Ben Selling appears to be a strong favorite in this neck of the woods for the Republican nominee for United States Senator.

If Congress would get busy and pass the Rivers and Harbors Bill we would all feel relieved of a great suspense and be assured of harbor improvements.

For the presidential nomination, the race is narrowed down between President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt, with the prospects that the people are well satisfied with the present administration and that it is a good thing to let well enough alone.

Some of the fishermen are complaining that salmon eggs are being shipped from the hatchery in this county to the hatchery on the Columbia river. They have just grounds for complaint, for they pay something like $3,000 in licenses, and think these eggs should be hatched out here, for the theory is that the fish will return to the same place in about four years where they are hatched.

It will be noticed that the County Court let two contracts for road work to the lowest bidders last week, carrying out the idea of those who contended for contract work. The Court is gradually giving the south side of Nehalem Bay a road, and it is to be hoped that it will not be long before the Court will give the south side of Tillamook Bay the same privileges.

Carl Gray, President of the Hill lines in Oregon, said last week that the extension of the United Railway to Tillamook, as originally planned, depends entirely upon the development of the territory to be served by such extensions. Or, in other words, when the dirt begins to fly in harbor improvements and we have hotel accommodations to provide for the people, then the Hill interests will build and not before. It may be interesting to Mr. Gray if he will keep tab on the thousands of visitors who will visit Tillamook the coming summer.

The citizens of this city were given another peep behind the scenes this week as to the immoral conditions which continue to exist here, especially amongst some of the young people. Every once in a while public sentiment is aroused and appears to be shocked when the limelight is turned on the licentious habits and schemes of the young men and women, and it is deplorable to know that such conditions exist. As long as the courts continue to dillydally with such cases, and there is a silly sentimental pity for those who lead young girls astray for the purpose of ravaging them, the white slave trade will prosper in this city.

Some persons are wondering why it is that lumber is being shipped into Tillamook County by water and rail from Portland. Considerable culled lumber can be obtained at the large Portland saw mills at a very low figure, and this, from what we can understand, is what is being shipped in. There is no getting away from the saying that cheap lumber makes cheap buildings, and those who want to erect that class of building had to go to Portland to obtain the culled lumber, for there is not sufficient to be obtained at the saw mills in this county to amount to anything. We want to say that first class lumber is higher in Portland than it is in Tillamook and it takes good lumber, not culled, to make a good residence.

There is a great deal of truth in what the Oregonian says in regard to President Taft's attitude in regard to the trusts, who went ahead and enforced the law, and at the same time he made many of the big corporation comply with the law. It was Taft's steady, persistent efforts which is bringing about better conditions. This is the paragraph we refer to:

Roosevelt found nothing to criticize in Taft's anti-trust policy until Taft attacked the steel trust, for which Roosevelt has always had a peculiar tenderness. By contrast, Taft has attacked every trust without fear or favor. The wrath of Morgan had no terrors for him, nor did he shrink from including his college classmates and his political lieutenants among the indicted. He goes ahead and enforces the law as he finds it, without waiting for further definition from a divided Congress.

It would not surprise us to see some plan put up to the voters, under the Oregon system, whereby the State will dabble into road building. We are opposed to it, notwithstanding that some of the good roads advocates favor it. Governor West's plan to create a State Highway Commission, with power to bond for $20,000,000, with a like amount put up by the different counties if they desired to obtain some of that money, looked plausible for the purpose of obtaining votes under our new system of legislation, but the people did not take kindly to it, for it placed $40,000,000 into the hands of a few political pets to expend it in the manner they pleased. It may not be possible to pass the good roads bills advocated by Governor West, but, under the Oregon system, the people may vote to make them law.

When the city council gave the P. R. & N. a franchise to lay one track on Front street it gave the railroad company all it was entitled to. Not that we want to be antagonistic with the railroad company, but we believe on general principles that the City Council should allow only one track through the city to any railroad, and if that is insufficient the railroad should buy private property and not attempt to monopolize a public street. No one wants to be unjust or unreasonable with the railroad, and the railroad should not be unreasonable in its demands after it had obtained all that it is entitled to after having the first choice of streets for a track and right of way. If the City Council does undertake to give the P. R. & N. forty feet of Front street, it is safe to say that the citizens will not agree to it should it be referred to a vote of the people.

Children of the Poor

We sometimes wonder why the sturdy working classes of this county tolerate so much nonsense about themselves as they do. It is strange that they will even pay to hear things said about themselves which are not only insulting but which are notoriously untrue, among all familiar with the facts. Had Emma Goldman's voice the other night been the first so raised, it might be wise to ignore its disparagement of the poor. But since it is an echo of a thousand voices gone before, it calls for challenging.

Said Emma, when talking of the seed of the workers: "When the baby grows into a child it plays its child life away in a congested district where its mind, its body and its lungs are dwarfed by want of free sunshine and air." Still, out of the loins of the working classes, and out of these congested districts, come the finest specimens of physical manhood in great cities. They give us our policemen, our firemen, our steel and iron workers, our mechanics in a thousand lines demanding strong limbs, clear eyes and steady nerves. Compare the physiques of the children playing in the yard of a schoolhouse in any of our working districts with those of the children at schools surrounded by homes of wealth.

There is method in the madness of such talk as this of Emma. People of means, and charitable impulses, are constantly being exploited by those representing, to their sympathetic minds, the awful conditions prevailing in congested city districts where the working classes live. The children of the poor are painted as deficient in proportions and vitality, but from among these boys we go on recruiting the men we need to do men's highest work, in physical ways. The lie is growing monotonous, and, worse still, it is enriching hypocrites. The working classes should protest against it. It is not charity but justice they want. And they can get that without lies.

In the matter of bids for constructing road, beginning at a point near the railroad crossing and terminating at the Kilchis bridge, the bids of H. B. Johnson and W. H. Leach, for $1498, and the bid of W. D. Wood and Frank Pfaff in the sum of $1.00 per yard, and the bid of George Zarkovich for clearing stump, logs and brush for right of way, for the sum of $725, were all rejected, and the bids of Mead & Son for completing the road $1325, for grading and completing, except graveling, $925.

In the matter of the petitions of H. H. Hayward, Fred Scherzinger, Sam Bauer, H. C. Follett for county roads, and vacation of a part of the town of Wheeler, all these petitions were continued.

In the matter of the plat of Lake Lytle the county clerk was ordered to correct plat.

In the matter of the approval of the amended plat and deed of dedication of Rowe's addition to Wheeler and that of Garibaldi Beach, both were approved.

In the matter of the contracts with Mead & Son, the latter filed their bonds for the same.

In the matter of a franchise to the Nehalem Telephone and Telegraph Co. to construct, operate and maintain lines over, upon and under the county roads, the same was granted.

It was ordered that the county clerk be authorized to call for bids for making fills at Nehalem.

Guard the Family Health

Health is often endangered by unsanitary cooking utensils. Physicians have found that cancer is caused by enamel ware chipping off and irritating the stomach.

If you have children or invalids in the family beware of cheap cooking utensils that crack, scale, peel off, tarnish or rust. Disease germs lurk in the worn places and there is further danger of tainting the food. Health is too precious to take risks with it.

Be safe. Use

which are guaranteed for 15 years constant service and will never spoil food nor endanger health.

This new ware is featherweight, beautiful, easy to clean—does not tarnish nor rust. The slight extra cost is more than made up by long service and absolute safety.
