

SAVE YOUR NICKELS AND DIMES

Some day you are going to see an excellent plan, by which you could perhaps double your money. And if you take advantage of that you are to see others that will yield just a greater profit. This is the way men grow rich—by taking advantage of a good chance after another. But it is absolutely necessary to have small capital to start out with and the only way most of us can get this is—try save up nickels and dimes. It takes only a small amount of money to start and the habit of saving grows easier every day. Start a SAVINGS ACCOUNT in our bank and you will see how easy it is to save.

The Tillamook Electric Light Co. is making an effort to give the business portion of the city modern and more up-to-date street lights, and with this object in view they have installed a street lamp opposite C. I. Clough's drug store with two large white globes, which has a neat and pretty effect. It is the intention of the company to light one block on Main street with these street lamps.

"The Price of Honor," Opera House, 2 nights, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 30th and October 1st. The Dramatic Club will make a name for themselves in this play. Mr. McCowell feels elated over the manner in which the members are appearing in their respective parts. In no play previously have they taken such an interest, and shown such rapid advancement. Their friends may feel assured of a performance worthy the attention of the most critical audience. Mark the date. Friday and Saturday, September 30th and October 1st. Tickets are going fast at Lamar's drug store. Secure your seats early.

Board Meets at Kalamath. James Walton, secretary of the Port of Tillamook, has received the following telegram from Senator Bourne:

"In accordance with my request, Chief Engineers have authorized Major Morrow to meet Colonel Biddle and Major Kootz at Kalamath Falls, in order to expedite report on Tillamook project."

Captain J. Groat has received instructions to survey and make a profile of the contemplated improvements in Hoquartion slough, and Surveyor U. G. Jackson will assist him in the work.

School Notes. The students have at last settled down to good hard work after becoming acquainted with the new members of the faculty and also with the new subjects which the promotion to high grades necessitated them taking.

The main assembly room is full to its capacity, there being a number of instances where two occupy one seat.

There were a few who enrolled the past week but as most of the people have returned from the fair, the enrollment will probably remain as it is from now until the second half.

The boys have started kicking the pigskin again after a ten months rest. Everyone feels confident that with the material they have at hand that they will be able to form a strong enough team to defeat anything they weight in the county.

The first meeting of the Literary Societies will be that of the Emersonian Society next Friday afternoon. Things will be carried on much the same in the society work this year as last.

We understand that Miss Anna Boshirk, who taught in the High School here last winter, is teaching this year in McMinnville.

The faculty and students of the High School and eighth grade, together with some of the Alumni started down the bay, for a good time at Bayocean and the sand spit last Saturday morning at about eight forty five. The boys as usual paid the expenses and the girls furnished the food which was certainly the best. After spending a fine day on the seashore they started back for town, arriving at the dock at about half past seven. The students always look forward with interest to the annual excursions.

Political Rally. On next Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock p.m., at the Big Tent in Tillamook City, Oregon, Dr. Clarence T. Wilson, the noted speaker who put Col. Hofer to flight, will speak on the subject of State Wide Prohibition.

It is expected that an immense crowd will be present when it is considered that Dr. Wilson is an orator of no mean ability. The people from all parts of the surrounding county will be present and the celebrated Moss family will furnish music for the occasion.

Every man, woman and child within reach of Tillamook City ought to be present at this meeting as they will be sure to hear something that will repay them for coming.

Why Cost of Living is High. "Some people say that the trusts make the cost of living high. The trusts say that the cost of living is not high. I can illustrate," says James J. Hill.

"Twenty-five years ago corn was sold at 15 cents a bushel. It stands to reason that when corn is as high as it is now a farmer can raise as many cattle, to which he must feed corn, as he would if corn were only 15 cents a bushel. The result is that fewer cattle are raised, and the price of beef higher. I mention corn and beef because they serve, as well as any other commodity to illustrate why the cost of living is high.

"The price of corn is high because we are constantly decreasing the percentage of those who raise corn while we are constantly increasing the percentage of those who use corn and its products. In 1790 there were ninety-six men engaged in raising foodstuffs on the farms to every four in the cities who needed foodstuffs, but did not raise them. At the time of the civil war the number of men engaged in wrestling foodstuffs from the soil had decreased to eighty-four, and the number who did not raise the foodstuffs they must have increased to sixteen. In 1890 there were only forty-seven producers, while the nonproducing consumers had increased to fifty-three. In 1880 the producers had diminished to forty-four, while the others had increased to fifty-six. In 1860 only thirty-seven producers were left to feed sixty-three in the cities, and in 1900 there were only a fraction more than thirty-five on the farms to produce food, not only for themselves, but for every sixty-five in the cities. I doubt if the census of 1910 will show that there are more than thirty persons engaged in agricultural pursuits to every seventy who live in the cities.

"There you have the ingredients that go to make up high prices for the necessities of life. Every seventy persons who live in the cities are dependent upon thirty farmers for the raw materials that are necessary to existence. The only way that the seventy in the cities can get the money with which to pay the farmers is to manufacture the raw products of the farm into finished forms, to perform professional service, or to assist in the task of distributing the products of factories and farms. The competition among the seventy to perform the services that are required, by the thirty will keep the wages of the seventy low, while the great demand created by the seventy for the products of the thirty will keep the prices of farm products high."

Of twenty men, one is a drunkard, one a total abstainer and 18 are between the extremes. There are two things I don't want, one is to be deprived of a glass of wine or beer, the other is a slave to drink. I need a politics and religion that knows temperance, not total abstinence or intemperance. I have no right to vote wet or dry because I don't believe in either. There is no beauty in a flood or a desert to me. A stimulant differs from intoxication or abstinence. I. C. GOVE.

That Faker. That faker going through the country at this time will tell you anything about your eyes to make a sale. Beware of him. If you don't buy he gets angry. If you are in need of glasses I am here, and I am willing, and will make anything satisfactory to you. I can be found at any time. How about traveling men in my line?
