The Tillamook Headlight.

Editorial Snap Shots.

The levy in Clatsop County is 26.4 mills against 18 mills in Tillamook County.

The long expected invitation to the business men of this city to take a special trip to Portland over the P. R. & N. never materialized, notwithstanding that the business men of Tillamook City raised a subsidy...

The two boys who were sent to jail for nine months by Justice Warren for stealing chicken will cost the taxpayers the sum of $150. We mention this case simply as an illustration in the matter of indirect taxation, for it appears that some taxpayers balk when it comes to a direct tax but not so with indirect taxation.

Notwithstanding that Tillamook County was one of the first counties to discuss the proposition of employing a practical engineer and experienced road builder to plan out and supervise the road work, we notice that other counties have caught the idea and are adopting the plan, notwithstanding that they are cumbered with the present obsolete road laws.

Why not auction off the five saloon licenses to the highest bidder? The fact that one saloon license has been bartered away at a profit—not to the city—is plain proof that the city is not getting the revenue it should. The only way now for a person to get into the saloon business is to pay a big premium for one of the licenses.

The people have heard a great deal the last few years about Statement No. 1, the sovereign will of the people, the insurgents and the progressives, also the Oregon system and our new fangled methods of legislation.

The Headlight will adhere to the policy as recommended by the editors of the county for providing money for road work, viz., a 10 mill road levy in preference to bonding the county. For this reason: Suppose, for instance, that $1,000,000 was expended on roads this year by bonding the county, in another few years there will be just as much demand for more roads and better roads as there is today. With the interest on the bonds and a sinking fund to pay off the principal, will take considerable of a levy to meet these charges, and as it will be necessary to have a big road levy as well to maintain and build new roads, anyone can see if they will take the time to figure it out that the taxpayers, instead of having to pay one road tax will have to pay two, for the wear and tear of the roads in this wet climate will always entail a large annual expenditure. True it is by bonding the county for a large amount that the citizens would be enjoying the benefits of a number of good roads, and the contention is made that the next generation or the increased valuation of the county will pay for them. Let us refute that fallacy. If the county was bonded for one million dollars this year next January the County Court would have to raise $50,000 for interest and $50,000 to go into a sinking fund, making $100,000 annually. This is not all. That amount of money would go out of the county and not one cent would used in their construction. It is impossible to make first class cheese with rank and tainted milk and a person cannot build a tight, warm house with poor lumber. Neither can good roads be built with poor material. As an illustration of this Tillamook City has spent an enormous amount of money the past 20 years endeavoring to make good roads out of decomposed gravel, and the result is that the city is the worse mud hole in the county. A large amount of money can be saved in the selection of proper material for the county roads. This should not be left to every Tom, Dick and Harry, but left to the judgment of a person who can test and know for certain the relative values of rock. Here is where the services of a practical road builder would save thousands of dollars. The editor believes that before we can have good summer and winter roads in this county some kind of crude oil or cement will have to be used to keep them water proof, on account of the long spell of wet weather. In paving the streets of this city, unless some water proof material and rock of a certain standard are used, it will prove a failure here, but in a dry climate it might prove successful. This is a wet climate and it is necessary to have proper material to cope with local conditions so as to have water proof streets and roads.

The church people of Tillamook City paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Rev. S. G. Finney, who was pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city. This was a young man who came amongst us well educated, refined and with many admirable characteristics which fitted him for the ministry, and to all appearances he had a fine physique. After years of study and expense, he started out as a young man with bright prospects as a minister of the gospel, although it is safe to say that in preparing himself for this work he was such a close student after knowledge that he failed to obtain the fresh air and physical exercise so necessary to health. Man proposes and God disposes is an axiom of the good old book. A victim of the white plague, the young, strong young man's ambitions were suddenly thwarted and a small mound indicates his resting place. It is hard to account why such a useful young man should be taken away when there are so many who are not helping to make the world better. Mr. Finney was a Christian gentleman in the truest sense of the word, and this was the reason why he was so well liked by all classes of persons during his twelve months' residence in this city. He was broad minded and head and shoulders above petty sectarianism which often does so much to injure the cause of religion. The large attendance at his farewell service and at the memorial service on Sunday showed how he had won the admiration and respect of the people of this city.

The people have heard a great deal the last few years about Statement No. 1, the sovereign will of the people, the insurgents and the progressives, also the Oregon system and our new fangled methods of legislation. From all accounts the people are paying an enormous amount of money for being humbugged by the politicians. But they seem to like it, for every election in recent years in Oregon the people fall head over heels after these new isms which are bobbing up in quick succession one after the other. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, so we want to show our readers how all these new fangled ideas are eating up taxes. The state taxes to be collected for 1912 amount to more than the taxes collected altogether in 1906, 1907 and 1908. The state taxes for 1912 total $3,063,815, while in the three years mentioned the sum was $2,800,000. The state taxes to be collected for 1912 are more than the combined taxes for 1910 and 1911, when they totaled $2,914,016 for the two years. We have always had an impression that when the Oregon system chicken came home to roost there would be a big bill for the people to pay for trying to upset the constitutional form of government with a lot of vagaries. But the end is not in sight yet, nor is the agony of high state taxation over as long as we keep fooling with new isms taken up by the politicians for the purpose of getting into office.

We may keep on building roads and spend large sums of money every year upon them, but we can never have good roads until proper material is be left here. In addition to this, $100,000 or $150,000 will have to be raised annually for roads. There is no getting away from that, whether there is a bond issue or not, and all the money raised in that way would stay at home and go into the pockets of the farmers. We are frank to admit that there are a large number of our citizens who are demanding better roads, and if they cannot obtain them by taxation they will by bonding. Under the circumstances, which is best for the taxpayers and the county? If anyone will formulate a better plan for raising money to build good roads to cope with the needs of the county than that recommended by the editors, we would like to see it.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Poor Baker Again Made the Scapgoat.

DEAR SIR.—By reading the county papers our hope is inspired or killed to a greater or lesser degree. In view of this it behooves us as honest citizens to give the best thought we have to the support and strengthening of the character and individuality of our local Editors.

We saw in Brother Baker's paper of January 11 the linking of a cobbler's crime with Socialism. We have seen this thing happen many times before. We have seen many crimes since our sojourn in Tillamook, but we have never yet seen a "Republican crime." I cannot for one see a plausible excuse for a "supposed leader" to sum up the thirty odd years of an individual life of apparently petty theft, lying, sin,—and condemn the honest effort of thousands of noble and generous men and women who have united their forces under the caption of "Socialism."

There is certainly a call to action. If the fundamental principle of Socialism (Hope) is wrong, then Republicanism and Democracy are a thousand times wrong. I am not prepared to say that the fundamental fabric of the banner "Socialism" is wrong,—nor do I believe any other individual is called to do so.

But let us admit that there has been stitches dropped in the amateur workmanship on the ideal banner, and by the thong of fair judgment catch them up and hold them fast that no pure thought in embryo shall be lost or disfigured in the course of its development.

The sooner our long-fingered shoemakers and his kind are held personally responsible for their conduct the better. Also the sooner our Brother Baker is held responsible for all the rottenness of the Republican body politic in Tillamook County the sooner he will wake up.

Every man's conduct must vindicate or condemn him, and not the political banner under which he is pleased to labor or float. Remember, "The greatest good to the greatest number."

Your friend, C. J. CROOK.

Spray for Potato Blight.

DEAR SIR,—I wish to submit an article on potato blight in Tillamook County, the effect of this particular climate on the fungus and the means necessary to successfully combat it, without going into detail. If you should receive inquiries from your readers refer them to Bulletin 100, of the Agricultural Experiment Station of Orono, Maine.

Potato blight is a parasitic fungus of the low order of plant life, and may be as successfully combated as apple scab or any other fungus disease; providing, at the proper time, through spraying, of the proper solution of Bordeaux is used. Rain, dew, wind and insects are the chief agencies for distributing the disease. So far as is known the only way that the crop of any one year is first infected, is from planting diseased tubers, in which the fungus has remained semi-dormant all winter. Hence the first blow to be struck is to plant healthy tubers.

Late blight reveals in moist, cloudy weather, between 50 and 73 deg. F. The spores are produced in multitudes in rainy or cloudy weather and are extremely susceptible to drying and hence you need never fear an outbreak in dry, hot, sunny weather. While spraying operations should not be delayed until favorable conditions for blight to appear, how thoroughly they are followed up may well be governed by weather conditions, if the significance of the latter is thoroughly understood.

in the rain and store them away before they have been thoroughly dried by the sun, thus infecting the tubers which will all rot in a pile. The procedure would be: Choose good smooth tubers, put them in a vat, barrel or tub, then prepare a solution of 1 to 400 of Bichloride of mercury or a similar solution of formaldehyde. Soak from 4 to 6 hours. Cut or plant whole as desired.

Careful observance of the method of preparing the Bordeaux and absolute accuracy in proportioning the ingredients are essential to success. And the mode of applying the spray is also a big factor. It should be put on with a high pressure to insure a fine mist rather than a coarse soaking. A bucket or hand sprayer will do for a small patch. Fifty to sixty gallons of the spray are required to spray one acre in heavy foliage. Spray according to the season, from two to five applications will do under ordinary conditions. Do not hesitate to spray because it is raining, instead of in evidence that protection is needed.

The spray: Dissolve 5 pounds of copper sulphate Cu. S. O. in 25 gallons of water then slake 5 pounds of lime until it is the consistency of cream, add 25 gallons of water, then take two vessels and pour in equal quantities of each liquid into a large receptacle, stir thoroughly and it is ready for use.

Respectfully, H. M. CROSS.

A Good Position

Can be had by ambitious young men and women in the field of "Wireless" or Railway Telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers.

Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chances of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute of Portland, Oregon operates under the supervision of R. R. and Wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details.

Charles Durham, Lovington, Ill., has found a positive cure for bed wetting. "My little boy wet the bed every night clear thro' on the floor. I tried several kinds of kidney medicine and I was in the drug store looking for something different to help him when I heard of Foley's Kidney Pills. After he had taken them two days we could see a change and when he had taken two thirds of a bottle he was cured. That is about six weeks ago and he has not wet in bed since." Sold by Chas. I.
