Bay City, Ore., Sept. 23, 1911. Dear Sir; I am enclosing you a copy of a letter I have this day mailed to the County Clerk.

It seems that an article recently appeared in your paper that was in some way a misconstruction of one of the items of my official report of the inquest over George Fessler.

It is to correct this misconstruction and to explain this item that the letter sending you a copy thereot. I would much appreciate it if you would publish this letter and the enclosed one in your next issue.

Thanking you in advance for your courtesy, I have the honor to remain, Respectfully yours,

The question of the constitutionality of these expedients of government forms the basis of a suit between the State of Oregon and the Pacific States Telegraph & Telephone Company. As the case is Oregon, and described as follows near the head of the docket, it will be reached in time to insure a decision before the end of the term.

The case originated in the company's challenge of a law enacted by the Oregon Legislature under the initiative plan, by which a tax of 2 per cent was placed on the gross earnings of telegraph and telephone companies. Taking the position that the initiative and referendum, which are coupled in the Oregon law, are inconsistent with the republican form of government guaranteed by the Constitution of lot 3, then the United States, the company refused for four years to pay the assessments.
