High School Flashes.

Hallowe'en is over and we have heard no one say that they feel any better because that day of festivities made its usual appearance. It seems that some of the members of the High School had more than their share of Hallowe'en blowouts this year. First the Invincible Literary Society of which a large per cent of the school are members had their good time on Friday night. Then the High School gave a party at the school house in honor of the festive day, on Saturday night, and last but not least the Men's Furnishing Club of the High School gave an entertainment at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hathaway in the south part of town on Tuesday eve. All of these entertainments were well attended and as a result a good time and much merriment was indulged in by all present.

The Ciceronian Society met Friday afternoon and rendered their program which was excellent considering one week's time that the members had in which to prepare their parts. Their were some parts that could have been better and some things that were not exactly proper, but as a whole the good things overbalanced the bad.

The Emersonians were right on hand with their program as soon as the other was rendered and although their poster is two weeks in advance of what it should be, yet we must say that if those on the program have their parts prepared, they will have something which will make the Ciceronians work some to beat. There are twenty parts on their poster.

The Student Body Court meets next Friday. At present there is only one case of any importance to be heard and that is a case of Student Body vs. the "Breakers," a society of High School boys whose rites are secret and according to the state law, is an unlawful society. No definite action was taken with this case until Oscar Aschim the president of the club informed the Student Body Attorney Albert Ginn that it would be best for him not to try to do any thing with them as it was impossible to break up the "Frat." However, Mr. Ginn decided that if the institution had reached that stage of secrecy it would have to be dealt with according to law.

The Junior Class have decided to publish an annual this year and will begin work at once on the project. They are desirous of making it a success in every way but will have to have the support of every one in order to make it the paper that it should be. In all other schools an annual is published and the merchants of the town are glad to help any way that they can in the way of advertising so as to make people know that they are progressive and have a wide awake High School. If the merchants here contribute freely with their advertising matter there is no danger but what the paper will be a success.

Patronize Home Industry.

Patronize Home Industry! And help boost the home products! James O. Hutchings has started a cigar manufacturing establishment in this city, and he turns out a superior quality of home made cigars. He is located near Vierick's Bakery. Give him a trial. He asks for a share of the patronage on account of being a home product.

A Father's Vengeance

would have fallen on any one who attacked the son of Peter Bondy, of South Rockwood, Mich., but he was powerless before attacks of kidney trouble. "Doctors could not help him," he wrote, "so at last we gave him Electric Bitters and he improved wonderfully from taking six bottles. Its the best kidney medicine I ever saw." Backache, Tired feeling, Nervousness, Loss of Appetite, Nervousness, Loss of Bright's disease. Beware: Take Electric Bitters and be safe. Every bottle guaranteed. 50c at Chas. I. Clough's.

J. E. Parker, 3221 No. 10th St., Ft. Smith, Ark. says that he has taken many kinds of kidney medicine, but did not get better until he took Foley Kidney Pills. No matter how long you have had kidney trouble you will find quick and permanent benefit by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. Start taking them now. Chas. I. Clough Co.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

In addition to his British allowance of $125,000 a year the duke of Connaught, Canada's new governor general, receives a salary of $50,000 a year from the Dominion. The Canadians have a fine pull on Mr. Bull's pocketbook.

No decision has yet been reached by the progressives in the matter of choosing a running mate for Senator La Follette next year, but it will probably be a golf player who received his training at the hands of Col. Roosevelt.

If the Wrights have really perfected a safety device for aeroplaning, which can balance a machine in mid-air at any time, we may make more new conquests of the air without paying too great a price in human life for them.

Sidney Love, divorcee, who had lost three estates and gone out West to make another fortune, has been saved the trouble. An uncle, dying, has left him a fortune of $7,000,000, and his payments of alimony are based on his financial condition at the time he was at low ebb. Still, there are those contending that there is no such thing as luck.

Balked at Cold Steel.

"I wouldn't let a doctor cut my foot off," said H. D. Ely, Bantam, Ohio, "although a horrible ulcer had been the plague of my life for four years. Instead I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my foot was soon completely cured." Heals Burns, Boils, Sores, Bruises, Eczema, Pimples, Corns. Surest Pile cure 25c at Chas. I. Clough's.

Starts Much Trouble

If all people knew that neglect of constipation would result in severe indigestion, yellow jaundice or virulent liver trouble, they would soon take Dr. King's New Life Pills, and end it. Its the only safe way. Best for biliousness, headache, dyspepsia, chills and dizziness. 25c at Chas. I. Clough's.

Coughing at Night

Means loss of sleep which is bad for everyone. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound stops the cough at once, relieves the tickling and dryness in the throat and heals the inflamed membranes. Prevents a cold developing into bronchitis or pneumonia. Keep always in the house. Refuse substitutes Chas. I. Clough Co.

Backache, Headache, Nervousness and rheumatism, both in men and women, mean kidney trouble. Do not allow it to progress beyond the reach of medicine but stop it promptly with Foley Kidney Pills. They regulate the action of the urinary organs. Tonic in action, quick in results. Chas. I. Clough Co.

"I am pleased to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as the best thing I know of and safest remedy for coughs, colds and bronchial trouble," writes Mrs. L. B. Arnold of Denver, Colo. "We have used it repeatedly and it has never failed to give relief." For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

Do Your Eyes Trouble You?

Your Eyes are your "bread winners"—take care of them. If they need help, help them—and help them quickly.

Scientist say that out of every hundred people to-day, not more than two have perfectly normal sight.

Of the other 98, many go through life with poor vision—and never know it. They don't know what really good eyesight is.

Others suffer for years from uncorrected eye strain, which the wearing of proper lenses would entirely remove.

If your eyes tire easily—if you experience discomfort when looking at small objects—if things appear to "swim" and "blur"—if your eyes are no longer equal to the work of the day—they are in trouble and need help.

Do not delay and run the risk of more serious trouble. Call to-day for appointment

NAMES AND FACES.

Douglas Marked the Men He Wanted to Know Again.

"Stephen A. Douglas had the most remarkable memory for faces of any man in public life," declares a correspondent. "Upon the occasion of a visit to Washington on election day in 1880 the late Colonel John W. Forney was discussing the election of Garfield over Hancock with Colonel Harmon of Detroit. Colonel Harmon had been mayor of Detroit and prominent in national politics. Harmon and Forney got to talking about earlier politics, and Harmon related the story of a meeting with Douglas in New York. Douglas had been nominated in Baltimore by one faction of the Democratic party. Breckinridge was chosen by the other faction in Charleston. When he heard of his nomination Douglas was in New York. He entered the Astor House, then the headquarters for all politicians and the principal hotel in New York, and immediately was surrounded by his political admirers. Among them was Colonel Harmon. The latter, according to the story he told me, put forth his hand and congratulated Douglas on his nomination.

"Thank you, Colonel Harmon," replied Douglas.

"Harmon was amazed that Douglas should have remembered his name, for he had met the 'little giant' but once, fifteen years before, and then for but a brief period. After a time he returned and asked Douglas how he was able to call him by name.

"My dear colonel," said Douglas, "whenever I meet a man I want to know again I put a mark on him and I never forget."—Washington Post.

THE BRITISH CABINET.

How Its Secret Documents Are Protected and Printed.

Each member of the cabinet is supplied with a key which fits the lock of a certain dispatch box retained by the prime minister. At any particular crisis, when important papers reach Downing street, the premier, after perusing them, places them in the dispatch box and hands the box to a special messenger, who takes it round to each member of the cabinet in succession. Each member opens it with his key and relays it after he has read the documents it contains. In this way the papers are prevented from falling into the hands of strangers or members of parliament who are not in the cabinet.

Now and again it is found necessary to print copies of a "secret" which comes up for discussion at a meeting of the cabinet. The document is cut up into many small pieces and distributed among a goodly number of compositors in the government printing works, each of whom sets up his little piece, and the little piece may represent only a dozen lines of type. When all the fragments are in type a highly trusted official collects both the copy and the type and puts the latter together. The printing of the document is then done in secret under the eyes of this official, and the men who work the printing machine are forbidden to handle any of the paper after it is printed upon.—National Magazine.

Reverse Methods in India.

Lady Wilson, the wife of an eminent Anglo-Indian official and long resident in India, in her book, "Letters From India," says: "It amuses me to notice the way the Indians reverse the order in which we do things. For instance, at home men take off their hats when they come into a house; Indians keep on their turbans, but take off their shoes. We beckon with the palms of our hands turned inward; they beckon with their hands turned out. My ayah lays my slippers in a row with the toes pointing toward me. The cook begins to read his Hindustani book of recipes from the last page backward and writes his accounts from right to left. When the native carpenter uses native screws he screws them in from right to left and saws inward, which makes one nervous."

A Poser.

A verbatim fragment from the law courts:
King's Counsel (examining witness)—Did you know—you did not, but I am bound to put it to you—on the 25th it was not the 25th really; it was the 24th; it is a mistake in my brief—see the defendant—he is not the defendant really; he is the plaintiff—there is a counterclaim, but you would not understand that—yes or no?
Witness—What!—St. James' Gazette.

A Strict Grammarian.

"You think a great deal of your husband, don't you?" said the visiting relative.
"You have the wrong preposition," answered Mr. Meekton's wife, with the cold tones of the superior woman. "I think for him."—Washington Star.

The Spirit That Wins

Griggs—I admire Parker immensely. He has a hard time making both ends meet, but he's game from the word go. Briggs—Game? Why, Parker looks upon the struggle with the wolf as a mere sporting event.—Boston Transcript.

Something Like It.

"I don't know, but I believe the doctors said it was something like discussion on the brain."—Baltimore American.

THE SERENADE.

An Old Romantic Custom That Has Fallen Into Desuetude.

In recalling the serenade of the Philharmonic society to Mlle. Nilsson I am reminded of a custom now fallen into desuetude, but which at the time I speak of (1870) was a favorite method of bestowing a marked compliment upon any one whom you wished particularly to honor.

The serenade was not only offered to visitors of distinction, but prevailed extensively as a delicate attention which you might pay to the lady of your choice. It was thought the proper thing at that period for a man to engage the best brass band he could afford and to proceed with it after midnight to the house of his preferred one and then to stand beneath the windows while the musicians played their most sentimental and sonorous selections. It was not an uncommon sound even to hear a double quartet of male voices, with a French horn thrown in, singing beneath the windows of some favored damsel, while paterfamilias or the butler made ready some light refreshment for the donors of this graceful compliment.

These romantic attentions have taken flight with the advent of electric lights, elevated railroads and other voices of the night, but even New York had a few hours of stillness after midnight, and the night watchman lent an indulgent ear to these revelers, who would doubtless be locked up as disturbers of the peace did they hazard such an enterprise under our modern regime.—Richard Hoffman's "Musical Recollections."

HE WAS THANKFUL.

But Still He Thought There Was a Little More He Might Get.

Old Simon, as we will call him, is quite a character in his way. He believes in asking for a thing until he gets it, and then—well, he is immediately in need of something else. He has lived on the same estate all his life, and until quite recently he was paying a merely nominal rent—£1 a year—for the small cottage he occupied.

Simon, however, wasn't quite satisfied. Whenever he paid an installment of his rent he called his master's attention to the fact that this thing wanted doing and that thing wanted doing to the property. At length Simon's master decided on a bold move. The next time Simon turned up with the quarter's rent and the usual list of suggested repairs the owner was prepared to meet him.

"Look here, Simon," he remarked, "I've been thinking the matter over, and in recognition of your long and faithful service I'm going to make you a free gift of the cottage you live in. From this moment it's yours to do as you like with. Now, what do you say to that?"

"Thank 'e, sir—thank 'e," returned the old fellow. "An' now, sir, what about that bit o' paint for the back door? Ye'll throw that in, o' course?"—London Answers.

Waterlogged Servians.

An Englishwoman traveling in Serbia this gives a striking glimpse of her own prejudices and tastes. "The Servians drink too much cold water, and they drink it till they are pulpy. An average Serb drinks enough cold water for an English cow. I doubt whether the language contains an equivalent for 'bad training,' for when I tried to explain the idea it created surprise. A doctor told me he had never heard the theory before. To him it seemed a natural and wholesome habit. Moreover, he added, 'there is plenty,' and seemed to think it was rather wasteful to leave any unsvalowed. To me it explained the lack of activity. The nation is waterlogged. All day long and every day the Serb calls for a glass of cold water, and when he has drunk it he calls for another. Perhaps owing to this he has little space for alcohol. At any rate, I never saw a drunken man, even among the peasants."

Washington and the Artists.

Writing to a friend May 16, 1885, Washington thus described his experience with portrait painters:
"I am so backed up to the touches of the painter's pencil that I am now altogether at their beck and sit like patience on a monument while they are delineating the lines of my face. It is a proof among many others of what habit and custom can effect. At first I was as impatient of the request and as restive under the operation as a colt is of the saddle. The next time I submitted very reluctantly, but with less frowning. Now no dray moves more readily to the thrill than I do to the painter's chair."

Infinitesimal Webs.

Mexico, the land of Montezuma, prickly pears, sand, volcanoes, earthquakes, etc., has many subtropical wonders both in vegetable and animal life. Among these latter is a species of spider so minute that its legs cannot be seen without a glass. This little arachnid weaves a web so wonderfully minute that it takes 400 of them to equal a common hair in magnitude.

A Great Descent.

"I can trace my descent from Homer," said Lord Slater proudly.
"Indeed," replied Miss Cresce, who didn't seem to be at all impressed. "It is certainly a great descent."

Shopping.

First Lady—Mrs. Smith is too young to go shopping alone. Second Lady—What is that? First Lady—She's liable to get excited and buy something.

KILL SHARKS FOR FUN.

Kanakas Can Whip the Man Easterns in a Fair Fight.

In the Pacific ocean lives a race of men who outswim fish and who kill man eating sharks in a fair fight. They are Kanakas, the natives who are natives of the Hawaiian Islands.

"A native can whip a shark because he can outswim him," states an American who has been living in the islands many years. "I never heard of a native being injured by a shark, and there is a superstition among them that a shark is afraid of a Kanaka and will refuse to fight. This is not true, however, and grew out of the fact that a native always whips a shark. Kanaka will spy a shark and, taking a knife between his teeth, dive to attack him. It is a fair fight, because the shark has teeth that are as deadly as the knife. The shark will make for the swimmer, and when it is in range will flop suddenly on its side. Its position is necessary before it can use its powerful jaws to crush an enemy. As the shark turns the native will rapidly and come up and rip the creature open with a quick slash of the knife. Sometimes they will avoid the shark time after time, cutting it at the nose and pricking it to arouse its anger.

"For excitement it outrivals a bull fight."—Detroit Free Press.

TUBES FOR LUNGS.

Complex System by Which Insects Are Enabled to Breathe.

While mammals have lungs and fishes gills, insects have neither nor the other. Instead they possess a complex system of tubes running throughout the length of their bodies whereby the air is conveyed to every part of the system.

To guard insects against collapse from pressure of air, nature has furnished the little creatures with a thread running spirally within the walls of the tube, just as a garden hose is protected with wire.

Many flies live first in the water as larvae. Arranged along each side of their bodies is a series of exceedingly thin plates, into each of which runs a series of blood vessels. These plates are placed to absorb the oxygen contained in the water. The tail ends of these three featherlike projections, and by means of these the larvae cause currents of water to flow over the gills, and thus their efficiency is increased.

Gnats also exist in the water as larvae. But they have no gills. Their breathing is accomplished by means of a tube situated at the tip of the body. The larvae floats along head downward in the water, with this tube just above the surface, so that the creature can breathe.—Harper's Weekly.

Prayer Halls in Russia.

In the villages of Russia the "prayer hall" is the common izba or cottage of a Stundist monk, or a shed attached to a very primitive farmstead surrounded by prodigious quantities of mud, dust or snow, according to the season of the year. A separate building erected expressly for worship among the rural evangelists of Russia is a luxury yet to be provided in the great majority of cases. "The place, whether izba or outbuilding, has walls of earth. It is without ceiling. The floor is the bare earth, trodden hard by many feet through a lapse of long years and worn into hollows. The walls are lime washed and destitute of decoration of any kind. There are rough wooden benches around and across the room. The place is usually packed to suffocation with men, women and children crammed on the seats, thronging together in ways and huddling together in the top of the huge stove.—Sunday Home.

Singing Wires.

Sometimes when a tempest is passing telegraph wires are silent, while at times of calm they are sonorous. Apparently the vibration of the wires is due to atmospheric agitation. A scientist of Berlin who studied the cause of the singing of wires in a calm concludes that the vibration of the wires always presages a storm, or a change of weather. When sounds are deep the change of weather may be looked for within twenty hours. It is difficult to determine the cause of the singing. An Italian physicist calls it "seismic agitation produced by barometric depression and admitted to the wires by the telegraph poles."—Harper's Weekly.

Lots of Hunting.

The talk had turned upon hunting and by and by one of the party mentioned Jamie's rap and expressed his admiration for it. "Well, sonny, I don't suppose you had a chance to do much hunting," remarked cheerfully. "Not many kinds, but lots of bears or lions, but I've hunted some of the spectacles most all over the world."—Chicago Record Herald.

A Sticking Business.

"Well, Mrs. Smith, and how's your husband?"
"Oh, he's doing well, thank you. He's got a job at the grocery store now."
"Ah, well, I hope he'll stick to it."—London Mail.

Hair Stealers.
It was unsafe for Englishmen to walk out alone in 1250, and they should be robbed of their hair by makers.

Contentment is natural wealth. Envy is artificial poverty.
