ing taken sick. At the time of death Miss Arrance was 17 years old, was a girl of very pleasing disposition and leaves many friends to mourn their loss. The funeral services were held from the Methodist church on Saturday, interment being made in the I.O.O.F. cemetery.

A serious accident, which might have proved fatal, happened to W. D. Gladwell last Thursday when he fell from the roof of his barn at Blaine. It seems that while Mr. Gladwell was on the roof his foot slipped and as he had no way to catch himself, he fell about ten feet, lighting head first on a piece of 2 X 6 and cutting a gash which started below the right eye, up over the forehead, then to the back of the head. The skin was cut through to the skull the whole length of the gash. Dr. Smith was called to dress the wound and at present reports his patient recovering rapidly from the injury.

The regular series of meetings which were being held in the Commercial building for the past month and which were planned to be closed on Sunday night, are being continued, because of no means by which the Taylor family can leave for Ontario where they hold the next meetings. Up to the present time there have been 124 professions with people stepping out at each meeting. Monday and Tuesday nights Mr. Taylor gave lectures on Amusements and Booze, at each lecture having a filled house. His manner of speech is such that those who don't like what is said in every particular come each evening to hear a man of great oratorical ability. There will be lectures given each evening until the boat arrives. These lectures are given free in order to give the people a chance to hear lectures on important subjects.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Guild have just finished a very prosperous year. The officers are to be congratulated on their efficient organization. The following members were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Emmet Bales, Pres.; Mrs. Alderman, Vice President; Mrs. H. E. Morris, Secretary; Mrs. C. I. Clough, Treasurer. The Guild takes orders for hand embroidery, quilting, fancy work and their special delight is in making the ever useful apron, both fancy and plain. After the greater part of the work of the day is done, the entertainment committee serves refreshments. The Guild is glad to receive into membership not only those who are Presbyterians but all those who are interested in such work. The organization holds a bazaar just before Xmas each year. They have many pretty and useful things for sale and the proceeds of the past year were satisfactory indeed. As the "vacation days" are just over, the ladies are ready to take up their work for the new year with enthusiasm.

THE ENGINEERS RECOMMEND BAR IMPROVED.

Turns Down Improvement of Channel to Tillamook City.

The report of the government engineers has been received at Washington, D.C., which is favorable in regards to Tillamook bar improvement. The engineers recommend the improvement of the bar and the channel as far as Bay City, provided that one fourth of the money is raised locally. The engineers report adversely as to bay and slough improvements, recommending that no appropriation be made of government money for that purpose.

The Port of Tillamook is consulting with Senators J. Bourne and Chamberlain and Representative Hawley to see whether the engineers' report can be modified so as to extend the improvement to the head of the bay, as far as Tillamook river; also as to the advisability of sending a delegation to Washington.

Another telegram announces that the engineers at Washington may demand 50 per cent of the cost to be raised locally and there is danger, if an appeal is taken on the report, of not having the project incorporated in the rivers and harbors bill now pending in congress.

Important Club Meeting.

The monthly business meeting of the Tillamook Commercial Club was held on Monday evening, when about fifty members were present, with President Webster Holmes in the chair. After discussing the matter of holding a county fair, it was decided that the executive board undertake the necessary arrangements, with the idea of holding the fair in August and then send the best exhibit to the State Fair at Salem in September. It seemed to be generally agreed that to induce the dairymen and others to make exhibits, that cash and other valuable prizes be offered. A resolution was offered instructing Representative A. G. Beals to use his efforts to repeal the mortgage tax law, which was carried. A resolution was offered recommending that the salary of the county judge be raised to $1800 a year, which was endorsed by the club. The question of bar, bay and slough improvements was freely discussed from various view points, which showed the lively interest that is being taken in this matter, the Club virtually deciding that the slough would have to be improved or Tillamook City would be handicapped for want of a deep channel in the development of the county. Several members of the Port of Tillamook were present and they furnished a good deal of information in regard to what is being done.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions were adopted on Wednesday evening, Jan. 11, 1911:

We believe that great good has resulted from these meetings, that many more than those who have come forward have been greatly helped to understand the great truths of the Gospel.

Mrs. Taylor's many fine cornet solos have been enjoyed by everybody and have greatly helped to make the meetings enjoyable.

We hereby express some of the gratitude we feel toward the many fine singers of Tillamook who have night after night given their services so freely and gladly, thus making it possible for us to have such fine music.

We have greatly enjoyed the music of the orchestra and thank them for their assistance.

We hereby also express our appreciation of the work done by Mr. Erwin Harrison as Treasurer of the Services.

High School Flashes.

School started again on Monday morning after a three weeks vacation. Some of the students only wanted one week, some wanted two and we got three which we hope will suffice for while for those who like long vacations. We think that when school closes near the first of July that some of the students will wish that we had had no vacation.

There are a great many cases of measles in town at present and a number of seats in the High and Grammar Schools are vacant at present on account of this.

The itch is also reported to be in town and on account of this the health officer has given orders that no towels be used in the school until the danger is past.

Prof. Baker has received the laboratory equipment which was sent for some time ago, and is getting it in condition to be used for impressing the laws of Physics more clearly on the students of the Junior and Senior classes.

The library has been rearranged and after the books are catalogued they can again be taken by those who desire them either for reference or reading.

IN A ROMAN CAB.

A Party of Disgusted Americans and an Overgrateful Driver.

In Mr. Howells' "Roman Holiday and Others" is this delightful story of an adventure in a Roman cab. In returning from the Pincio the cab we had been able to get was the last left of the very worst cabs in Rome, and we had bidden the driver wait for us at the church steps, without some hope that he would play us false. But there he was, true to his word, with such disciplined fidelity as that of the Roman sentinels who used to die at their posts, and mounted to ours with the muttered prayer that we at least might reach home alive.

This did not seem probable when the driver whipped up his horse. It appeared to have aged and sickened while we were in the church, although we had thought it looked as good as could be before, and it lurched alarmingly from side to side, recovering itself with a plunge of its heavy body away from the side in which its body was sinking.

The driver swayed on his box, having fallen equally decrepit, in spite of the restoratives he seemed to have applied for his years and infirmities. His clothes had put on some such effect of extreme decay as those of Rip Van Winkle in the third act; there was danger that he would fall on top of his falling horse and that their names would mingle in one scandalous ruin.

Vin Sistine had never been so full of people before; never before had it been so long to that point where we were to turn out of it into the friendly security of the little cross street which would bring us to our hotel. We could not consent to arrive in that form; we made the driver stop, and we got out and began overpaying him to release us.

But the more generously we overpaid him the more nobly he insisted upon serving us to our door.

At last, by such a lavish expenditure as ought richly to provide for the few remaining years of himself and his horse, we prevailed with him to let us go and reached our hotel glad, almost proud, to arrive on foot.

TOUCHY SERVANTS.

Japanese Nesans Have to Be Handled With Gloves of Velvet.

Japanese servants must be treated with tact, however trying they may be, and often they are very trying indeed, especially the nesans, who are usually untidy, cross and lazy. Yet the dear little things have admirers who praise their kitchinish ways, their hands and even, of all things, their artistic temperaments.

A certain writer solemnly says: "A Japanese nesans—any nesans, even one in a hotel—will set out your hairbrushes, clothesbrushes, nail scissors, collar box and tooth powder on the average hotel dressing table and make a design of them—a picture, an artistic whole." All I can say is that no nesans has ever arranged studies of still life with the nail scissors and the tooth powder for me, though, possibly by way of compensation, one has started little lakes of boiling water on my carpet when I rang for you, or toppled over the morning tea tray and arranged the fragments in an unconventional design on my bed quilt, or dragged a table with scrapings in a minor key the whole length of the veranda.

If corrected roughly the maiden will first cry and then leave. The hotel manager is well aware of this—away with all the nervous perception of a person whom one hasty or ill considered sentence can throw into a situation seriously threatening his comfort and prosperity; hence his attitude of habitual meekness. He dares not let his little lecture slide over the line which divides it from a scolding and is careful to deliver a necessary exhortation with a smiling face and frequent laughs just to show that it is really not a scolding at all.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Couldn't Kill Him.

"Spotted fever" received some queer treatment in John Wesley's day, according to Wesley's journal of September, 1746. A man named John Trembath had the fever, and Wesley wrote: "It was the second relapse into the spotted fever, in the height of which they gave him sack, cold milk and apples, plums, as much as he could swallow. I can see no way to account for his recovery but that he had not yet finished his work."

Abraham Could Read and Write.

Some people persist in thinking that the art of writing is recent and that in primitive times poems and literary productions had to be memorized. But more than 3,000 years before the Christian era people in Abraham's native town wrote receipts for garden and market products just as we have them now, showing that the patriarchs certainly must have known how to read and write.—Dr. William Hanna Thomson in Designer.
