It is a well settled rule in Oregon that the notices reunired by statute to be given for a special election, constitute a condition precedent which must be observed in order to validate the measure to be voted at such election. The purpose of the notices is to inform the legal voters of the time, place and object of the election.

Considering now the evidence produced by defendants, it appears that a petition, containing a requisite number of signatures, was presented to the county court of Tillamook county, requesting that the question of incorporating the port be submitted to the legal voters; that the county court made an order providing for the holding of a special election therefor, and directing the county clerk to give directing the county clerk to give notice of such election to be held on the twenty-fourth day of August, 1909; that at a special session of the court on the 31st day of August, 1909; 248 votes the 31st day of August, 1909; 248 votes having been cast in favor of incorporating the port and 172 votes against the same, the court made and entered a proclamation declaring the Port of Tillamook to be duly incorporated as a municipal corporation, pursuant to the act of 1909; that thereafter the governor appointed a boari of five commissioners for said port consisting of the sioners for said port, consisting of the defendants, H. T. Botts, A. G. Beals, D. Fitzpatrick, James Walton, Jr., and M. F. Leach, who duly qualified; that the commissioners, H. T. Botts and D. Fitzpatrick were re-elected at the general, November 8, 1910, their term having exired; and that they qualified as such commissioners. Their certificates of election and appointment were produced in evidence.

As far as the form of the proceedings are concerued, we think the defendants made a prima facie case. The statute does not require a record of the posting of such election notices. The defendants show a compliance with The defendants show a compliance with the statute up to the time that it was the duty of the clerk to issue and mail notices to the judges and clerks of the election in the different precincts. Then the law steps in with the presumption that this official duty has been regularly performed, which in itself stands as prima facie evidence that the notices were issued and posted. were issued and posted.

The circuit court found that, pursuant to the order of the county court, the county clerk duly issued notices for the plaint. The reply put in issue the matter contained in answer. Upter the trial of the cause in the circuit rt, it was agreed that the burden of of was upon the defendents, of introduced evidence, but duced none showing that dices of the election had been led or posted. were issued and posted.

The circuit court found that, pursuant to the order of the county clerk duly issued notices for the holding of a special election called by such order; that the notices were, transmitted to the respective judges and clerks of the election in the various precincts described in the petition; and that the notices were, by such judges and clerks, duly posted within their several precincts more than 10 days prior to the holding of such election. This finding was warranted by the evi lence.

The real cause of the controversy in this case was the extension of the limits of the original Port of Tillamook. It is asserted by the relators that there was no staute authorizing ore, in the recent case of State ex nf. Rrown v. Sengstachon, Or., 122 Pac. Rep. 292.

We will take up the questions reterred to in the inverse order. In an extion partsking of the nature of quo varranto, in the absence of any legistation, in the absence of any legistation or controlling consideration to the owarray, the rule that the onus proband is npon the respondent, applies, and the defendants must prove the aristence of the corporate franchiso which they are alleged to have surped, and their title to the offices, with the wrongful claim or usurpation of which they are charged.

We find that in ordinary civil actions, the hand that in ordinary civil actions, the handen rests upon the plaintiff to allege and prove his title to the thing in controversy. In quo warranto provediars, we find the rule reversed, and treat upon the respondent to show its title to the office or franchise in mispota. If he falls to show complete bila, tadgment is rendered against him while in civil actions plaintiff recovers from the own title, in an action in the lature of quo warranto, the respondent must show that he has a good title as a ralest the government.

Mr. Dillion, in his work on Municial Corporations, Vol. 4 (5 ed.). Sec. 1655, says: "In a proceeding by information in the nature of a quo warrante with the defendant must either discussions in the antered to intended to affect only agreement and expressions, or to operate in specified localities only. If a municipal corporation is permitted to extend its boundaries step by step, indefinitely, without the sanction of the state or people of the districts included in the extensions, it would subversive of the very plan as expressed by the people in their sovereign power through the ballot, and not a reasonable exercise of the power conferred. To this extent In Section 1554 Id., we find the fol-lowing: "The certificate of election of the power conferred. In Section 1554 Id., we find the following: "The certificate of election of an officer, or his commission, coming from the proper source, is prima facie evidence in favor of the holder; and in every proceeding, except a direct one to try the title of such holder, it is conclusive; but in quo warranto the court will go behind the certificate or commission, and inquire into the validity of the election or appointment, and decide the legal rights of the parties upon full investigation of the facts."

It is a well settled rule in Oregon that the notices required by statute to be given for a special election, constitute a condition precedent which must be observed in order to validate the measure to be voted at such election. The purpose of the notices is to inform the legal voters of the time, place and object of the election.

Considering now the evidence produced by defendants, it appears that a petition, containing a requisite number of signatures, was presented to the constitution to this extent, the power conferred. To this extent, the pover conferred. To this extent, the power conferred. To this extent, the power conferred. To this extent, the power conferred. To this extent, the proceedings in question are not "local" or "pecalis" within the meaning of the constitution, and are not germane to the government of the port. They are inconsistent with the constitution, and are not germane to the government of the power conferred. To call "or are inconsistent within the meaning of the constitutio, and are not germane to the government of the port. They are inconsistent within th to the people of a numicipal corpor-ation, permitting the enactment of a ation, permitting the enactment of a local measure for the extension of the boundaries of the municipality so as to include a large section of country, without the consent of the legal voters who reside in the area to be annexed. There is no doubt but that the people of the whole state could pass such a law. The assumption of such power by the Port of Tillamook is not in consenance with our laws granting to consenance with our laws granting to municipalities and districts, the privimunicipalities and districts, the privi-lege to enact local or special laws.

An attempt was made to repeal the charter granted to the Port of Tilla-mook by the legislature, the effect thereof was not a reorganization of the port within the contemplation of the provisions of the laws of 1909. We see no reason why the original Port of Tillamook is not a valid corporation.

It appears that the main purpose of election was to change the boundaries of the Port of Tillamook so as to em-prace new territory. The question of annexation was not submitted in such a manner as to allow the legal voters of the area to be amended, to vote separately from those within the limits of the municipality. It is indicated, as far as can be ascertained from the ballot, that the outside voters were opted. posed to annexation. The election held, and the action taken pursuant thereto, did not effectuate an enlargement of the port, and were unauthorized and void.

A discussion of many of the ques-tions referred to in the briefs, would be unfruitful, as the necessary legis-lation for the extention of the boundaries of incorporated ports was enacted in 1911. In conformity with section 3, article VII of the constitution of this state, all of the evidence being contained in the record, the judgment of the lower court will be reversed and a judgement entered here in accordance with this opinion.

Poor Old Boy.

I visited today the old home place, the place I lived when a lad; Where I whittled and fished from morn to night, or worked the ploy with dad:

I heard again the mocking birds sing, as once they sang with joy, But it seemed the song they sang today was "Poor old boy."

Through rooms that held memories of the past I wondered all alone, In the dark I found a trundle bed that once had been my own. I fancy I heard my mother's voice, again we knelt to pray.

But instead of "Lay me down to sleep," "Poor old boy," she seemed to say.

Down past the yard o'vergrown with weeds, down past the old oak

The old plow leaned against the fence; as I raised it from its bed, All coveree with rust, it mournfully creaked, "Poor old boy," was what it said.

down cast a shadow by my side Of buildings tall, and I could hear the din and noise outside.

The whirl of cars through the crow

ed streets, the ceasetess, unending tread

Of the crowds below seemed to chant a strain, "Poor old boy," o'er and o'er they said.

O dear old homestead of the past! O dreams that n'er come true My heart goes out in the silent night through long years back to

And I know if tonight you could make a wish, a wish you know would come true.
