

Editorial Flash Lights.

Say, Web, we won't blow if you will put us next to the mystery connected with that $10 transaction.

Who's long legs, anyway? And we are wondering why the lady was so interested in men with long legs?

One woman testified that she never did get into trouble until she got into a certain attorney's office.

A young lady started for the train, going to Nehalem, and it took three other young ladies to help her miss it.

Degenerate. I heard a man say, Saturday. "I'd stay over until Monday if there were any more divorce cases."

What a lot of fun it would have caused in court had a six bit broom started in to straighten out the wool or whisker's face.

Did you ever notice how much ink a fellow gets on his fingers when he is filling his fountain pen out of your ink bottle?

And another religious revival is over in this city. Surely Tillamook ought to be a model city if religious revivals are any criterion to go by. It is far from it.

"Some day when you people have a good size fire and an equally large funeral, you will realize that people cannot get out of a moving picture show without proper exits," was a remark made a few days ago by a visitor to this city.

That wasn't a square deal to get the newly weds out of bed the first night after they had planned not to go to their own home that night but take a room at the hotel to avoid their friends and a serenade.

The High School Attorney was a constant visitor at the circuit court and took a seat within the bar with as much dignity as a full fledged attorney, although he has not displayed his shingle on the High School building yet.

Here's a slogan for anyone who wants to run for mayor: "5c. a glass for beer, 10c. a drink for whiskey and no seats or games of any kind allowed in the saloons, and loafing prohibited." That is the first step to procure what is termed a model saloon.

Watch the men who are being fleeced for 10c. a glass for beer and 15c. a drink for whiskey by the Tillamook saloon monopoly fall in line at the city caucus to help the saloon keeper keep that thing going. How short sighted some men are what fools they are besides to vote for those who charge them double the price for drinks in this city to what it can be obtained for in other cities.

One of our leading legal lights who has been in the habit for years of getting the Friday Oregonian on Saturday morning, almost had a case dismissed for non-appearance. He received his paper on the day it was printed and was having a snooze when the bailiff woke him up and told him it was Saturday. He argued it was Sunday and had Saturday's paper to prove it.

Ask James, jr., which he enjoyed best, the cup of coffee or losing the train on Saturday. No one need wonder at Jim getting left, for tardiness is one of his characteristics. But, gee wiz, how comical it is becoming to see Tillamookers chasing a train after it attains a good speed. Jim went one better than that. He endeavored to overtake the train on a bike.

After all the fuss and all the bluff over the fish cases, we wonder now the combatants feel. There's a sanitarian quite near, Walter, if your feet real bad after such a trouncing. There never should and never would have been any trouble had proper discretion been used. Old methods involving Sabermans and paying nothing for fish cannot be longer, for it is now the law to have a license and a much higher price for fish.

delegation. Had done so he would have the progressive citizens were never opposed to the Bayoc road or $50,000 for each road district. The sentiment in Bay City has been sadly misrepresented and the city on the bay needs and should have a 10 mill road levy to fix its own streets. Like most places there are a few grouchy persons there who have forced themselves into the limelight.

Ray Botts knows law and how to conduct cases, but he don't know how to use an axe while chopping wood by the look of one of his horses. He had better get his better horse to show me." And another attorney. He went to the court with Congressman Hawley on Wednesday, expecting to receive a check. While out on the street he was heard approaching a conversant with the train, he went through motions without a check did not understand such queer signals and the train passed on before the attorney had time to procure a restraining order from the Lord Chief Justice of Nehalem to stop the train so that he could get aboard. Try a torpedo next time, Bro. Botts.

GOLDEN WEDDING.
Jacob and Elizabeth Blum Celebrated Their 50th Anniversary.
Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Blum, who are highly respected citizens of Tillamook County, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday last at their home south of Tillamook City, which was also made the occasion of a family reunion.
This was the first family re-union they have held in twenty-seven years, and to attend this one many were obliged to come from some distance and on various accounts were unable to bring their entire families with them, so out of forty-eight grandchildren only seventeen were present, and one great grand child was present.
Their sons and daughters were all present: Anos Blum, Edward Blum, Mrs. Anna Simmonds, John Blum, Fred Blum, Alvin Blum, Mrs. Henry Simmonds, all residing in this county, Mrs. Mary E. Graf, of Oak Grove, Or.; Mrs. Lidia Mills and Mrs. Dora Ditjle, of Portland, Ore.; Chas. F. Blum, of Newberg, Ore.; and Mrs. Esther E. Franklin, of Salt Lake City, Utah.
The family gathered in the old home during the forenoon and at twelve thirty a grand dinner was served to all. The children, sixteen in number assembled about a table in one room and the balance of the family about a still larger one loaded almost to the breaking point with the many delicacies, known only to country life.
Jacob Blum and Elizabeth Babler, were born in Switzerland in the year 1835 and 1843, respectively. Mr. Blum crossed the ocean in 1847, at the age of twelve, while Elizabeth crossed when but one and one-half years of age.
Both families settled near Madison, Wisconsin, where Jacob and Elizabeth were married on Nov. 16, 1861, and remained near the old homes for fourteen years, they then moved to Nobles County, Minnesota, remaining there for two years, but Minnesota did not suit them and in June 1877 they started for Oregon.
Settling in Betheny, Washington county, but remained there only till November of that year, when they moved to Tillamook county, where Mr. Blum took up a homestead about twelve miles south of this city.
They have lived there ever since, enduring the trials and hardships of the early pioneers, but these hardships have only tended to make Tillamook more dear to them in their old age. They say Tillamook county makes the best home they have ever enjoyed.

To the Farmers of Tillamook.
GENTLEMEN:—It will soon be time for the annual meetings of our cheese factories, and one of the subjects likely to come up, will be the inspection and grading of our cheese. This subject, to my mind, is the most vital of any connected with our business. What was the situation before we adopted this method? Our cheese was shipped out hap-hazard, the good article selling the poor. Today we are getting large orders from all over the country, simply specifying that a certain grade is wanted. Do you suppose we would get these orders supposing we went back to the old style of doing business? Certainly not. It is exactly the same case as that at Hood River, only they are selling apples and we cheese. We are building up a big business the same as they, and if we keep on as we are doing at the present time, our product will soon be as widely known. Fall back into the old style and I for one would just as soon change to making butter or any old thing.
Another subject I would like to mention. A good many of you gentlemen remember when we sold our milk and the other fellow owned the factory. I was not very much stuck on that, were you? Well, now that the railroad has come, there will likely be several projects advanced, such as condensers, sending our milk and cream to Portland, etc.
For the last 9 years we have been building up a business and today it is one that we may well be proud of. We own our factories and we are getting every cent there is in the milk. Do you want to go back to the way it was before we bought these factories and went into the business for ourselves? I think not. Some of these projects may look a little better than ours on the start, but how will it be in the long run? We have an ideal cheese country. Our market is spreading rapidly and will continue to do so.
Yours truly,
JACK JENNINGS, Kilchis.

The Dairy Laws.
MR. EDITOR.—For the benefit of myself and others who read your paper, will you please give me some information. Are the dairy laws of Oregon on the statute books so that one may know when he is and when he is not violating the law? We have had an inspector this season and so far as I have found out there was not a dairy in this neighborhood that comes up to his requirements, but there was no uniformity about his work. One place it was one thing and the next it was something else, so I don't know what is law if the dairy laws of Oregon are such that one man from some other county without any law but his own ideas and notions to govern him can come in here to tell us what must be done, the dairymen of Tillamook Co. have a hard lot.
A DAIRYMAN.
[Unfortunately for Oregon the office of State Dairy and Food Commissioner is more of a political office than anything else. Simply to draw down so much pay without accomplishing much good to the dairy industry. The Commissioner and his deputies are empowered to visit dairy farms and creameries as to their sanitary condition, and if more attention was paid to this it would be a good thing, for dairymen who keep dirty, filthy barns and environments are not prosecuted as much as they should be. There is nothing wrong with the dairy laws, but experienced analysts and chemists and with a good staff of professors should be at the head of the department instead of a lot of politicians holding down jobs for the money. It would be a good plan if the State Agricultural College could take charge of the dairy and food laws, for there is a great deal of educational work to do, and this could be better done by professors in their line than a lot of politicians.—Ed.]

More About the Roads.
[TO EDITOR TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT]
DEAR SIR,—As the tax question is in an unsettled condition, allow me to say that I have known it absolutely necessary to amputate a leg or arm to save life. It is also at times important to spend the much coveted coin to cover a good building with paint, not only for appearance, but to add durability to property. These questions are understood by all. The man who refuses the first dies. The man who fails to do the second not only loses money, but becomes an old fogey, a mossback, a back number.
Our County Court is up against such a proposition. They must preserve the county's integrity by paying off indebtedness, they must go forward with work commenced to save that already expended. To do these two things which we will demand that they do and they must have money to do with. Now allow me to ask you men, who are so opposed to our court spending money for good roads that all enjoy, why don't you make a campaign against the expenditure of money for, the purchase of no good to anyone, the of strong drink that injure all who take it, if your gold is too precious for improvements of roads? Will you not be consistent on these other lines as well? My fellow Tillamookers, we are where we will lose money, thousands of dollars, by not putting up the necessary amount to proceed with. To do this will be wast of expenditures already made, therefore, I urge you at this crisis to use the old bugy another year, cut down your beer bill. Let get saving, and put it on our roads and by so doing we will keep Tillamook in the front rank of road building. Economy is all right, but just now to withhold from this fund will put us back ten years in developing our county.

Yours for progress,
C. H. WAYNIE.
Hebo, Nov. 21st.

Golden Gate Quits Passengers.
At the request of the owners, Local Inspectors Edwards and Fuller have changed the certificate of the steamer Golden Gate so that she will no longer carry passengers between Portland and Tillamook. Since she was overhauled and placed on the run, more than a year ago, she has handled both passengers and freight, having accommodations for 28 persons, but hereafter she will transport only cargo.
Her withdrawal from the passenger trade leaves but two vessels to compete, the steamer Sue H. Edmore and gasoline schooner Avila. These boats also carry freight. Since the completion of the rail line between Hillsboro and Tillamook, through which direct connections can be made to and from Portland, there has been a decrease in passenger travel by water. During the Winter season steamers have difficulty completing more than one round trip a week because of the condition of Tillamook bay entrance.
Passengers are carried at low fares, considering that they are not charged extra for meals and berth, and when the steamers are barbound for a few days profits are light. When the Golden Gate arrived Saturday she had been away from port more than a week. She sustained damage crossing the Tillamook bar and is now on the Oregon drydock to have repairs made to her keel and other work done, as she leaked slightly.—Oregonian.

Many people suffer for years from disordered digestion, severe headaches or nervous troubles of one kind or another. These they ascribe to "biliousness"—to anything under the sun but the eyes, when, in many cases, the trouble is directly traceable to uncorrected eyestrain, which the wearing of proper lenses would entirely remove.
