WARRANT OFFICERS.

Their Grade in the Naval Service and the Pay They Draw.

The grade of warrant officer in the navy forms one of those naval castes which are puzzling to the civilian, says Searchlight Philosophy.

The warrant officer holds his position by virtue of a warrant issued by the secretary of the navy. The warrant rank is next below that of midshipman and consists of boatswains, gunners, carpenters, warrant machinists, sailmakers and pharmacists. The pay is graded according to the length of service and nature of the assignment. During the first three years the pay on sea duty is $1,500, on shore duty $1,125 and on leave or waiting orders $875 a year. The pay rises with each three years of service until the time of service exceeds twelve years, after which period the pay reaches $2,250 while on sea duty, $2,000 on shore duty or detached assignments and $1,500 when on waiting orders or when on leave.

All gunners are not warrant officers, but when a gunner has attained a warrant officer's rank he has, under the commission of the ordnance officer, charge of the ordnance, magazines, etc. The warrant officer gunner is usually an apprentice with a good record, appointed after examination upon the recommendation of the commanding officers.

When the ship's carpenter is a warrant officer he is chief of all the artificers and mechanics. This force is called the carpenter's gang and consists of shipwrights, plumbers, pipefitters, blacksmiths, painters and carpenter's mates. After ten years' service the carpenter was formerly commissioned chief carpenter, with the rank of ensign.

The boatswain is one of the most important of the warrant officers. He has, under the executive officer, charge of the rigging, anchors, cable, cordage, etc. He summons the crew at all general evolutions and acts as assistant to the executive in carrying on the general business of the ship. The badge of office of the boatswain is his call or whistle.

COLORS AND NERVES.

Red and Yellow Are Said to Have a Stimulating Effect.

That colors have a profound psychological effect on human beings is a fact that should be emphasized. Used in small quantities, either in the clothing or in household decoration, the color red, for instance, is most stimulating, both in the way of helping to overcome depression and quickening the intellectual processes. But when used in any amount it tends to overstimulation, with resultant nerve strain. According to a leading English authority who has made a careful study of the psychology of colors, there are some people so constituted that they become violently excited, fall into convulsions or faint if obliged even for a short time to look at anything vividly red.

The same effect has been noted from yellow. In one instance, the case of a man operated on at the age of thirty years for congenital cataract, it is recorded that "the first time he saw yellow he became so sick that he thought he would vomit." And that yellow has a nerve stimulating effect fully comparable with that of red is curiously evidenced by the statement of a friend of mine, a shrewd observer, who says: "Whenever the day is overcast or I have to do a piece of work calling for unusual mental exertion I always wear a red or yellow necktie. I find that either color has a beneficial effect on my thinking apparatus."—H. Addington Bruce in Ainslie's.

Bursting Steel.

An experiment that demonstrated the capacity of steel to endure greater pressure than the hardest stone was made in Germany. Corundum was chosen for the stone, and small cubes of both substances were placed under pressure. A weight of six tons smashed the corundum, but forty two tons were required to crush the steel. When the steel did give way the effects are described as remarkable. With a loud explosion the metal flew into powder, and its sparks are said to have bored minute holes in the crushing machine.—New York Tribune.

Plenty of Stability.

A western mining prospector was paying his first visit to New York. "What do you think of it?" asked the proud Gothamite, as he pointed out the skyscrapers. "Waal," replied the miner, "it looks like a permanent camp all right.—Success Magazine.
