Editorial Snap Shots.

If paving contracts can be broken, those who have agreed to pay ten per cent of their assessment ought to be able to break their contract.

There are ten cases on the Circuit Court docket where mis-mated couples are suing for the marriage contracts to be dissolved which is a large number for this county, and which goes to show that marriage vows are lightly taken and are easily broken, especially by those who marry in haste and repent at leisure.

The ill-fated German bark Mimi broke up and disappeared after being pounded for several days by the breakers, thus adding another marine disaster on the Pacific coast. Many of the vessels which have gone ashore on this coast could have been saved had there been proper appliances at hand to float them, but without these it is running great risk, as was demonstrated when someone bungled and showed lack of experience in hauling so large, light and top heavy a ship into the breakers.

Ask your Bull Moose, assistant Democratic, friends how they like the proposition to place milk and cream on the free list. Anyone can see what is going to happen before many months, but when the cheese market takes a decided drop, as it surely will, don't blame the Republicans who were denounced as "stand patters" at the last election. As a large proportion of citizens were not satisfied with the most prosperous times the country ever enjoyed and wanted a "change," they will not have to wait long now before the "change" will affect their pocket books.

The Cloverdale Courier feels happy over the prospect of the south part of the county obtaining a railroad. At the same time it is optimistic in regard to the Nestucca Valley, which has a bright future before it, for it says:

Already we have many things in this valley to be thankful for and amongst the most important is the co operation and unselfish feelings of our citizens. Strifes and factions are an unknown quantity here when compared with 89 communities out of a hundred. Once in awhile a knocker will be discovered in our midst but it doesn't take long before he is relegated to the rear and sinks into oblivion, little hammer and all. Men, we have always maintained, have more to do with development of communities than natural resources and here in the Nestucca Valley we have both, then why should we not feel that with a railroad outlet ours is the community, the haven of comfort, peace and prosperity.

Will those who agreed to pay ten per cent of their assessment for fat attorneys' fees have to pay the detectives as well? Or will the detective plutocrats foot the bill? No matter who it is that pays for that dirty business, there was something decided wrong when citizens and business men resort to investigating one another as was done in this city. It will prove a lasting disgrace upon those instigated it, and it is well that it should pan out that way, for no one can tell how many innocent and respectable citizens have been railroaded to the penitentiary by unscrupulous detectives employed by persons who want to show their spleen on others. We certainly hope that our citizens, having been roped into paying fat attorneys' fees as well as forcing the city into expensive litigation, will balk when it comes to paying for the unmanly, disreputable, sneaking system of business men investigating one another.

Beautiful your homes, and in doing so it will help beautify the city. This is the time of year for a general clean up and a fresh coat of paint. And those who have parkings should be busy preparing them for flowers and evergreens. To encourage this and help create enthusiasm along the lines of civic pride, it would not be out of place to give prizes for the prettiest parking and flower gardens. Mr. King has the right idea about planting hemlock trees, as they make a splendid shrubbery or ornamental trees, and with the dahlia, this makes a pretty combination. There is no reason why Tillamook City, though somewhat backward in this respect, cannot be made as pretty and attractive as other progressive towns. If all our citizens were taking the same interest in this as Mr. King and a few others are doing it would not be long before the city would present a pretty appearance. This would meet with the admiration of visitors and would appeal to home seekers as a most suitable place to locate. It is civic pride and the spirit of progress and a pull together that helped turn many of the small, unprogressive towns in Oregon into wide-awake business centers and desirable places to reside and build homes. A rapid change is taking place in Tillamook City. Brick and concrete buildings are taking the place of frame structures; paved sidewalks and streets have obliterated ill-kept, muddy streets and plank walks in the business and some parts of the residence districts; the sewer system will rid the city of cesspools, with their disease breaking germs; and this year some of the enterprising citizens will help beautify the city with pretty flowers and evergreens. Everybody get the good work along.

There are a great many persons who imagine they know how to run other person's business. That appeared to be the case at the wreck of the Mimi at Nehalem when a large number of persons thought that the life saving crew were not doing its duty. Those who have had no experience with the breakers in a small life boat are not in a position to judge or criticize. Some persons imagine that a life boat can go anywhere and in any kind of rough weather, but this is where they show their ignorance. As an illustration of this take the wreck of the Argo on Tillamook bar. The life savers went to her assistance as promptly as possible. But what happened? The life boat was struck by a huge wave and was crippled, so much so that when she arrived alongside the sinking vessel only the women passengers could be taken off, only to meet a more serious fate, for as the life boat approached shore it was tossed in the air like a shuttlecock, throwing the life savers and the women and the children into the breakers, some of whom were drowned, and probably all the women would have been had it not been for the assistance of the life savers. Men do err in judgment, but farmers and land-lubbers are hardly competent to pass judgment upon those who have had long experience with breakers and the undertow on this coast in a small life boat. The man who commands the life boat is the best judge what can and what cannot be done under certain weather conditions. We do not want to be classed amongst those who are criticizing Captain Farley, for having been raised on the sea coast we have experience some of the dangers one meets when they get into the breakers and knocked about by angry waves in a small boat. Those who have never been up against the difficulties of contending with wind, breakers, undertow and wreckage ought not to criticize those who do, for that is one of the most dangerous positions a small boat and life saving crew can buck up against.

Cough Medicine for Children.
Too much care cannot be taken in selecting a cough medicine for children. It should be pleasant to take, contain no harmful substance and be most effective. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets these requirements and is a favorite with the mothers of young children everywhere. For sale by all dealers.

Watching the Cost of Living.

The Democratic party has undertaken to prove that the price of food can be reduced by lowering tariff duties and treating tariff protection not only as a public injury, but as a policy that violates the constitution. As the party that takes this stand is in full executive and legislative control, and is at work on the task it has courted, it must now proceed to make good, or run against a failure, which will not be its first. It must show at the start that it is capable of a sufficient degree of harmony to carry through a tariff program. Next must come the lowering of prices promised, and without evil results that would more than counter-balance the advantages, whatever they might be. Consumers are looking on and are in constant touch with the cost of living. They will know exactly what happens in this respect. Supposing that the Democratic party will pass the tariff law its leaders have framed, will it bring a fulfillment of what is pledged to the people without any serious disturbance of industry, wages and opportunities for employment? Will general prosperity continue, and consumers rejoice in a lowered cost of what they eat and wear, with no impairment of their means to pay? Will placing an article on the free list surely reduce correspondingly its price to the consumer? These are questions about to be answered by practical events. Throughout the world the cost of living is high. A tariff revision in the United States will not revolutionize world prices, nor radically change world-causes, nor bring a world wide upheaval in the laws of supply and demand. The people of this country can only wait now for results. They will know exactly what these are when measured by the promises.

Advocates of flood control can safely claim one thing. If successful, its value would be enormous.

The Turks have been wielding a scimitar for hundreds of years. Hereafter they will have to exercise their muscles by swinging a pick or agitating a hoe.

Capt. Amundsen will take several hydro aeroplanes on his Arctic expedition. Machines that promise to move equally well in water and air are increasing in interest.

Several Democratic senators have made it known that they will oppose free sugar, free wool or free lumber. To be logical they must admit that they are protectionists.

It is stated that 10,000 miles of good roads were constructed in the United States last year. If the rural delivery carriers will say that they are able to find them the figures will stand confirmed.

Missouri's prize cow that gave an average of twelve gallons of milk a day for six months is dead, and is said to have been killed in the interests of science. There may be a fatal gift of championship as well as of beauty.

Six powers are combined in a naval blockade of little Montenegro. The triple alliance and the triple entente have led to this sextuple partnership, and as Montenegro has no navy the Mediterranean is reasonably safe.

A Dayton millionaire who recently gave $25,000 to the Y. M. C. A. in that city stood in line last week to get three loaves of bread and a small sack of potatoes. But it was a matter of quick delivery, not of impaired credit.

Included in the Democratic tariff revision bill introduced in Congress is an income tax section which would require every resident of the United States who earns more than $4000 a year to pay a tax of 1 per cent on his earnings in excess of the exemption.

As a contribution to the woman's wage problem it may be remarked that a New York department store female employe, in getting a divorce from her husband, asked the judge to allow him no alimony and the decree was so made. This, however, may be an exceptional case.

An inch of rainfall means 27,154 gallons of water per acre, or 113 tons per acre. The place of the greatest recorded rainfall is Cherra Punji, Assam, India, where the average is about 500 inches a year. In 1881 the rainfall there was about 905 inches. The rainfall of the whole globe, including both land and water areas, is estimated to be about 5 feet a year. In the eight great corn states in the United States an increase of 1 inch in the rainfall at the critical point makes an average increase in the value of the corn crop amounting to $180,000,000.—United States Weather Bureau.

Possibly President Wilson will be pleased to learn by the newspapers that many of the larger corporations are planning to give up their

New Jersey charters and to get patents in other states, preferably in Delaware or Maine, in both of which the laws relating to corporation organizations are easy. It is probable, however, that most of its citizens dislike this turning down of their state. It is due chiefly to the rather harsh anticorporation laws which Wilson forced through the Legislature at Trenton just before he left that capital for Washington.

The activity of the insurgents in half a dozen states of the Mexican Republic shows that the sanguine predictions from the City of Mexico from the new men in authority are not being entirely realized. Eight outbreaks in different parts of the republic have just been reported in a single day. A large part of the northern end of the country is apparently hostile to Huerta and Diaz. Notwithstanding the seeming acceptance of the new order by Orozco, who commanded the rebels in the Northern States during the war against Madero, the insurrection against Huerta through that quarter appears to be gaining some ground.

The president was quite felicitous in explaining to Congress his appearance before it to deliver a message in person instead of sending one to be read. He made it plain that it was not a mere desire to be his own messenger boy which brought him there. "I am very glad to have this opportunity of addressing the two houses directly," he said, "and to verify for myself the impression that the president of the United States is a person not a mere department of the government, hailing Congress from some isolated island of jealous power, sending messages, not speaking naturally and with his own voice, that he is a human being trying to cooperate with other human beings in a common service."

Continuing and now fast succeeding fires, explosions and other disturbances of the peace in England, on ground invariably found covered with suffragette literature, convey the impression that women in England believe themselves deprived of their natural rights. Such tactics cannot fail to convey such an impression. But they can not prove the case as clearly as does that of one James Wilks, an Englishman now in jail because his wife, a suffragette, refuses to pay her income tax. The case of James Wilks proves clearly enough that married women in England are deprived of their natural right to go to jail for penal offenses committed by them.

Beginning last week and continuing for several days, St. Augustine, the oldest town in the United States, will celebrate the 400th anniversary of the visit of Ponce de Leon, the Spanish cavalier and adventurer, to Florida. Not only was he the discover of Florida, but the story of North America began there and then with his advent in the land of flowers. Columbus visited some outlying islands of the hemisphere, but he never saw the mainland. Florida was the name given not only to the present state of that name, but to the whole region northward as far as Spanish coasting vessels went. As used by Spain, the name covered all the Atlantic Coast up to the present Canadian line. As the original discoverers and explorers of the greater part of the eastern coast of America, the Spaniards had a free hand in giving names to most of it.

Turkey is crumbling under the advance of modern civilization, and the foundation on which the empire is built are found to be defective. It is based on the idea that one particular religious faith is supreme, and that all who will not agree to it are to be despised. Though the Mohammedan dream of a conquest of the world faded long ago, the intolerance of the creed has continued, and the Turks make no concession in this regard as they retreat from Europe before a line of bayonets and many cannon. The Turkish division of mankind has been between those who recognized Mohammed as the only divine interpreter, and those who are merely part of a common herd fit only to serve their betters. In their career of conquest that once reached into Western Europe, they made no effort to assimilate races they overcame. The defeated were inferiors, and their fate, if their lives were spared, was cruel exploitation.

IN TOUCH WITH FRIENDS and RELATIVES
A GRANDMOTHER may not be as spry as she used to be, but she is in close touch with her world for all that. The telephone enables her to make as many calls as she pleases and in all sorts of weather. Formal gatherings have their place, but it is the many little intimate visits over the telephone that keep people young and interested. Grandmother's telephone visits do not stop with her own town. The Long Distance Service of the Bell Telephone takes her to other towns and allows relatives and friends to chat with her although hundreds of miles away.
