Tillamook City offers the glad hand to "Pap."

Tillamook City will always have the glad hand extended to the Third Regiment.

After so much fighting over the pavement we hope that no blood will be spilled by the combatants.

Everything passed off satisfactorily in connection with the visit of the Third Regiment to this city, the boys going away pleased with the kind, friendly treatment they received while here. It is safe to say that they will always have a good word to say for Tillamook.

Remember the date. Tillamook County Fair Association's first fair will be held on September 3rd, 4th and 5th. Everybody should help make it a success by exhibiting that which is of interest. Get the fair spirit and show visitors that Tillamook county can make as creditable fair as other counties.

As a result of the visit of the Third Regiment to this city, a movement is on foot amongst the young men to have Tillamook represented in the Third Regiment. By request, the president of the Commercial Club took the matter up with Colonel Martin and Adjutant-General Finzer. Company A is vacant, and if a sufficient number of young men will sign a request to form a company, we believe there will be no trouble when the matter is placed before the staff.

One of our citizens told us it had cost him $500 to fight the construction company. In our judgment, he had better fight that amount of money for publicity work. We believe a large amount of real estate would have changed hands at good figures in this city this year had it not been for the pavement fight. We are not alone when we say that when the cyclological moment came for this city to obtain a genuine boost, it was thrown away, for it is no inducement for people to invest or locate in a city of this size where there is friction.

In about a week the road to Netarts will be finished. The improvement on this road took many years to bring about, and when it is finished it makes the beach at that place easy to reach from this city, for a little over 30 minutes is all the time it will take in a machine. This places Netarts in a position to accommodate more campers than usual, for the new road makes it easy for campers and autos to reach there. With that road finished, the proposed road to Bayocean should be commenced. In fact, we believe it is a wise move to give all the beach resorts good roads as soon as possible, for there is no denying the fact that Tillamook County will grow in importance as a summer resort of considerable magnitude.

Quite a number of citizens entertained a wrong impression as to the moral conduct of the citizen soldiers who visited this city last week, and their predictions, happily, did not prove correct, for no one has heard of the town being painted red, chicken coops raided, or young girls insulted. The Third Regiment is not made up of that class. The boys behind the gun have proved themselves to be gentlemen, so much so that when the Third Regiment left here on Monday morning it carried with it the respect of the people of this city. Chaplain Gilbert on Sunday made a statement to this effect that made most of us take notice. He said, take 500 men from the Third Regiment and 500 from the city of Tillamook, there would be more religious men and men of higher moral standard in the former than in the latter.

A county in a Southern state invested in a pike road and a colony of truck raisers moved in at once. Pickers of this kind are up to date.

When all other forms of excitement pall on the public taste in Madrid somebody aims a shot at King Alfonso or explodes a bomb under his carriage.

An Arctic explorer says that 1,000,000 square miles in the region of the North Pole have never been visited. There is no occasion yet for the Arctic Alexanders to weep.

When they get a chance suffragettes burn an old castle in Scotland. The haunts of Burns and the mansion that Scott built must be in danger from these strange logicitans.

A Chinaman on his way to Canada, and claiming to be 149 years old, confines his nourishment to a tablet and cold water. There is hope for the ultimate consumer if he lives long enough.

Missouri railroads will make a trial of the 2-cents-a-mile rate. The experience of the Post Office Department is that a reduction in postage results in increased revenue to a satisfactory extent.

The Oklahoma Indians who are engaged in agricultural pursuits have a distinct advantage over their white competitors. When the picking is slim on the farm they can go back to the lava beds.

The new American ambassador to England has rented a house in London for $18,000 a year which is more than his salary. The rich cannot be accused of growing richer in the diplomatic service of the U. S.

Japan has halted the preparation of our surrender to her rejoinder to our reply to her note by adding an amendment to her rejoinder. Until we learn what it was she forgot to say we cannot surrender properly.

An aeronaut has arranged to communicate by wireless with several ships in the open Atlantic when he undertakes shortly to fly across the ocean. A few years ago the item would have been unintelligible.

A Mississippi judge has decided that a razor carried in a negro's pocket is not a weapon, but a toilet article, even though intended for the facial decoration of other negroes. A wagon spoke carried as a club would still be a harmless agricultural implement attachment.

Abandonment of the compulsory use of parcel post stamps on merchandise is another step toward making the parcel post system popular. The chief drawback still left is the necessity of going to the Post Office to mail packages, instead of dropping them in a box. This is a result of the zonal system, which makes the figuring of the proper rate somewhat complicated. Yet, even this will be overcome, probably by a system of collecting any shortage of postage from the consignee, as is done with first-class mail. The freest possible use of the parcel post is what is needed.

Things keep on happening in connection with the lobby investigation which began in a vain effort to find the trail of a protectionist lobby, and which now finds itself in a maze of hot trails leading in a number of directions toward big game. It is too late to call a halt. The game has been played to a point where a number of members in both houses, finding the entire membership under a cloud, are resolved upon the drawing of a line between real and imaginary lobbies and between men clean and unclean. Missouri is rather proud of the spirit shown by Senator Stone Wednesday when, finding that his name, like that of other senators and congressmen, had been dragged into lobby talk by malodorous Wall street birds, he demanded the privilege of taking the stand at once and characterizing such conduct as it deserves. Before leaving the committee room the senator had forced a retraction of every part of the story of the Wall street broker Lamar, so far as it related to him, officially or personally. This attitude, we take it, represents what must be a growing feeling among members of both houses as to what they owe to themselves and to their constituencies.

Reports indicate that when it comes to mistreatment of Americans in Mexico there is not much to choose between the federals and the rebels.

In England incomes of $750 and over are taxed. The tendency to reach the same figure in the United States depends on the length of time the Democratic party remains in power.

"You will always be my beautiful dream," wrote an English nobleman to an actress, and it cost him $250,000. The incident suggests that if substantial is not the right word to apply to dreams.

Creditable advices from Washington are all of a tenor to confirm the apparent fact that our ambassador at the City of Mexico has the full confidence of the administration. It is due Ambassador Wilson to make this statement as broadly, and as widely, as possible, since few men have, in recent years, been placed in a more trying position than his. During the greater part of his service, owing to internal conditions in Mexico, relations at all times delicate and sometimes tense between his government and the one to which he was accredited have vastly increased his difficulties and responsibilities. During a long period of days and nights in which civil war was raging in the Mexican capital, and threatening the lives and property of foreign residents looking to his government for protection, it was possible for unprejudiced minds to realize how well he was discharging a most dangerous duty. When successful revolt against the Madero Government was immediately followed by the assassination of Madero and his constitutional successor in the presidency, the perplexities of his situation could be seen to grow. The incoming of a new administration at Washington, hostile to the party to which he belongs, could not increase his perplexities but it could, and did, add to his embarrassments.

 The best Baker ever built
 Built like a locomotive boiler
 Riveted, not bolted together. No stove putty
 Easy to keep clean. Saves work and money

ARCADIAN

AMERICA'S BEST RANGE

The Arcadian is a perfect baking range, and does a perfect baker for a lifetime because it is built like a locomotive boiler. Built of malleable iron and charcoal is riveted together instead of being bolted together. Made straight without the use of stove putty to crumble and fall out, as happens in cast iron and so-called steel ranges, allowing false drafts to find the fire or render it.

The Arcadian Range will never have false drafts—it will always do perfect baking, using a fuel less than common ranges.

Never need to use stove putty—a rub with an oil cloth makes it appear like new. It is so built that it will never rust, and to say nothing of the way it makes a woman's work easier and allows her to do perfect baking.

THE ARCADIAN IS SOLD BY US.
 We invite you to call as we wish to demonstrate the value of this range to you.
