

DAIRYMEN CELEBRATE DEFEAT OF PORT

Ralph R. Duniway Urges Them to get together for Harbor Improvements.

Urging the people in the different cities about Tillamook to get together for the purpose of carrying out whatever improvements may be required, with the assistance of the Federal Government, for making the bay accessible at all times to vessels of deep-sea draught, Ralph R. Duniway, of Portland, counsel for the people of Fairview in their fight against the incorporation of the larger Port of Tillamook, occupied over on Sunday in an address before nearly 200 farmers at the Grange hall of Fairview, in the midst of the dairy section of Tillamook County.

The occasion was the celebration of the recent victory of the farmers of Fairview over the people representing the new Port of Tillamook Dairymen with their families, filled the grange hall and overflowed into the pretty grove near by. A barbecue was the first order of the day, after which Mr. Duniway, who had represented the people in the recent port case, was called upon by Chairman Henry Leach to explain in detail the circumstances which had led to the decision of the Supreme Court.

"The decision in this case," said Mr. Duniway, "is similar to that given in the Coos Bay case and the affair in connection with the proposed annexation of St. John's by the Port of Portland. It means that no municipality is permitted to commit suicide; that no other municipality can be absorbed by another without the consent of the municipality."

Asked to speak on the subject of single tax, Mr. Duniway urged to vote "No" on the amendment covering single tax when it was presented this Fall, declaring that he felt the cause of the country was the constant changing of laws. He advocated more careful enforcement of existing laws rather than the enactment of additional ones which might or might not be as effective as those now on the statute books. "Unless you feel certain the change is decidedly for the better," said Mr. Duniway, "vote against this proposition."

Game Was a Farce.

Sunday afternoon at the Stillwell Park, the remains of the Commercial Club team played the Hebo team a game that according to the reports was so filled with runs that it was impossible to keep track of the score. A number of vacancies were made in the team when some of the boys went to the valley with the "hickers," and to patch up these places some of the boys about town were used.

For about the first seven innings the teams played according to the line-up, John Stuart pitching for the home team the first four innings while Armbruster caught. However at the end of this inning Kirk, the new recruit of the Club team, went into the box and pitched to Armbruster.

By this time the score was so large that it was decided to give Hebo Millis and Peterson as batteries in order to make the game more interesting for the spectators. However the larger part of the crowd became disgusted and left the grounds before the game was brought to a close. Some reports are that the score was 31 to 2 and others that it was 17 to 2 and still others range all the way between these two reports.

The entire game was spiced with amusement. At one time Millis ran across the diamond to catch a throw ball and upon catching it he held it up in the air and shouted, "How's that for Hebo?"

Although this game was not exciting, T. B. Handley promises to give the fans all the base ball excitement next Sunday and during the week of the Fourth that they will want.

BOOST BEACH RESORT.

Portland Business Men Visit Bayocean and Other Interesting Summer Resorts.

When the Portland excursion left Tillamook City Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock for Bayocean, they had with them a representation from this city which although not very large in number, was yet composed of a few men who did their utmost to show the people from Portland that Tillamook was an important place on the map. The members of the Tillamook delegation were President Shrode, of the Commercial Club; Attorney Webster Holmes; Captain John Groat; Ira C. Smith, of King & Smith; W. H. Gordon, of Lytle & Gordon; W. Spaulding, of the Tillamook Light and Fuel Co.; Chester Holden, County Clerk; and Elbert Ginn, representing the Tillamook Headlight.

At Bay City the special excursion train, which took the crowd to Garibaldi from this city, stopped to take on a delegation from the Bay City Commercial Club, then hurried on to the famous old town of Garibaldi where they boarded the yacht Bayocean and went to the famous Bayocean, the beach resort that will eventually make the south side of the bay one large city.

When they reached Bayocean they found the streets paved, good cement walks, and their guide, Webster Holmes, took them to the Commercial Club rooms, which by the way were built in one day and have the appearance of a palace. Of course they were not polished and painted in that time, but all of the construction work was complete within ten hours from the time the work was started.

The party then went to the Hotel Bayocean where they prepared themselves for dinner and talked for a few minutes. Then came the whistle, one that George M. Hyland, the leader of the excursion had brought with him for the express purpose of giving signals and incidentally to make lots of noise. At this time it told that dinner was ready for one of the merriest crowds that ever visited a beach resort, regardless of its location.

During the dinner hour the crowd was given a continuous treat in the way of music, both instrumental and vocal, and toasts. The instrumental music was given by a stringed orchestra directed by Arthur von Jessen and Mrs. Dudel one of Portland's leading soprano singers, sang a number of selections, one of which, a boosting song, composed by herself, made a decided hit with the crowd.

The speakers of the evening were D. L. Shrode, president of the Tillamook Commercial Club; George H. Root, of Bay City; J. M. Scott, general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific; Attorney Webster Holmes, of Tillamook; Adjt General W. E. Finzer, of the Oregon National Guard; F. V. Healey, A. L. Finley, Mrs. J. M. Tift, Dr. Amelia Zeigler, Dr. K. P. Gray, and R. W. Wilson, of Portland, and T. Irving Potter, owner of Bayocean and one of the biggest boosters in the Northwest. Geo. M. Hyland, leader of the party, was toastmaster.

Mr. Potter showed how the expenditure of one million dollars on a beach resort in southern California was the cause of the city of Los Angeles being built and predicted that the improvements of our beaches would bring about the same for this city. He said in part, "Let every one write to their friends in the east and invite them to spend their vacation in Oregon, and Bayocean will get her share." He further said, "We do not ask for you to talk Bayocean but we want to make Bayocean a resort that will attract people when they come to this state."

Mr. Finzer stated in his talk that he was here for a double purpose, one to find a place to encamp one regiment of the Oregon National Guard and another for pleasure.

George M. Hyland, the silver-tongued orator, made several good talks, at times he would get so full of thoughts that he had to tell them and each time he would hold his audience motionless under his flow of oratory.

All of the party seemed very well pleased with our beaches and made it known that they would not let this be the last visit.

Moroney Canal.

The Town of Moroney fronting on Garibaldi beach, on the Rail Road and on Lake Lytle and between the Towns of Lytle and Manhattan, is now being platted. See Moroney on the place.

One of the points to be insisted on at the Baltimore convention is that a majority ought to be enough. The two-thirds rule, a relic of slavery politics, illustrates the Democratic style of progressive-ness.

Hay Crop for Sale.

For Sale,—the hay crop on 20 acres of prairie land G. H. Ward.

The New York Produce Exchange explains the high cost of bread by pointing out that 60 per cent of the crops is now consumed in the making of alcoholic liquors. This argument was used by the W. C. T. U. in the Missouri prohibition campaign, and failed. We don't know that the New York Produce Exchange can make it more effective, even though supported by the Bureau of Statistics.

The Department of Agriculture tells a rather pleasing story to the country. While there will be a falling off in winter wheat, as compared with 1911, as has been expected, the spring wheat makes an unlooked for favorable showing, which will make the total wheat yield 7,000,000 bushels greater than it was last year. As the harvest for wheat is so near at hand, the government's figures are not likely to be changed materially in the few weeks which separate us from the gathering of the crop. A large gain is shown to be probable in oats and barley, and a smaller, but important, increase is likely to come in rye.

TESTED HER TEMPER.

And She Took Her Medicine With Thanks and a Laugh.
"What was the coolest act of self-possession you ever witnessed?" a friend asked of a noted animal trainer.
"Well, I guess you're looking for yarns about lions and tigers," replied he. "I've seen all the best tricks and some mighty quick stunts that weren't in the regular program, but I saw something that hit me harder than any of these. It was at dinner at a palatial hotel in Palm Beach. Opposite me sat a young lady with her dowager mamma and a swell that I took to be the fiance. The girl was beautiful, dressed like a princess and a lot more human looking than her two companions. By some blunder a very awkward waiter served her, and in one of his flourishes he managed to pour the contents of a full finger bowl squarely on the girl's head. The water trickled over the elaborate coiffure, reached her face and dripped on her bare arms and neck. Mamma positively snarled; my lord fiance began to bluster, but that thoroughbred American beauty glanced at the waiter's crimson face and gave a clear, sweet laugh.
"I'm so thankful it wasn't coffee or soup," she said, and not another word.
"That was the coolest act of self-possession I ever saw."—New York Press.

THE ELEPHANT'S TRUNK.

It May Justly Be Called One of the Miracles of Nature.
The trunk of the elephant may justly be considered as one of the miracles of nature, being at once the organ of respiration, as well as the instrument by which the animal supplies itself with food. Nearly eight feet in length, endowed with exquisite sensibility and stout in proportion to the massive size of the animal, this organ will uproot trees or gather grass—raise a piece of artillery or take up a nut, kill a man or brush off a fly.
It conveys the food to the mouth and pumps up enormous draughts of water, which, by its recurvature, are turned into and driven down the capacious throat or showered over the body. Its length supplies the place of a long neck, which would have been incompatible with the support of the large head and heavy tusks. A glance at the head of an elephant will show the thickness and strength of the trunk at its insertion; and the massy arched bones of the face and thick, muscular neck are admirably adapted for supporting and working this powerful and wonderful instrument.

An Unruffled Statesman.

In the early days, when the people sent their wisest men to make the public laws, a man of peculiar traits, but of sterling worth, was sent to the Massachusetts legislature from the town of Douglas. He wore an old fashioned farmer's frock, which was sadly out of place in the legislative hall, where some of the fastidious statesmen from Boston and other cities vied with each other in the correctness of their attire.
Soon after the arrival of the Douglas man one of the Boston representatives, seeking an opportunity to have fun at his expense, called out to him, "Have they no smarter men than you to send to the legislature from your district?"
The man from Douglas smiled innocently as he replied, "There's a heap of smarter men up my way, but the mischief of it is they hain't got no clothes good enough to wear down here!"—Boston Herald.

Geometry.

Geometry, so called from its original application to measuring the earth, is generally believed to have had its origin among the Egyptians. It probably sprang from the surveyor's art. The annual inundation of the Nile carried away all landmarks and boundaries, and some scientific means of settling the disputes incidental thereto had to be devised; hence surveying, the undoubted fountainhead of geometry. Geometry is said to have been introduced into Greece by the philosopher Thales about the year 600 B. C. The science was cultivated by Pythagoras, through whom it was made popular in Greece, from which country it spread over the then known world.—New York American.

Irving Would Have to Hustle.

When Henry Irving was making one of his last tours of the country he found himself with an open date in Michigan. His manager wired the manager of a small opera house in a nearby place, asking if he could use Irving on the night in question. The following message came back:
"What does Irving do?"
The manager used up much expensive space on the wire explaining the leading points about Irving and for his pains received the following reply: "Cannot use Irving in this town unless Irving can parade."—Judge.

Amended.

When a Scotch schoolmaster entered the temple of learning one morning he read on the blackboard, "Our teacher is a donkey."

The pupils expected there would be a cyclone, but the philosophic pedagogue contented himself with adding the word "driver" and opened the school as usual.

Afraid of Him?

"You are not afraid of me, are you?" yelled the lawyer at the witness who had been scared speechless by his cross examination.
"No, no," muttered the witness, and the lawyer had saved the point in the record.—Green Bag.

The greatest of faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.—Caryle.
