COURT OF ST. JAMES.

What a Presentation to English Royal ty Means Socialty.

There is no need for jealousy and exat about presentations at court. Any respectable American girl can be presented at the court of St. James if she have sufficient influence with some lady who is even mildly persons grats at court. And when a girl or a matron has been presented then the matter ninety-nine cases out of a bundred comes to an abrupt end.

The social cachet amounts to no more than this-that the lord chamberlain has made an inquiry into your antecedents and found nothing in their history to cause comment. In the case of Americans the inquiry cannot be anything but perfunctory.

Some people imagine that a presenta tion at court is followed immediately by an invitation to the next state din ner or the next state concert or the next state tes and muffins. Nothing of the kind. You must attain or inherit great social importance or be representative in some way before the king and queen ask you to dine with them.

Presentation is a pretty laborious and expensive ceremony, signifying to any one who is not in the inner social ring in London nothing. - New York Telegraph.

A COLOSSAL HARP.

Veritan's Acolian Giant Had Strings 320 Feet In Length.

The largest harp ever made, so as is known, was that invented and constructed by M. Veritan, provost of Burkli, near Basel. It was known as the cleantic meteorological acolian feelings became too much for her. S harp. It was 320 feet in length and was confessed and demanded sympathy. erected in the garden of its inventor in 1787.

This harp consisted of fifteen iron wires, 320 feet in length, stretched between two poles. The wires were from two to three inches apart, the largest being one-sixth of an inch in thickness and the smallest one-twelfth of an inch. They were placed in the direction of north and south and inclined in such a manner as to form an angle of from twenty to thirty degrees with the horizon, being stretched by means of rollers properly disposed for the purpose.

Whenever the weather changed the wires sounded with such loudness that it was impossible to go on with a concert in the house. The sound sometimes represented the hissing noise of water in rapid ebuilition, sometimes that of a barmonicon and sometimes that of distaut chimes or an organ .- Exchange.

Paul Revere, Dentist.

Was Paul Revere a dentist? The following advertisement published in the Boston Gazette and Country Journal of Revere's time is believed to prove that he was: "Whereas, many their Fore-teeth by Accident and oth erways, to their great Detriment, not since. only in Looks, but speaking both in Public and Private:- This is to inform all such that they may have them replaced with artificial ones, that looks Paul of Dr. Clarke's Wharf. Boston.

Whether the sum total of energy in existence is increasing or decreasing is unknown. Man may cause energy to change from one mode or form to another, but there is no annihilation nor increase. Energy may be created or destroyed by the Creator and the fact escape detection in this colossal universe, which has not, by any means. been fully explored.

The Problem of Force.

The entire problem of force, or energy, is being studied in laboratories with renewed activity and with the aid of instruments of ever increasing accuracy. Space may bold wonders yet undetected. Thus energy in a form not at present known may reside there.

A number of recent experiments have revealed effects that are inexplicable by any laws known to science. These researches were made in light . The results of studies now being made are awaited with great interest. A new electronic theory of light may be formulated-that is, light may be radiating rays of excessively minute bodies at least 1,000 times less than the by drogen atom -New York American.

Two Versions.

Miss Jane Barlow's first contribution to literature was some verses that she sent to the Cornhill Magazine while still in her teens. She awaited the editor's reply with girlish engerness. When it came it was a shock:

"I have no use for your silly verses. She was, naturally, mortified and hurt. A plain rejection would have been bad enough. One worded so scornfully was sheer, unnecessary croelty. She endured her misery in soiltude for awhile-ber family knew nothing of her literary venture-but her feelings became too much for her. She But when she showed the letter the sprawling editorial bleroglyphics, read with more calmness and with the whole family to interpret, took on a surprisingly different significance. He had written:

"I hope to use your pretty verses."-Youth's Companion.

A recently published work on the social conditions of the last century reminds us that trousers were invented by the Duke of Wellington, who was called upon to pay a heavy price for his temerity. Men, we are told, lashed themselves into fury at a gar ment that reduced all legs to a common level. The graduates of the universities were refused admission to dining hail and chapel with the detested trousers, while the Iron Duke himself was excluded from Almack's when he presented himself wearing his pet abominations. But the conqueror of Napoleon was not to be resisted in his far greater task of conquering public opinion. There was something about the pantaloous that commended them persons are so unfortunate as to lose to the so called mind of the masses, and we have been wearing them ever

Curved Arms of Flywheels. A great many people imagine that the arms of flywheels and pulleys are as well as the Natural & answers the curved for the sake of beauty and end of Speaking to all intents, by graceful appearance. But this is not Revere, Goldsmith, near the so. In the making of these wheels they are cast in sand from molten iron poured in. As the arms are of less thickness and body than the heavy rim and the hub, they begin to cool off quicker. By the time the arms are "set" the rim and hub are still cooling and contracting, and the effect of their shrinkage is to cause a very powerful pull on the arms. As the latter are solidly set they become sehoney seems to be much better under. verely strained, but if the arms are stood than in the United States, enor- curved they withstand the pull that mous quantities are used. Tickled the Buffaloes How a Yankee railroad man once western Kansas and signally failed is related by a ploneer of Pawnee county. Early settlers remember that for miles you could see a white polished belt on every telegraph pole where buffaloes had polished their shaggy hide when tormented by buffalo gnats. 1 was told that many poles were broken by the vast army of scratching animais. A certain railroad official who lived in Boston, where the shoes were made, bought all the pegging awls on the market and had the section men drive them into the posts until they looked like glant cactuses. The herds came and saw and conquered. They fought for first place at the poles and tickled their mangy hides with the awis, which were broken by the joyful buils that still scratched on the remnants until the poles fell. Needless to say, the remaining awis were withdrawn from service at once.-Kansas City Journal.

Silent Wisdom.

Keep still. When trouble is brewing. keep still. Even when slander is getting on his legs, keep still. When your feelings are burt, keep still-till you recover from your excitement at any rate. Things look differently through an unagitated eye.

Dr. Burton relates how once in a commotion he wrote a letter and sent It and wished he had not, "In my later years," he said, "I had another comnotion and wrote a long letter, but life had rubbed a little sense into me. and I kept that letter in my pocket against the day when I could look it over without agitation and without tears. I was glad I did. Less and less it seemed necessary to send it. I was not sure it would do any hurt, but in my doubtfulness I leaned to reticence, and eventually it was destroyed." Time works wonders. Wait till you can speak calmiy, and then you will not need to speak, maybe.

Candlelight,

In domestic lighting for nearly the first balf of the last century candles held undisputed sway. The bell is rung, and Mary brings in candles, a pair of molds in tall brass candlesticks brightly polished, with snuffers on a tray-a sharp beaked snuffers of steel, with jaws that opened and shut with a snap and something sinister in their appearance. There were plated candiesticks and snuffers, too, for occasions of state, with silver branches that suggested the spoils of Jerusalem. but there was also a lamp, a stately edifice of bronze that towered over the family circle at times and shed a generous and genial light when so ined. But what a demon it was to moke and to smell! And it would burn, when it condescended to burn at all, pothing but the very finest sperm of at a fabulous price per gailon.-London Globe

Old Time Simple Manners.

Richard Evelyn, who died in 1706, aments in his diary the vanishing of "the simple manners that prevailed in his younger days." "Men," he says. "courted and chose their wives for their modesty, frugality, keeping at omical virtues then in reputation. The virgins and young ladies of that golden age put their hands to the spindle, nor disdained they the needle; were obsequious and helpful to their parents, instructed in the managery of the family and gave presages of making excellent wives. Their retirements were devout and religious books and their recreations in the distillatory, the knowledge of plants and their virtues, for the comfort of their poor neighbors and use of their family, which wholesome, plain diet fod kitchen physic preserved in perfert bealth." Had a Good Opinion of Himself. Wordsworth considered "The Excurton" his best poem and next to it "The White Doe of Ryistone." He once said that when he first thought seriously of being a poet he looked into himself to see how he was fitted for the work and seemed to find there "that first great gift, the vital soul," a statement which shows that, whatever other people may think of him, he had passably fair opinion of himself. He frequently expressed his opinion of his own poetry and once said that he had widened the domain of the poet over whole field deemed irreclaimable.

Ventriloquism. Ventriloquism is no science, but mere y a trick in the manipulation of the volce, which after much practice is able to be done in a way to deceive. It consists merely in the varied modifications of the sounds produced in the larynx in imitation of the modifications which distance imposes upon the voice The essential mechanism of ventrilo quism consists in taking a full breath. then keeping the muscles of the neck and chest fixed and speaking with the mouth almost closed and the lips and lower jaw as motionless as possible. while air is very slowly expelled through a narrow glottis. Care is also taken that none of the expired air es capes through the nose. Much of the ventriloquist's skill, however, in fultating sounds coming from particular directions depends on deceiving other senses than hearing. The direction from which sounds reach the ear is never very clearly distinguished, and when the attention is directed to a par ticular point the imagination is apt to refer to that point whatever sounds we may hear .- Philadelphia Press.

The Tree In the Picture

I confess that to me much of the delight of an early morning landscape of Corot or Claude Monet is due in no small measure to the music of sing ing birds. Though not one is to be seen, I am sure they are there.

There is a story told of Corot that he was once painting in a wood, while near him sat another painter whose creed was to record things in nature just as they are. Coming over to the easel of Pere Corot, he said:

"Why, you are not painting this scene at all as it really is. You have left out that large rock yonder and put in a birch tree-there is no such tree to be seen.'

With a confluing smile Corot replied: "If you'll not say anything about it, I will tell you why I put in that birch It was to please the birds."-Atlantic

When Brodie Bluffed Mitchell,

Once, when in England, Steve Brodle, the famous bridge jumper, was in a party which included Charlie Mitchell, the prizefighter Mitchell made some remarks derogatory to John L. Sulli van, to which Brodie rejoined with some sarcastic observations on the sprinting ability Mitchell displayed while in the ring with Sullivan. This angered the prizefighter, who knocked Brodie flat. As he scrambled to his feet Mitchell made another rush at him, but by then Brodie had a pistol in his hand and, thrusting it under his assailant's nose, remarked: "You think you're goin' to make a reputation of lickin' Steve Brodie, don't you? Well, you just hit me once and there'll be a lot in the papers about it, but you won't read it." That closed the incldent
