

ROAD THAT WILL MAKE TILLAMOOK FAMOUS.

Nearney Mountain Project Will Have Slightly Hotel.

Autoists who have recently traveled over the 28-mile stretch of road between Tillamook and Nehalem, have waxed enthusiastic over its advantages, and declared it to be one of the finest stretches of road, both in point of the fine condition of the road bed, and the natural scenic attractions which the drive affords, that it is possible to find anywhere.

At present this road is comparatively little traveled, by autoists, and those who have gone over it express regret that this should be so. As the road is becoming more known, however, it is becoming more frequented, and more motorists are now traveling it than did in the beginning of the summer.

Leaving Tillamook, the road skirts the headwaters of Tillamook Bay for five miles to Bay City. These five miles really constitute the poorest stretch on the road, although, at worst, it can scarcely be said to be poor. It is through open country, and there are several hilly spots on it, but the road bed itself is in good condition.

The 23-mile stretch from Bay City to Nehalem rivals by far the famous "Seventeen-Mile Horseshoe Drive" from Hotel Del Monte, along Monterey Bay and the ocean side, in California. With the broad bay below, stretching far away to the right, Cape Meares, Bayocean and the ocean in full view, the road circles the brow of the hills. Green foliage flanking the road side, and trees and shrubbery stretching up the mountain side, and shading the road, complete a beautiful picture.

The road flanks the bay for about four miles after passing Bay City, when it turns up the Miami River canyon, which it follows almost as far as the Nehalem River.

A hard bed of river gravel, laid years ago, kept scrupulously in repair in all that time and packed with years of travel makes this road practically flawless. The road runs along the side of the river, with beautiful green fern and other shrubbery growing along its side. The mountains rise close and high on either side, and are covered with a thick growth of tall timber. Occasionally a small cultivated area with its farm house checkers the little valley.

There is but one more thing necessary towards making this road to be ideal for auto travelers, and that is the elimination, at small expense, of a number of sharp turns in the road. Several of these obstruct the view ahead, but good time can nevertheless be made with the road in its present condition.

The 28-mile stretch forms a portion of the projected "Horseshoe" drive from Portland, through Sheridan and Dolph to Tillamook; and over the Nearney Mountain, through Seaside, Astoria, and along the Columbia River, back to Portland. As soon as this project is completed, which it will very shortly be, it will constitute a highway that will become world famous.

The road around Nearney Mountain seems to overhang the ocean, which lies in a perpendicular line at its base. The view from this point is sublime, and is limited only by the range of vision. Sky and ocean never seem to meet. High rocks, from 300 to 700 feet high, jut out from the sides of the mountain, offering sights of bold, majestic beauty, and rivaling the grandeur of the cliffs of Dover, guarding the coast of England, of whom Shakespeare sang:

"Their foot spurts back the ocean's tides."

Travelers who have been over this point, say that it excels in point of grandeur, anything the Old World has to offer tourists. Nearney Mountain is 1800 feet high, and at the road's highest point, towers still 1100 feet above it. S. G. Reed, who has purchased Nearney Mountain, and the adjacent beaches, plans the erection of a fine inn, like to those in the Alps, half way up the mountain, and also the installing of an observatory on the crest of Nearney, which will much enhance the attractions of the proposed highway.

Three years ago Tillamook and Clatsop counties took in hand the work of building the road around Nearney Mountain. Clatsop County has completed its portion of the road, which consists of a 15 mile stretch from Seaside, the last two and one-half miles having been finished this year. Tillamook County, however, has still three and one-half miles to build. Five and one-half miles have already been built, but work has been stopped on the other portion on account of a money stringency, which just at present prevails. The distance from Nehalem to Seaside over this way is 26 miles, and from Nehalem to the county line slightly over 11 miles.

On the unfinished portion there is much rock blasting yet to be done, which will make that stretch of work quite expensive. There is a horse trail, however, around the proposed route. When this stretch of road is put in condition for travel, the horseshoe road from Portland to Portland will have been completed. Mr. Reed, owner of the Nearney Mountain resort, is expending a considerable deal of private money in improving the Nearney Mountain road. His present plans include the expenditure of over $7000 of his own money on county road work, and much of this is already paid out.

Bad Boys And Girls.

Every now and then you hear some one speaking of a "bad" boy or a "bad" girl, as if there were such a thing as a "bad" child. There may be untrained, neglected, misunderstood children, but never a "bad" child, as the world defines "bad."

It is as though one neglected to pull the weeds in one's garden, allowing the plants and vines to grow carelessly about, permitted corn or tomatoes to grow as closely together as we do our smaller plants. It undoubtedly would result in our having—not a "bad" garden—but a neglected and unfruitful one. So then it must be in child culture.

Miss Lucy M. Bird of Fretz, Pa., discovered that fact several years ago when in a juvenile courtroom she saved from the village jail a small boy convicted of robbing a slot machine. She asked to be and was made guardian of the "bad" boy.

He was a delicate little fellow, who for two years had not known what it was to eat at a table or sleep in a bed. His case was clearly one not of incorrigibility, but one of neglect and misunderstanding.

Miss Bird rented an old, worn-out farm, and took the little lad with her to cultivate it. She found the boy to be susceptible to kind treatment and considerate management. She had marked success with him and soon others, hearing of her ability to make "bad" boys "good" boys, urged her to take charge of other "bad" children—girls and boys.

At present there are about thirty boys and a half dozen girls with Miss Bird. The boys learn scientific farming, the girls domestic science. Last year the proud little farmers raised large crops of wheat, hay, potatoes, live stock and other agricultural products. The girls made the most delicious bread, cakes and pies, and are wonderfully skilled in keeping house.

But they were never "bad" children, so now they are not "good" children, but they are well cared for children, placed in the right pathway of life.

Expresses Her Gratitude.

[TO THE EDITOR OF TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.]

DEAR SIR,—Please express my thanks and heart felt gratitude to the good people of Bayocean who gave so liberally for my comfort, also to the Tillamook friends who so kindly assisted and most especially the firm of Jones & Knudson, furniture dealers, who so generously contributed and furnished the wheel chair, and from my very heart I extend my gratitude to Miss Emma Alice Wilkenson, as I do to all who have remembered me in this sad affliction. The chair is fine. It fills a long felt need, and I have not the words to express my thankfulness, how I hope every one that has helped to get this good chair will never know what such affliction as mine is. This is the 25th year that I have been unable to walk a step. Oh how thankful I am. I wish all knew how I thank them. May they even be blessed with the very best of health and prosper in all things is my sincere wish, with love from

Information About Portugal.

[TO THE EDITOR OF TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.]

DEAR SIR,—Four months ago when I left Tillamook, all my friends whom I met and bid goodby wished me to write and I suppose those whom I did not see would like to hear from me. But as my friends are many I will write to them through the columns of this paper.

I had a very enjoyable trip, much better than I expected. I left Tillamook on the 28th day of April and arrived here on the 28th day of May, at 4 o'clock p.m. I met my aged mother, whom I took this long trip to see, being 35 years since I last seen her.

She is 87 years old and rather sickly, but she still works in the gardens, and no one is permitted to care for my clothing but herself only.

The climate does not seem the same as it use to. I used to think that this climate was better than Tillamook, but I find it different now. It has been so disagreeable that I have been sick a bed for two weeks and I don't think I will have good health until I return to Tillamook. I have not found one spot under the sun equal to Tillamook in regards to climate.

I will write a few points about this government as I find it. When this change began, the people went crazy and wanted the change made as soon as possible, for they had been told that it would be equal to the United States government. But it was a big mistake, the people of the United States are free, and here they are made slaves, even worse than the slave of the early day, for the slave of the early day were allowed to practice their own belief in religion and here they are not.

The government of the U.S. is the majority, and here it is only a few of those leaders who hold the people down. They make laws and pass bills to suit themselves, and things are so unsettled now that they expect war at any time. When the people were fighting for Republic they thought walking into heaven, but they found it was just opposite, and now they have to bear it, and would only be to glad to get out of it.

In years to come socialism will be about the same in America. Ho! How I would like to see the red, white and blue flying over this country them I believe things would be put to the right, but as it is now it is most impossible to live.

Just a few weeks after I arrived they had a large feast, which was something grand, the wagons and horses were highly decorated with flowers. The cattle were decorated with roses stuck to them with glue.

While these good times were going on, music playing, people singing, I found myself almost crying, simply because in looking over the vast number of flags I could not see the one so dear to me, Stars and Stripes for ever. I suppose you will call this home sickness. I don't know.

Well, I will close, hoping the Tillamookers are enjoying themselves. I am yours truly,

M. T. SUARES.

Interesting Scraps.

The addition of two more stars to the flag will about fill the Union, and there is no other full hand in the world that can beat it.

Curious situation in politics when a Democratic paper 103 years old has to use double leads to explain what it understands Democracy to mean.

The president has stood his ground so well during the special session that it would be an injustice to offer him a leg at the chicken barbecue.

Meat prices in New York are soaring again, but even this cannot divert the attention of the metropolis from the double social sensation at Newport.

Mr. Morgan is back from Europe and says he has nothing to say. He will not have to say it when the Investigating Committee meets again, in October.

Some part of the political infirmity of Kansas can be overlooked, now that the hottest place in the United States has been located in that state.

Although it is often said that every man can get a wife and many more than one, there are still some who have to answer matrimonial advertisements.

Surgeons are now claiming that there are many organs of the body we could get along without, and live. The question, in some of these cases, would we want to live.

A retired officer of the French Navy claims to have photographed a thought. The photograph showed a case and a bottle. Now you can imagine his thoughts.

Diaz is taking on flesh since he got out of the presidency. To avert such a calamity to Mr. Taft it may become a humanitarian necessity to re-elect him next year.

Aviator Atwood's trip from St. Louis to New York was a thriller, but it will be a long time before aerial navigation will cut into the business of the railroads.

Reports are emanating from government departments at Washington that all of the "soft drinks" are dangerous. Is nothing of purity and good report to be left us?

The Chinese have the laundries, the Italians control the peanut wagons and the Greeks have the boot-black stands. There is no longer any America for Americans.

France has decided to take a course in commercial and industrial methods in the United States. Uncle Sam is conceded to be the greatest business instructor in the world.

Secretary Wilson has broken all records for long cabinet membership. A new secretary of agriculture would be a novelty, and there is always a section of the public demanding novelties.

Parents must either cease scolding their children or keep carbolic acid out of the house. Children, nowadays, take too often to the bottle under the influence of a domestic storm.

Mr. Rockefeller is adding ten bedrooms to his home in the Adirondacks, at a cost of $10,000,000. No doubt the faculty of Chicago University will think they could make a better use of the money.

When the Lorimer investigation is resumed, the investigation of the reelection of Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin will begin. Still, the senatorial constitutional amendment is not yet submitted.

President Taft was not an army man, but he has always shown proper respect for the old soldiers and the highest appreciation of what they did. The soldiers know a good friend when they see him.

Mr. Edison says there will be no more great wars in Europe as the world conscience is against it. Mr. Edison is the master spirit of the scientific laboratory, but, in talking of conscience, there are others.

Some Artic explorers claim to have discovered a new race of people, not Eskimos, up near the farthest circle. But since the rise and fall of Dr. Cook North Pole stories are at a discount. They will be believed when proved.

Col. Roosevelt and Col. Bryan enjoy a decided advantage over other American statesmen in having newspapers in which to exploit their views. Most of the politicians are limited to talking, but the two colonels can both talk and write.

Two Cuban editors who were opposing the government have been transported to Spain, where they came from. This seems to be somewhat of a practical illustration of the idea once expressed by Mr. Dockery that those who are dissatisfied with a government should leave it.

There is now a proposition to abolish the express companies and compel the railway lines to do their business. Public prejudice against interests which have overworked a good thing may make this possible. But who will pay for the rights, interests, franchises, stocks, or contracts which will be involved.

The contests in Maine and Kentucky, one for prohibition and one for the county unit in local option, may complicate matters for Democrats who will be slow to understand how a victory for either can be a Democratic triumph, no matter what else may happen.

A woman seeking a husband writes to Justice Werremeyer of Clayton to get her one, "but not one with a crippled back." If all women would look to the backs more than the faces of men, and select none but strong-backed men as mates, there would be more cornucopiaal bliss and less divorce.

The husband of the "brass widow" arrested for fraudulent use of the mails in a matrimonial way, has blackened the eyes of an afternoon newspaper reporter who tried to snapshot him and his home. From several points of the compass of late there are coming evidences of resistance to what has been called the freedom of the press.

Sir Max Aitken in a speech in the British House of Commons has actually declared our administration of the Philippines justified by results, and has recommended the British Government to study the colonial policy of the United States. Everything seems to be going against Mr. Bryan this year.

A one-pounder mounted on a gun carriage is said now to solve the problem of firing at aeroplanes. How such a weapon could be effectively sighted remains to be shown. The conviction grows that efforts to prepare for the aerial battle ship should be along the line of perfecting the sight, enlarging the caliber and lengthening the range of sharp-shooter rifles, and training men for their speediest and most accurate use.

By breeding pure-bred hogs men ought to improve in finances, intelligence and character. Good live stock is a powerful aid in making good men. But some men are too coarse-grained to respond to the humanizing and ennobling influences which the care of animals yield. Unfortunately there are men who seem to acquire in the course of their experience certain traits which are very suggestive of porcine association. A human hog is an awful commentary on our agricultural civilization. He abounds in cities, too, but he is much more anomalous in country than town.—Kansas Farmer.

Speaker Clark, talking in Chicago for publication, said that the Democratic victory next year will be a tidal wave. We say, when a thing is really cocksure of happening: "It's all over but the shouting." When the shouting comes first, there is sometimes reason to suspect that those doing it are not cocksure as they pretend to be. But this can hardly be said of Champ. He is always cocksure of a Democratic victory at the next election, and he always means it. He had roseate dreams of the election of Parker in 1904. Every two years between 1892 and 1910 he was predicting the election of a Democratic House. The thing happened at last because it had to happen under the law of probabilities.
