GALGARY MEN PRAISE PAVING. Bitulthic is Giving Great Satisfaction to the People There.

G. D. Christie and W. E. Brass, prominent real estate men of Calgary, Alta., have been in this city for the past week, says the Great Falls, Mont., Leader. "Galgarly probably has more paved streets than any other city in the Canadian Northwest," they say today. Its miles of Bitulthic streets have been quite a boost for the town. Large contracts for this type of paving have been let this year, showing the satisfaction given by this type of paving. All our heavy traffic streets are now being paved with bitulthic, after trying various other kinds.

Let Kids Ask Questions.

There is a great deal of truth in the old quotation, "Let me train a child till he is eight years old, and I care not who has his training afterward," most of the habits that are to rule its life being formed by that.

Children showing a particular bent in any direction should be encouraged, whether it be skating, reading, drawing or something else. If the child has a propensity for asking questions, it should also be encouraged by answering its questions as well as circumstances will allow. It is a faculty deadening method to tell a child that it asks too many questions.

Grown-ups, instead of trying to keep children quiet, should learn to sleep by the aid of the noise and not in spite of it, and they should always vote for school committee members who advocate the smallest possible classes in school.

Children should never be frightened by telling them that they will be turned over to the mercies of a bear, a bogey man or the doctor. The practice sometimes destroys a child's belief in or respect for parent or guardian.

Children's lies should not be regarded too seriously, as they often result merely from a vivid imagination. Severe punishment should seldom be given for fibs, but rather gentle admonition, otherwise the child will aim not to get found out in its lying rather than to avoid lying itself. Above all, to make truthful children parents should set a good example themselves.

Even the stealing of money is not a heinous offense, and can be cured by gentle remonstrance and argument. Formulas for politeness should be avoided. Politeness should be based on good-will. If it is based on insincerity it is of no value.

As to children being "seen and not heard," they should be heard as much as possible, save on rare occasions of great seriousness, and the general conversation when children are present should be on subjects interesting to children.—Dr. C. P. Putnam, in the Journal of Education.

Mrs. Lena Love, wife of Wiley Love, a farmer living near Covena, Ga., says: "I have taken Foley Kidney Pills and find them to be all you claim for them. They gave me almost instant relief when my kidneys were sluggish and inactive. I can cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers from kidney trouble." Lamar's Drug Store.

They Put an End to It.

Charles Sabie, 30 Cook St., Rochester, N. Y., says he recommends Foley Kidney Pills at every opportunity because they gave him prompt relief from a bad case of kidney trouble that had long bothered him. Such a recommendation, coming from Mr. Sabie, is direct and convincing evidence of the great curative qualities of Foley Kidney Pills. Lamar's Drug Store.

THE SOFT ANSWER.

General Scott's Retort to His Whist Partner's Apology.

After his retirement General Scott passed the summer of 1882 at Cozen's hotel, West Point, where every evening a party of gentlemen adjourned to the general's sitting room for their game. Being a good player, the host was usually victorious, but if he and his partner were ever beaten Scott's ire was made manifest.

One night it happened that the usual party was missing. What was to be done? The general must have his whist. There happened to be staying at the hotel a judge, who was asked to do the favor of taking the fourth hand. With some protest on his part he agreed to do it. By cutting for partners the general and the judge played together and were beaten—horribly beaten.

Knowing how it irritated the general to lose the game, the judge as he rose from the table said in his most dignified and courtly way: "I formerly played a fairly good game of whist, but have been out of practice so long that I am somewhat rusty. I hope that fact may be taken as an excuse for my mistakes."

Whereupon the general arose with equal dignity and retorted, "I am glad that I have been playing with latent talent and not with a natural born fool!"

MISSED THE MARK.

It Was Not the Minister's Fault That His Shafts Went Astray.

Mr. McDougall was a Scotsman, and of him a good story is told. He was a large, pompous man, intolerably self-conceited and arrogant—in fact, his conduct toward his neighbors was so offensive that the good people successfully requested their minister to preach a sermon directed at their vain neighbor.

The day came. The little kirk was packed, though a few tender hearted ones stayed at home, not wishing to witness their neighbor's humiliation.

The sermon began, and Mr. McDougall disposed himself to listen. The man's infirmity was sketched with bold, severe strokes. He smiled with lofty superiority. As the denunciation grew more scathing his smile deepened with a touch of complacent pity. At the conclusion of the service he swaggered down the aisle. One of the elders joined him.

"Well, what did ye think of the sermon?" the latter ventured to ask.

"A great effort, sir," was the answer, "but personal. The minister aimed his shots too directly. Poor MacTavish! I felt sorry for him, but the man's conceit is enormous, sir!"

A Shear Wasted of Money.

"When I played politics and little else," observed "Indian Jim" Finlay, "I was delegated to raise a subscription for a well known politician who first saw the light of day in the Emerald Isle. It was to be a present to him to be installed in the parlor of a new house he was about to move into. Among those I tackled for a contribution was an Irishman who had been born in the same town and came across the pond about the same time as the politician. I told him what was to be bought with the money, and as he put his name down for a dollar, he blurted out:

"I was born and brought up with Blank, and it is like throwing money in the river buying the likes of him / chandler, as the devil of a note can he play on it."—Kansas City Journal.

Boston's Spinning School.

Comparatively few people know that there was once a "spinning school" on Boston common. Winsor's "Memorial History of Boston" records that upon the arrival in Boston of some Irish spinners and weavers a spinning craze took possession of the town, and the women, young and old, high and low, rich and poor, flocked into the spinning school, which for want of better quarters was set up in the common, in the open air. Here the whirl of their wheels was heard from morning to night. Thirty-five years later the Society For Encouraging Industry and Employing the Poor again used the common as a spinning school, about 300 young women appearing there, seated at their wheels, as a sort of example and advertisement.

A Curious Will.

By the terms of the will of one Dr. Wilde of St. Ives parish, Huntingdonshire, England, his trustees were directed to spend £50 in the purchase of a piece of land in St Ives, the annual rent of which was to be set aside for the purchase of six Bibles at a cost of 7 shillings each. To decide who shall have them be requested his trustees to "prepare a saucer with three dice upon the altar table of the parish church and let the Bibles be raffled for."

A Worse Stage.

Solitude and the Crowd.

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion. It is easy in solitude to live after our own, but the great test is to be who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

The shortest life is long enough if it leads to a better, and the longest life is too short if it do not.—Colton.

TALE OF A ROYAL RELIC.

Window Panes Upon Which Henry of Navarre Had Not Written.

Mrs. Andrew Lang, writing in Blackwood's, tells of a Frenchman in whose chateau was a window on which Henry IV. had once scratched the inscription: "Dieu garde de mal ma uie; Ce 22 de Septembre, 1583.—Henry." The inscription when M. Eudel first saw it was in two lines of big, clumsy letters. Two years later, being again in the neighborhood, he revisited the chateau, when he was astonished to find that the inscription was now in three lines, with the letters much more neatly uniform. After some effort he got hold of the secret. For forty years the inscription on the window had been the guide's pride and pleasure till, in one fatal moment of inattention on his part, an Englishman had cut the pane of glass out of its setting and walked away with it in his pocket.

The poor guide hurried to tell his master what had befallen him. The owner of the chateau assured him that the incident was of no consequence and could soon be put right. And so it was! A piece of glass of the same tone as the other panes was procured and fastened lightly in its place. The guide received orders to turn his back so as to allow visitors to read the inscription—or, if they wished, to steal it.

But it was necessary for the man to perceive in the nick of time what was going on and only consent to shut his eyes on the receipt of a handsome tip (the amount fixed beforehand, two-thirds of which was to go to his master).

A SOLDIER OF FORTUNE.

Strenuous Career of William Walker, the Noted Filibuster.

William Walker, the noted filibuster and soldier of fortune, was born in Nashville, Tenn., on May 8, 1824. For a time he was an editor in New Orleans and in 1850 went to California. In the summer of 1853 he organized an expedition for the conquest of the Mexican state of Sonora. He captured several small towns; but his provisions and ammunition running short, he crossed the border into the United States and surrendered to the government officials. He was tried at San Francisco for violating the neutrality laws, but was acquitted.

Walker's next venture was an invasion of Nicaragua, where he was for a time successful and had himself proclaimed president. Later he was driven from the country. Late in 1858 he started with a force of adventurers for Honduras, but a shipwreck caused a suspension of the expedition.

In June, 1860, he made a second attempt and captured the town of Truxillo, but was compelled to flee and subsequently surrendered to the captain of the British sloop of war Iscaram, by whom he was handed over to the Honduran government. He was condemned by court martial and on Sept. 12, 1860, was shot to death at Truxillo.

First Recorded Yacht Race.

A race across the Atlantic ocean would have seemed a wild romance to King Charles II. when he took a leading part in the first recorded yacht race. "I sailed this morning," says Evelyn on Oct. 1, 1661, "with his majesty in one of his yachts, or pleasure boats, vessels not known among us till the Dutch East India company presented that curious piece to the king, being very excellent sailing vessels. It was on a wager between his other new pleasure boat, built frigate-like, and one of the Duke of York's; the wager, 100g; the race from Greenwich to Gravesend and back. The king lost it going, the wind being contrary, but saved stakes in returning. There were divers noble persons and lords on board, his majesty sometimes steering himself."

Old Parr's Possible Age.

One of the last services Dean Stanley did for Westminster abbey was to cause the almost effaced inscription over the celebrated old Parr's grave to be recut. It is as follows: "Tho' Parr of ye County of Salop, borne in AD 1483. He lived in ye reigns of Ten Princes viz., K. Edw. 4, K. Edw. 5, K. Rich. 3, K. Hen. 7, K. Hen. 8, K. Edw. 6, Q. Ma., Q. Eliz., Ka. Ja. & K. Charles. Aged 152 years, and was Buried Here November 15, 1635"

The "old Countess of Desmond," who is said to have died at the age of 140, is mentioned by Lord Bacon, Archbishop Usher and Sir William Temple. The first assures us that "she did dentice (renew her teeth) twice or thrice, casting her old teeth, and others coming in their place."—London Graphic.

The Way Spaniards Smoke.

The Spaniards are the most expert smokers in the world. A native takes a heavy puff at his cigarette, inhales the smoke, takes up a wine skin or bottle, pours half a pint down his throat, holding the vessel a foot from his mouth, without spilling a drop, and then, with a sigh of satisfaction, closes his eyes and exhales the smoke from his nose and mouth in clouds. He will also inhale the smoke, converse for a few minutes in a natural manner and then blow out the smoke.

A Serious Moment.

"Yes," said the worried man meditatively, "when you see a woman hanging out a line of clothes and the line slips and lets the blessed lot down in the mud, that, my boy, is the psychological moment in which to leave that woman alone."

So It Was.
