Said a prominent dairyman on the street last week: "If the dairymen of this county are not satisfied with present prices of butter fat and intend to vote for Wilson, then we have no pity for them if the bottom falls out of business and the cheese market."

Republican Prosperity! It is to be observed that Roosevelt and Wilson both avoid this one important thing in politics, for this concerns the working and laboring classes more than anything else. Whenever there is stagnation in the industrial world this class is the first to suffer.

Taft is asking support for the Republican ticket because of the prosperity and good times in all parts of the country and because he has made good to the common people. Roosevelt, who is posing as a progressive, but is backed by Perkins and other blood-sucking corporations, is wanting support so as to override constitutional government, which will frighten capital and place the industrial world in a panic condition.

Public sentiment in this part of the county is strongly opposed to the Port of Bay City gobbling up the territory which was formerly in the Port of Tillamook. As a result, instead of bringing about a get-together spirit and unity of action, the action of the Bay City port have created an hostile feeling. There are just grounds for this, for it is neither just nor equitable to take in and leave out certain lands, making some property owners pay the expense of bar and bay improvements while other property owners, although equally benefited, are not taxed.

Ex-President Roosevelt will be badly beaten next month, for this is generally conceded, and the Bull Moose party will peter out after the crushing defeat it will sustained. This is as it should be, for it will be a good lesson to those who want to break through the time honored custom of allowing only two terms to a president. But the most wholesome lesson will be to the big trust monopolies who have furnished the money for Roosevelt's campaign with the idea of bleeding the people in the future. It is no wonder that the bottom soon dropped out of the third term bubble and that Republicans who went over to the Bull Moose party are flocking back to the old party. And it is no wonder, for they see by staying with and voting for the third term they are helping to elect Wilson, whom they are not desirous of seeing elected for fear of another dose of hard times.

The proposed road to Bayocean was again the subject of some discussion this week and another effort is being put forth to see if something cannot be done to have the road built in the near future. It is generally conceded that Bayocean is justly entitled to a road, if for no other reason than that when the T. B. Potter Realty Co. took over the peninsula all the taxes the county received was a little over $100. Now the company is paying $6,000 and the property in that vicinity pays $10,000 annually into the county treasury. Something near half a million dollars have been expended in that enterprise. This alone should justify a road being built, for as Bayocean improves, and it surely will, every dollar's worth of additional improvement made there will add to the taxes of the county. About twelve cottages were built there last summer and hundreds of other lot owners will do so as soon as they can get to Bayocean by wagon or railroad. It is now thought that the cost of building the road can be greatly reduced, bringing it down to a little over $30,000, and as it is suggested that the County Court put on a large convict crew, this would still further reduce the cost of building the road. There was a little over $8,000 subscribed by the property owners and business men towards building the road, and no doubt, by a little more effort in that direction this could be raised to $10,000. It seems to us that it would be only fair for the County Court to appropriate a like sum out of next year's taxes, as it promised to appropriate $5,000 this year, but as the survey had not been made and the legal proceedings complied with the County Court used, and rightly too, the money in improving roads in other parts of the county.

A large number of well intentioned people are giving Governor West a great deal of credit for his crusade against vice. The snap shot man is not very enthusiastic, for apart from the notoriety it will give the governor it will amount to nothing, and the taxpayers will have to pay for seeing a few skyrockets shot into the air. When Governor West openly violates the law himself and refuses to comply with the oath he took when he became governor of Oregon, it looks to most of us that a man ought to practice what he preaches, anyway. That appears to be almost the unanimous opinion of the Press of Oregon. We are in sympathy with any movement that will be of a lasting character, but we are sick and tired of seeing spasmodic moral crusades, like a flash in the pan, and in a few weeks die out. And another thing which is overlooked. Suppose Governor West does succeed in closing up the bawdy houses and driving the unfortunate women from Portland, they will crowd into the other large towns and rural districts of the state, which would only intensify moral vice and help to increase the white slave traffic. There is no doubt, whatever, there is laxity with city and county officials all over the state and they need prodding up occasionally, but if there was more moral courage amongst the citizens to back up public officials and help them to obtain the kind of evidence that will stick in court would greatly help. The remedy is in the hands of the people in each city and locality, but, somehow, they do not care to butt in and help clean up a city or locality as they should do. When the citizens and business men get a little more moral courage and their backs stiffened up some, with a determination to stay with it and not get cold feet, then, and probably not until then, will moral conditions improve. But don't give Oregon a bad name like the Governor has done, nor attempt to besmirch Tillamook, for conditions are not nearly so bad as they used to be.

The dahlia is to be the prevailing flower in Tillamook County, because it is adapted to this climate and grows to perfection. Those who experimented with the dahlia this year proved this, and as a result it is proposed by a large number of the citizens to beautify their homes and the parking in front of their residences with this beautiful and showy flower. Certainly it is a good idea to adopt one flower as the city's floral emblem, and there is no doubt whatever that the dahlia is their choice. It would be well for the Tillamook and other commercial clubs through out the county to formally adopt the dahlia as the special flower which should be cultivated in Tillamook county. In making selections and purchasing dahlia only the latest and choicest kinds should be obtained so as to secure the best results and best effects when these flowers are in bloom or on exhibition, for Tillamook is going to have a dahlia show next year that will be a credit to this city. Like most everything else, better results can be obtained by knowing how to grow dahlia scientifically and with the very best possible result. To obtain this useful information, we would advise those who contemplate planting dahlia to write to the Albany Nurseries, Albany, Ore., for their new system of propagation, for they are able to guarantee better plants and more blossoms than if propagated by the old way. Write them and they will furnish you with the information, as well as a list of the best and latest varieties of dahlia. We mention this nursery because they do a large amount of business in this county and can be relied upon. We want to create quite an interest in the growing of dahlia, for we all have enough civic pride in wanting to beautify the city next summer. Portland can boast of her roses and other cities boast of other flowers and fruits, but let the invitation go broad cast next year to witness Tillamook City's beautiful and attractive display of dahlia. Some of the property owners on different streets have organized to beautify their streets, and it is to be seen which will be the best. It might be as well to offer a premium for the street which will have the best general display of dahlia, and in doing so one resident might confine themselves to one kind or color and another resident to a different color. This is only a suggestion, for those with an artistic taste on each street can arrange this.

Smoke In Missouri. Theodore Roosevelt, third term candidate for the presidency, running on his own ticket, on his own platform, and nominated by himself, raged through Missouri last week. He abused and slandered those who opposed him and grew frantic when he happened to see Taft banners and Taft buttons in the crowds that surrounded his car.

The news dispatches tell us that in the crowd at Lamar, Missouri, was a man with a large banner bearing the words: "We want Taft; let well enough alone." The banner attracted the attention of Colonel Roosevelt. Bending over the railing of his car he pointed to the man and said: "Any man who supports the receiver of stolen goods stands on a level with the receiver of the stolen goods. He is a dishonest man and unfit to associate with honest men." Lofty sentiments coming from a candidate for the presidency of the United States isn't it? Say, you Bull Moosers don't you admire the polished manner of your god? According to Roosevelt every true blue Republican in this country is dishonest. Everybody is a thief and a liar and brigand who doesn't support his immaculate self for the presidency. This must be true, because the third-term says so himself. But, hold, there's more of it. To quote further from the news dispatches: "When the Colonel reached Springfield, he found another Taft banner and saw a number of men wearing Taft badges. 'I have noticed several Taft badges in your town,' he said in his speech, 'and they are the appropriate color of yellow. The man who puts on one shows that he has a yellow streak somewhere.'" Whenever and wherever does history hold a parallel case. Who can remember such abuse by a candidate for the high and dignified office of president of the United States, upon a political opponent? Where does history record an instance where a presidential candidate designated all who opposed him as "dishonest" and "possessed of a yellow streak" and his rival candidate a "thief." Mighty edifying spectacle isn't it? All true Americans should be proud of this Great and Noble Citizen who glibly calls the president of the United States a thief. Such methods and such language belong to the gutter and the thug. They come with poor grace from a man who has been honored with the presidency of this nation and who has been the foremost figure in American life. Will the people of the United State endorse such sentiments and commend such utterance by expressing their confidence in such a character? Will they trample on the sacred tradition of years to elevate such a man to the presidency for a third term? The Observer does not believe it, for a moment - Polk County Observer.

Valuable Comparisons. The Republican State Committee of Kentucky has issued a carefully prepared address to voters that deserve to be read throughout the country. It gets down to practical facts of importance to every citizen. A statement of what happened in the last Democratic administration is to the point in considering what may happen in another. A few months after his second term began in August, 1893, President Cleveland sent to a special session of Congress a message in which he said: "With plenteous crops, with abundant promise of remunerative production and manufacture, with unusual invitation to safe investment, and with satisfactory assurance to business enterprise, suddenly financial distrust and fear have sprung up on every side." That was the preface to several calamitous years. Before the Democratic administration was a year old millions of industrious workers were idle, and the wheels stopped turning in an immense number of once prosperous establishments. At the end of 1893 the labor union officials stated the number unable to obtain work at 3,000,000. Under the last Democratic president the value of the live stock in the country fell off $828,000,000. Seventy-four railroads went into the hands of receivers in a single year. The interest-bearing debt of the government increased $262,000,000 in a time of peace. "If the farmers, laboring men and business men," says the vigorous Kentucky address, "allow themselves to be hoodwinked into electing another Democratic president and Congress they will, like the calf that followed the steer, learn the difference at milking time." Compare the figures of the present with those of the direful Democratic period of 1893-97, and then draw the lesson that will, if common prudence is needed, govern the election near at hand. "Mr. Taft is not a politician," the Kentucky document says in conclusion "but he is safe and no man feels uneasy while he is at the helm."

Since the Democratic "tidal wave" of 1910 one state has changed sides That is Maine, which has returned to Republican control, with a gain of the Legislature, a United States senator, and one member of the House. There have always been in Maine many more Republicans than Democrats, and the state, on the eve of a national election, is restored to its usual political balance. Its electoral vote has been steadily Republican, and the Republican majority is still in evidence. There is no increase of Democratic strength, no Democratic converts. Just the same Democrats are sure that Wilson will be elected. They blindly figure on the fragmentary vote of 1910.

If they cared for realities they would see that the Republican states are likely, like Maine, to stand firm and that the Democratic strength continues to crumble. In many states, Missouri included, the Democratic total vote was larger sixteen years ago than at any subsequent time. The increase has been Republican and not far from 20 per cent since the last Democratic president was elected. But, insist the vociferously confident Democrats, the Republican party is divided. That has not been demonstrated in figures. A third party is in the field. It denounces both the old parties. It will not draw from one alone, and perhaps not materially from either. It represents only one individual, and his spasmodic energy and abusive heat of utterance repel prudent citizens the majority of whom have always been thus classed. What Democrats claim in the summer and early fall is almost invariably what they fail to get in November.
