 After several months of dry weather the first rain of the season made its appearance on Sunday and since then there have been light showers. Campers have packed up and gone and automobile travel have been curtailed on account of the rain. This county has been fortunate again in not having any forest fires, the only damage of any importance was the burning of the timbers in one of the tunnels on the railroad and 40 acres of timber in Washington County. The fire wardens, who have done good service, will be kept on duty, however, as it is feared that the weather might set in fine again, with the possibility of an East wind.
