

PROPOSED WAGON ROAD TO BAYOCEAN.

Property Owners Give Rights of Way--Citizens and the Potter Co. Will Assist.

The first step in the proposed wagon road from Tillamook City to Bayocean was taken on Thursday, when County Judge Homer Mason, Commissioners Alley and Farmer, Attorneys Holmes, Botts and Willett, and John R. Harter and Carl Kundsøn, accompanied by Fred C. Baker and C. E. Trombley, of the Tillamook County Booster-Editors' Association went down the south side of the bay in the launch Comet and looked over the situation.

The proposed road is eight miles in length, five miles of which is on property belonging to the T. B. Potter Realty Company. It was thought possibly that the east dyke on what is known as the Elmore ranch, now owned by John Hathaway, could be used, but after the delegation looked over the situation today, it was thought the best route would be by the side of the mountain through that part of the ranch from the bridge across the Tillamook river, using the south dyke to get across. From Hathaway's place the road would skirt the side of the mountain and follow a water level around the south side of the bay to Bayocean. There are several places on the route where heavy work is necessary, plating rock, which is not of a hard nature, and other than that there are no difficulties in the way of building the road and giving that long neglected portion of the bay an outlet.

Nearly all the property owners on the route reside in this county, and they have signified their willingness not only to give free rights of way, but to donate money to help build the road. As the T. B. Potter Realty Co. will take care of their three miles of road, this will leave only five miles for the county to construct, and as Mr. Irwing B. Potter will meet with the Tillamook Commercial Club to-morrow (Friday), it is expected that he will offer a liberal donation towards helping the county's end of the road. In this way it is thought somewhere near $10,000 can be raised, if the business men of Tillamook City will help out.

The cost per mile for building this road is variously estimated from $3,000 to $5,000 a mile, to be built on a water grade four or five feet above high tide. There is probably a mile of rock frontage which will run the cost up, but not so much as if it were heavy rock.

After a conference of the entire delegation at Bayocean Hotel, the members of the County Court stated that they would order County Surveyor Jackson to make a survey and estimate the cost, and in the meantime contracts for rights of way will be obtained from all the property owners and a subscription list started so as to ascertain what can be raised in that way. When that is done, the County Court will then come to a decision what to do. Thus far the County Court has not stated that the road will be built, but should the Potter Realty Co., the property owners and the citizens of Tillamook City come up with a good donation there is no doubt but what the County Court will take favorable action and the work commenced as soon as contracts can be let. Much of the work can be done this fall and winter, and if pushed it could be finished for travel by next Spring.

This will make a most beautiful scenic road, and as the property owners on the south side of the bay have been paying taxes for many years, with no road to get to their property, they are justly entitled to some outlet after contributing to building roads in other parts of the county for so long. Besides, the county will derive a large amount of money from taxation from the Bayocean resort, and this is another reason why the road should be built as soon as possible to give that place a roadway.

The south side of Tillamook Bay is naturally the best and prettiest part of the bay, sheltered from the heavy southwest gales in winter, and does not feel the northwest winds in winter as other parts of the bay.

There is getting to be considerable commendable public spirit in helping the County Court build good roads, in opening up new territory and getting roads built to summer resorts. S. G. Reed has expended about $10,000 through and in the neighborhood of Neak-kahnie, which he will deed to the county. These roads have splendid grades and are improved in up-to-date style and a credit to that part of the county. The T. B. Potter Realty Co. will expend and donate a large amount of money in getting a road to Bayocean, and it is hoped that the numerous resorts on Gari baldi beach will show a magnanimous and liberal spirit in helping to obtain a wagon road the full length of the beach to connect with the road just started from Mohler, for these roads will be of inestimable benefit to the county.

City Council Meeting.

Council meeting was held Wednesday evening in the City Hall with Mayor Talmage, Councilmen Wilt, Vantress and Hathaway present.

An unusual amount of business was brought up for consideration among which were a number of ordinances.

After the usual bills had been allowed the veto of the mayor on the druggist liquor license ordinance was read. The veto was accepted unanimously.

An ordinance to license transient auctioneers $50 per day was given a third reading and voted down.

An ordinance to have 2nd and 3rd Aves. West graded down from First to Front Streets passed.

The third reading, an ordinance to install a city sewerage, was given the first reading.

C. E. Trombley and Will Spaulding, a committee on improvements representing the Commercial Club, waited on the council with a matter pertaining to the improvement of side walks with concrete in the city. The City Attorney was ordered as the result of this to draw up an ordinance which would fix a district in which no walk should be built other than concrete. It was proposed that the driveway in the residence districts be made twenty feet; that the walks be six or eight foot concrete and that a distance of about ten feet be left between the curb and the walk for a park.

In answer to the petition of property owners on First Street to have a concrete walk put in on both sides of that street eight feet wide, the mayor ordered the recorder to notify the property owners on that street to build such walks at once.

John Langley was given the contract for graveling 2nd and 3rd avenues west from First to Front Streets.

A GRANITE BOMB.

Jack Frost Hurlled It Down Into the Yosemite Valley.

Delicate frost tracings on the window panes seem to be the work of fanciful and harmless sportiveness, but the hand that forms them is capable of greater deeds and of other kinds. Mr. J. Smeaton Chase, in "Yosemite Trails," describes an experience that must have been wonderfully impressive to the spectator. He had been spending some weeks in exploring the Yosemite valley and the "great rocks," like El Capitan, that wall it in.

Standing one day of late autumn about the middle of the valley, I was startled by a report like a cannon shot, which filled the whole valley with echoes that roared and boomed, repeated and multiplied, in a long continued, glorious tumult.

As the deafening sound died away to sullen mutterings under the vizzor of El Capitan I was able to distinguish the point of attack by the long, clattering descent of a vast quantity of rock.

The night had been a cold one in the valley, and on the seven to eight thousand foot levels of the upper rim the temperature must have dropped almost to zero.

Frost, working quietly with his Archimedean lever, had just succeeded in shifting from the shoulder of the sentinel a trifle of fifty tons or so of granite. For near a thousand feet the bowlder fell sheer, swift and silent; then, striking the cliff, it burst like a bomb, shattered into a myriad flying shards and splinters and dislodged a smother of fragments that trickled down to the valley in a stream that lasted for minutes.

Then from the spot where the bowlder had struck dust began to rise into the sunny air, slowly building up and burgeoning like a summer cloud and every whit as snowy. It was the flour of granite, powdered instantaneously by the terrific shock.

GOWNS AND OMENS.

Odd Superstitions That Darken the Dressmaker's Shop.

"Women who wear fine dresses are as superstitious as the girls who make them," said a dressmaker. "If the little accidents that happen in the workroom were not mercifully concealed from the owners of rich gowns they would be sick with apprehension half the time. I had one customer who refused to accept a very expensive dress because a girl who assisted with the fitting dropped a pair of scissors, which fell point down and stuck in the floor. That meant an order for mourning within six months. The customer hoped that by refusing the hoodoo dress she could avert the calamity, but the precaution was useless. In less than three months her father was dead."

"Girls are especially particular in their work on wedding dresses, for if a tiny drop of blood from a pricked finger should fall on the gown the bride would surely die before the end of the year. Then there is green thread. Whether the customer is there to see it or not, no dressmaker will keep green thread near spools of another color. Green thread used for basting means the return of a dress for alterations, and there is enough trouble of that kind in a dressmaking establishment without deliberately bidding for it.

"Women who are themselves superstitious are never surprised or offended at a sewing girl's untidy coiffure. The girls tumble their hair about on purpose when working on a large order, for it is a sacred belief among dressmakers that a hair inadvertently worked into the garment shows that more work is coming soon from the same customer."—New York Sun.

A Hospital Nurse's Hands.

As an example of trademarks have you ever noticed the hands of the hospital nurse? The soft white hand which in fiction is occupied in cooling fevered brows does not exist and could not. It is a skilled hand, but its work makes it rough and chapped. Try bathing your hands in disinfectants twenty times a day and you will find that, look after them as you may, they will soon be seamed with cracks, which an east wind often turns to bleeding cuts. And as they are worked hard for some twelve or thirteen hours a day the nurse takes a somewhat larger size in gloves than most women. If you ever see the photograph of a hospital nurse you may observe that she prefers to keep those hands behind her back.—London Chronicle.

Longest Family Tree.

The biggest family tree in the world is believed to be the one which traces the genealogy of Queen Elizabeth back to King David and thence to Adam, or at least as near to Adam as one could get. The coat of arms is given in almost every case, with full particulars of the dates of births and deaths. The labor of providing coats of arms is abandoned before Methuselah's time, but the chart measures forty-five feet and certainly does take one through a maze of nobility.

An Afterthought.

"Ye-es," remarked a young husband at breakfast, "these biscuits are pretty good, but don't you think there ought to be a little more?"
"Your mother made them," interrupted the wife quickly.
—"of them?" ended the husband, with a dash of inspiration.

BALLET DANCERS.

Long Training and a Certain of Hard Work Are Theirs.

The modern imperial ballerina of St. Petersburg and Moscow under government control, former of the theaters and dramatic department of the ministry of court. Pupils, both male and female, are entered at the early age of years—seldom older. After the necessary nomination has been obtained by no means an easy matter, days—a stringent examination of health, strength, beauty of face and natural gracefulness is passed before the child is accepted. From the time it is admitted the whole of its education is secular and artistic, is taken in and some years of training are necessary before it is considered ripe to appear in public.

The dancer's life is a constant of hard work. All, even the youngest when at home take regular lessons in addition to the daily rehearsals for the next performance which are demanded, however well known the ballet. Thus an average of five to six hours a day is rather the rule than the exception, popular ballerinas in addition to charity performances and art homes often dancing as much as hours in the whole of four.

Trained artists are kept to it in every detail of period and costume, the dresses, scenery and accessories, task obviously requiring much education and much knowledge—as many as 150 persons appear on the stage at the same time. Even orchestra leaders qualify especially ballet music, having no place in orchestra at any other time.—Lancet World.

THE FOURTH DIMENSION

To Catch a Glimpse of It Just Get Iridium Tremens.

The majority of us are like Iridium Tremens. We believe but in the reality of the Science, more hospitable, acknowledges the fourth dimension and it the constant parade before our eyes of things and events ordinarily seen. The phenomena of delirium tremens forms a case in point. It shapes which the layman believes patient only imagines are real and are rendered visible through excitation of the pineal gland, now is the rudimentary organ of once was psychic vision. Alcohol stimulates this gland. The drunkard's aftereffects sees with it the hideous shapes which his own hideousness has attracted to him. For they there, or rather, they are here, and us in the fourth dimension, precisely as there are other shapes as grotesque as these are revolting. Only rarely we do not see them. They are, though, those who can and do without being drunkards either.

Thinkers as sober as Jerome Babbage go a bit further. They say if you let them, tell you that what occurs in the privacy of a room is mainly photographed in it. An extension of this enables occultists say that nothing has ever occurred anywhere which is not photographed; that in the ether above the great picture gallery of the universe.

In India, at Adyar, the chief of theosophy, this gallery is constantly being studied. The results, occasionally bizarre, are sometimes trivial. It has been found that Herbert Spencer was Aristotle; Gladstone, Cleopatra; and Ovid.—Edgar Saltus in Forum.

Opened His Eyes to the Future.

"Dickie, I'm awfully sorry for my tobacco. I don't like it, and I simply loathe it. Will you stop it, we are married?"
"Isn't that asking a lot, Dick?" asked Dick.
"I wouldn't care for myself," answered the girl, "but you know makes mamma deathly sick."
"Well, then," he promised cheerfully.
"I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll smoke when your mamma is with me. She threw her arms around me and said, 'Darling, she murmured, 'my good of you! I was afraid you'd insist on smoking once in awhile, but we were married!'"—New York Globe.

The Iron Cross.

The Iron Cross, an order of honor, was established by Frederick William III. of Prussia in March, 1813. The order was founded in order to honor patriotic bravery in the struggle against France. It was revived by Emperor William I. during the Prussian war and awarded by the emperor's son for his great victory at Sedan on Aug. 4, 1870. Later the order was bestowed most generously, some 40,000 persons being rated between 1870 and 1872.
