city, had a policy in the Northwestern Mutual Life for $2,000, which the company first declined to pay, as the time had not expired covering the suicide clause, lacking five days of the two years. It seems that Bennett gave up his insurance in a fraternal order to take out a policy in the Northwestern, and when he did so had no intention whatever of committing suicide. W. S. Kaker, the district agent, took the matter up and recommended that the company pay the claim, and he received a telegram on Saturday advising him that it would be paid. This shows a generous disposition on the part of the Northwestern Mutual Life, for it could have avoided paying the claim had it wished to do so, but after considering the matter agreed to pay Mrs. Bennett the $2,000, which our readers will be glad to hear, and to commend the company for its fair consideration and liberality.
 Mr. Kaker received the draft this morning to pay Mrs. Bennett.

Candidate Hofer and the Direct Primary.
 E. Hofer, direct primary candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, tonight the primary law through his Salem paper when the law was before the voters of the state for adoption in the Spring of 1909. His inconsistency on the subject is shown from the fact that he is now posing as the foremost advocate and defender of that law. Here are a few of his polished comments on the law when it was pending before the people only six years ago:

"Ken admits that the bill is his own handiwork and as such he deserves credit for all that is good in it. It is a patchwork from other states and its weak points are that it seeks to abolish conventions and puts the expense of holding another election on the people.
 That it will be a dead letter and inoperative no one can doubt. It practically abolishes all political conventions and all parties but the Republicans and Democrats—if a law could do these things. Of course, a law cannot abolish such political institutions and hence it will be a defunct statute.
 The U'Ren bill (direct primary) puts a monopoly of office getting in the hands of the rich, the frothy and the professional politicians.
 It would be a snap for the rich politician of the office seeker who was a fine orator or a newspaper politician or the man in office.
 The direct primary law is a scheme to give a few Republican bosses a monopoly of nominations, wipe all other political parties out of existence and destroy independent voting and secrecy of the ballot.
 The primary election bill will double the election expenses. Kill it. Kill all the freak bills. The state has too many now.
 On June 3, 1909, two days before the general election, in an editorial advising voters to vote "no" on the direct primary, local option and placing State Printer on a flat salary, Mr. Hofer in his paper said:
 The three questions to be submitted to the voters at the election next Monday should be voted down. All are pernicious and bad. The direct primary law is a subterfuge of a few Portland politicians who are aspiring to control the whole state through the Portland machine.

The First Fisherman.
 Beside a vast and primal sea
 A solitary savage he
 Who gathered for his tribe's rude need
 The daily dose of raw seaweed
 He watched the great tides rise and fall
 And spore the fruits—or not at all
 Along the awful shore he ran
 A simple pre-religian.
 A think primitive, unteiled,
 Straightforward as a little child,
 Until one morn he made a grab
 And caught a mesozoic crab
 Then told the tribe at close of day
 A bigger one had got away!
 From him have sprung of own a bias
 To ways the eul of and by bias
 All fishermen—and Ananias!
 —Punch.

How the Candidate Lost Out.
 "They told me," said the Billie candidate, "that splitin' rails for political fences was good exercise, and I whirled in with a will. But there's a difference 'twixt that and plowin' for votes. I plowed so well that it give me a big reputation in the settlement, and I'm blest if one of those farmers didn't wait on me and advise me to get out of politics and sribk to the soil, as it was their unanimous verdict that I'd be more of a success at guidin' the destiny of a Georgia mule than I would at sartin' seeds as a congressman"—Atlanta Constitution.

We've Got to Fish.
 This is the best time of the year
 For fish to bite,
 An' fellers they are waitin' near
 For fish to bite.
 They've left the office, shop an' store,
 Don't care for busness any more,
 Jest waitin' on or off the shore
 For fish to bite.
 They is a feelin' in our bones
 We've got to fish;
 This ain't out in uncertain tones—
 We've got to fish.
 The world may take us for a snob,
 But even if we lose our job
 We've got to rest git out an' bob—
 We've got to fish.
 —Boston Herald.

Snake Bites.
 The story is told of a certain town in the west which had gone dry that a stranger applied at the hotel for a drink of whisky. He was told that it could not be sold to any one unless bitten by a rattlesnake. Upon inquiring whether there were any rattlesnakes in town he was given the name of a man who had one. "But," said his informant, "there's no use in your going there, for that snake's engaged for two weeks ahead."—Sunday School Times.

Win or Lose.
 When first a courted violet
 My friends all thought it smart
 To say: "Well, look at that! I'll bet
 Poor Jack has lost his heart!"
 I wooed her, and I won her hand,
 And then I heard it said:
 "Now, ain't it sad? Poor lad, poor lad!
 Poor Jack has lost his head!"
 —Cleveland Leader.

So Like a Family.
 "Dear," said Mrs. Newcome to her husband on the evening of their first day at Lonesomehurst, "Mrs. Gabbit—that's the lady next door—called upon me today, and she tells me all the people here are like one big family."
 "Ah, yes," replied her husband—"always knocking each other."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Smugglers.
 A learned man discusses why
 The rich delight to smuggle,
 And yet the answer, if we try,
 Should come without a struggle.
 They smuggle rice and jewels gay
 And gams to lighten treaty
 Because they do not want to pay
 The proper customs duty.
 —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Naturally Qualified.
 "I am afraid I haven't any idea of the value of money," said the introspective youth.
 "How do you expect to get on in life?"
 "I guess I'll have to study architecture and draw plans for other people's houses."—Washington Star.

With Apologies.
 I've wandered to the village, Tom; I've hunted for the tree
 Upon the village playground that sheltered you and me.
 It wasn't anywhere in sight. They told me, with a gulp,
 They cut it down a year ago and sold the wood for pulp.
 Chicago Tribune.

The Right Way.
