An Epidemic of Coughing

Is sweeping over the town. Old and young alike are affected, and the strain is particularly hard on little children and on elderly people. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is a quick, safe and reliable cure for all coughs and colds. Contains no opiates.—Chas. I. Clough Co.

The Sound Sleep of Good Health

Is not for those suffering from kidney ailments and irregularities. The prompt use of Foley's Kidney Pills will dispel backache and rheumatism, heal and strengthen sore, weak and ailing kidneys, restore normal action, and with it health and strength. Mrs. M. F. Spaulbury, Sterling, Ill., says: "I suffered great pain in my back and kidneys, could not sleep at night, and could not raise my hands over my head. But two bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills cured me."—Chas. I. Clough Co.

First La Grippe, Then Bronchitis.

That was the case with Mrs. W. S. Bailey, McCreary, Ky. "My wife was taken down with a severe attack of la grippe, which run into bronchitis. She coughed as tho' she had consumption and could not sleep at night. The first bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound gave her so much relief that she continued using it until she was permanently cured."—Chas. I. Clough Co.

Boulder Creek.

Rev. R. A. Walter and family came up from Beaver last Monday. They are preparing to leave this neighborhood in a few days.

John and Manuel Borba returned last week from their trip to Rainier and other outside points. They report a very pleasant time, but were glad to get back.

Virgil Spruce is suffering from an axe wound in his arm, inflicted accidentally by his older brother, who was chopping, when the axe flew out of his hands and struck the younger boy.

John Sheets has been hard at work for a week trying to get our telephone system in good working order once more, but has only been partially successful, as most of the patrons on this line are still unable to ring central.

R. Y. Blalock and family expect to return to their Nestucca home about the last of March. Their friends will be glad to see them back in this neighborhood again.

About thirty-two of the relatives of Messrs. O. W. Kinnaman and Norman Dye, met at the home of Mr. Kinnaman's last Saturday to give the said gentleman a birthday surprise, which was a decided success. Five fine birthday cakes and plenty of other good things contributed to the general pleasure, and after spending the greater part of the day in a social manner, the guests departed for their homes, all wishing him many more such happy occasions.

A. O. Foland and wife will return soon from their trip to California.

Budding trees, early spring flowers, meadow larks singing, and the frogs' orchestra, all proclaim that Spring is near.

Summons.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for the County of Tillamook.

Tillamook County Bank, a corporation, Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. E. C. Sowle and Lucy J. Sowle, Defendants.

To E. C. Sowle and Lucy J. Sowle, the above named defendants:

In the name of the State of Oregon, You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before the expiration of six weeks from the date of the first publication of this Summons, and if you fail so to appear and answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the said court for the relief demanded in the complaint herein.

The relief demanded is the foreclosure of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by you to the plaintiff in said suit on or about August 12th, 1910, bearing said date, to secure the payment of five promissory notes executed by you for $386.00 each, bearing the same date and payable respectively on or before 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years after that date, with interest after date at the rate of six per cent per annum, which said mortgage conveyed to the plaintiff 40 acres of land on the East side of the West half of the South East quarter of Section 4, in Township 2 South, Range 9 West, W.M., except 2 acres square out of the South East corner of said tract, all of the above tract of land being in Tillamook County, Oregon, and for the recovery of the amount of said indebtedness, with interest. For the further sum of $200.00 as attorney's fees, and the costs and disbursements of this suit, and that the said mortgage be foreclosed, and the said property sold for the purpose of satisfying the said mortgage, and that you and each of you, and all persons claiming under you be forever barred and foreclosed of all right, title, interest or estate in or to said property, or any portion thereof, save the statutory right of redemption, and that the purchaser at the sale be put into the immediate possession of the property, and for such further relief as may seem equitable.

This summons is published by order of the Hon. Homer Mason, County Judge of Tillamook County, Oregon, said order being made and dated at Tillamook City, Oregon, on February 15th, 1912. The time prescribed in the order for publication is once a week for six successive weeks, and the date of the first publication is Thursday, February 15th, 1912.

DADDY LONGLEGS.

Thirty Different Tribes, of Which Only Three Harm Vegetation.

Probably no insect is treated by the ordinary observer with less respect than daddy longlegs, and his good natured readiness to leave various legs as souvenirs with those who handle him adds nothing to his personal dignity nor his good standing in society.

His short snatches of flight across the grass are not remarkable for grace, and he possesses neither the personal attractions of the butterfly, the terrible aspect of the spider nor the glaring imperfections of the blue bottle.

Daddy longlegs' figure is rather more blunt and corpulent than that of madam his wife, and among his thirty different tribes only three do serious damage to beets, cabbages, potatoes, lawns and grass lands. The females are said to lay their eggs as they fly and are sometimes literally stuffed full, carrying as many as 300 at a time, a fact which ought to cause Topknot to blush for shame, with her boastful cackle and one egg a day cleverness.

The larvae are footless things, with black heads and excellent jaws, and change to pupae from August to September. They are furnished with spiny rings, which enable them to work their way to the surface of the ground, and when their emerging time comes thousands of empty cases may be seen sticking half out of the earth among the grass.

The tongue is a queer specimen of the blowfly order, and on each side of its entire surface is a thick, fleshy cushion.—Detroit Free Press.

CONTRARY CROCKERY.

Dishes Do Play Queer Pranks at Times, as Though Bewitched.

Housewives, think twice before scolding your maids. You know crockery is often said to be bewitched, and veritably this is so.

The best tea service will smash itself to a cup and saucer. Then, the last of their line, they linger on through stress and storm as if bearing a charmed life. Your special set of flowered jugs will all rush to their fates with maddening tendencies to suicide, except one. That hangs on its hook, cracked, but still alive to mock you with memory of its fair sisters. Notice, too, the everyday dinner service with the dark blue border and the gilt edge. It flourishes like the proverbial bay tree. But the very first time you bring out your best set, purchased by painstaking thrift, the soup tureen hurls madly to the ground. "How dreadfully careless of you, Mary Anne!" you exclaim fretfully. But it isn't the little maid at all. It's witchcraft.

But a much more weird and wonderful proof of sorcery at work in crockery occurred the other day. An ordinary china jug suddenly refused to hold water. It leaked badly. Banned to the kitchen shelf, it stood five months. Unexpectedly one day it was taken down and used by a stranger and behaved in a perfectly exemplary manner. Explain it by anything else than witchcraft if you can.—London Ladies' World.

Partial Eclipse of the Honeymoon.

In early American households maternal authority was not lightly to be defied. When Charlotte Fenwick, a southern beauty of the Revolutionary period, was fifteen years old she took advantage of the absence of her mother in England to fall in love with a northerner, Major William Leigh Pierce, and to marry him. On Mrs. Fenwick's return to Savannah, which had been hastened by news of the approach of the English army to Charleston, she was highly indignant to find her daughter married to a stranger.

"And who is this Major Pierce?" she demanded.

"A gentleman, madam," young Mrs. Pierce haughtily replied.

"Go to your room, madam," commanded Mrs. Fenwick severely, "and stay the rest of the day!"

And the little bride meekly obeyed.—Youth's Companion.

The "Tawdry Saint."

St. Etheldreda has been unfortunate, inasmuch as her memory is perpetuated in the disagreeable adjective "tawdry," and she is sometimes even referred to as the "tawdry saint." In the Isle of Ely, where she died, a fair was formerly held in her honor, at which a peculiar kind of cheap but showy lace was sold, which, as St. Etheldreda or St. Andrew's lace soon became proverbial and tawdry, an easy corruption of the saint's abbreviated name, was used to denote all things more gaudy than valuable.—London Chronicle.

Economies.

Mr. Nubrix—Why do you do all your shopping at this store? Mrs. Nubrix—It's the grandest place I ever found. They sell all their goods by the foot instead of by the yard, and the price is only a third as much.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Suffering.

There is no finer chemistry than that by which the element of suffering is so compounded with spiritual forces that it issues to the world in gentleness and strength.—George S. Merriam.

Extreme.

Miss Fewlox—Are you ready to dress my hair, Celeste? Celeste—Am, miss. Miss Fewlox—Then turn my hair's photograph to the wall and begin.—Chicago News.

The Natural One.

"Do you know of any good remedy for a deadlock?" "I should suggest a key to the situation"—Baltimore American.
