

TILLAMOOK PASTOR IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Discretion Caused His Arrest and Conviction for Mashing.

The people of Tillamook were greatly surprised on Friday to hear that the Rev. H. W. Kuhlman, pastor of the M. E. church of this city had been arrested by the Portland police late the previous night for mashing in that city. It came as a much greater surprise for Mr. Kuhlman had the respect of the church going people of this city, and could not realize that he had done anything wrong. Below we give the accounts from two Portland newspapers:

(From the Telegram). It was to glean an insight into the ways of a big, bad city while the night lights glittered that the Rev. Henry W. Kuhlman, pastor of the Tillamook M. E. Church, and secret service officer on the staff of the Mayor of Tillamook to engage in a midnight flirtation at Sixth and Washington streets.

"I'm a quiet cop of Tillamook," was the opening gun sounded by Dr. Kuhlman in his own defense. He was formerly pastor of the Methodist Church at Estacada, but he declared that this was his first experience with the police. He continued to explain that "quiet cop" was not a slang term, but an official designation given by the Mayor of Tillamook to a chosen few. He said that he was prompted by only the purest of motives in speaking to the woman, that of moral uplift. He was curious to see what response she would give.

Dr. Delmar H. Trimble, Robert Hughes, editor of the Northwest Christian Advocate; Rev. C. T. Cook, pastor of the Laurelwood M. E. Church, and others of the ministry were summoned to speak in behalf of Rev. Kuhlman, and Judge Stevenson continued the hearing until late today to permit Dr. Schnauffer, of 424 Williams avenue, to tell her story. She was not in court Friday morning.

(From the Oregonian). Three clergymen, a church woman and two newspaper men sat in judgment in Municipal Court Friday upon Rev. Henry W. Kuhlman, a Tillamook minister, accused of violating the mashing ordinance—and found guilty. Then they counseled mercy, and the court acceded to their recommendation and sent the minister out of court under a suspended sentence. The defendant said he had been doing social investigating in Tillamook, and, arriving in Portland at 10 p.m. Thursday, set out to see how conditions were in a large city compared with those in a smaller one.

He had not gone far when he was accosted by a woman of the streets and stopped to talk with her. He laid stress on the fact that he had 65 cents in his pocket at the time. Going a little farther, he saw two men come out of a saloon under the influence of liquor and stopped to get their viewpoint. The next person he encountered was Dr. Etta Sch naufer, who resides at 424 Williams avenue. He addressed her, saying, according to her testimony:

"Is your name Mabel?" "It certainly is not, sirrah!" she replied, and just then Detective Price and Patrolman McCarthy stepped up and made the arrest.

Jury Trial is Ordered. There was a gathering of the cloth when the case came up for adjourned hearing yesterday afternoon. Judge Stevenson showed plain distaste to sitting in judgment on the case, and said:

"This impresses the court as a case in which a representative jury should sit, and I therefore order that one be empaneled." Those chosen to serve were J. W. McDougall, superintendent of the Portland district of the Methodist Church; C. T. Cook, of the Laurelwood Methodist Church and a college classmate of the defendant; Robert Hughes, editor of the Northwest Christian Advocate; Mrs. Luther A. Nicholls, Ted Lansing and Paul Koontz, newspaper reporters.

Rev. Delmar H. Trimble, who has acted as a friend in trying to keep the defendant out of jail Thursday night, acted as amicus curiae and represented the prisoner. He laid stress upon the 65 cents, and asked the court to take judicial knowledge of the fact that a man couldn't "roll them very high" on that.

Interview is Refused.

Rev. Mr. Kuhlman refused to be interviewed after the trial, but referred questioners to his friend, Dr. Trimble, and advised the latter if he made any statement to make it in writing. "He is one of our most valued men," said Dr. Trimble, "and I am confident that he merely is guilty of an indiscretion. He had been doing social work in Tillamook and did not realize that in taking such a step in a city like Portland he had to be protected."

An effort to reopen the case of Rev. H. W. Kuhlman, the Tillamook minister convicted in municipal Court of "mashing" was made Tuesday when Rev. Delmar H. Trimble and Attorney Roscoe P. Phurst appealed to Judge Stevenson to set aside the verdict of a jury. The application was taken under advisement.

As the verdict was returned by a jury of six, out of which number four were in court on behalf of the defendant to plead for mercy, the Court takes the tentative view that its finding must be above criticism and probably will allow the conviction to stand. No penalty was imposed on the defendant, but his friends seek to expunge the record of conviction because of its stain to his reputation.

Church Exonerates Him. At a meeting of the members of the M. E. Church in this city on Monday, Mr. Kuhlman gave a detailed statement which led up to his arrest and conviction, for violating a city ordinance, after which he was exonerated and the members placing renewed confidence in him.

PACKING GOLD LEAF.

It is "Handled," So to Speak, by the Aid of a Puff of Breath.

The gold reaches the "beaters" first in wide bars or nuggets. It must be weighed, melted and made into inch wide ribbons before the "beating" begins. The ribbon is then cut into inch squares and beaten with a hammer wielded by a stalwart workman. When each leaf has been beaten thin it is transferred to a mold, where it is beaten again for a period of four hours. The beating is accomplished by means of a wooden hammer weighing from seven to eighteen pounds on a sheepskin cushion resting on a granite block. The gold beaten is usually 22 or 23 carats fine. A little alloy of copper or silver is added to make it spread. It would be impossible for the beaters to handle perfectly pure gold.

Gold leaf is packed more by the aid of the breath than that of the hands. The operation of transferring a sheet of almost transparent gold leaf from one place to another is of such delicacy that it is possible to accomplish it only by a slight puff of the breath. The packers are for the most part girls, to whom, after beating, the gold leaf is handed.

The girls lift the unshaped leaf from the mold with a pair of wooden pliers, flatten it out on a sheepskin cushion by gently blowing on it, cut it into a perfect square, replace it between the leaves of the book and flatten it out with the breath. A "book" consists of twenty-five leaves, and a skilled girl operator can pack seventy books in a day.—Harper's Weekly.

LAYING A GHOST.

A Simple Solution to the Mystery of a "Haunted" House.

The mystery of a "haunted" house was explained in a recent number of Science. It was a large, handsome structure in Boston's Back Bay district. The trouble centered in the third and fourth stories, where the slumbers of servants and children were disturbed by strange sensations. It was a common occurrence for them to awake in the night with a feeling of oppression, "as if some one were tapping upon me." Sounds also were heard, as if some one were walking about or overhead. Once a child rushed screaming into the nurse's room, crying that a man was waking him up and asking why she let him frighten him so. In the morning the children were pale and sluggish, even cold water lacking its usual power to enliven them.

Investigation at length revealed a comparatively simple, mechanical solution in the escape of a large amount of furnace gas. Often the sulphur in it was so strong as to make the eyes water and to hurt the throat, while the sensations of oppression were typical of carbon monoxide. The noises may have been actual sounds coming from an adjoining house, although any noises at all would probably be exaggerated in the minds of persons awakened in the night while suffering from poisonous gas.

The Mother-in-law in France. It is enough to chill one's passion for newspapers to read the mother-in-law quips, as they are said, and jokes. A mother-in-law is not funny afterward; she is only funny beforehand. In France, where they do so many things neatly, this is understood. Listen!

Young Raoul had gone down on his knees to madame, the Widow Lemoine, and begged leave to marry himself with her daughter. "But no!" said the widow firmly. "It is impossible!" Desolated, Raoul burst into tears. "Don't take it so hard, mon gosse!" said she. "The petite Yvonne is exquisite, she is ravishing, yet there are many others in the France. A little of patience!"

"But, madame! my dear madame!" howled Raoul. "It is you that I regret!"—New York Tribune.

Buried in Installments. A well known local character of Townsend, Mont., lost a leg in a switching yard on the railroad. The railroad boys raised a little purse for the victim, who was rather down on his luck in other ways aside from the accident. After paying his board and hospital bills he went down and bought a coffin and a lot in the cemetery, and had his amputated leg buried in good style.

"Now," he said, "when I cash in all they will have to do will be to dig up the coffin and put me in with the leg!"—Saturday Evening Post.

Resurrections. The world is full of resurrections. Every night that folds us up in darkness is a death, and those of you that have been out early and have seen the first of the dawn will know it. DEFENDED HIS COTTON.

Andrew Jackson Showed He Had a Grim Sense of Humor.

A Virginian veteran used to tell how Andy Jackson used bales of cotton in the ramparts that he threw up in defense of New Orleans, and it was naturally a matter of indifference to him whose cotton he employed.

Some of the cotton happened to belong to a rich merchant. The merchant followed his bales with doglike devotion. He could not bear to tear himself away from them. He was standing over them when Jackson happened to draw near, and, running up to the chief, he said: "Monsieur, it is damage for your men to take my cotton. All property is sacred and must be protected."

"But," said Jackson, "are you sure this is your cotton?" "Oh, sure, most sure," said the merchant. "I know the marks, all of them. Et puis, alors, this cotton, sir, must be defended."

Jackson turned to a private and told him to fetch a musket at once. The musket being brought, the general laid it in the merchant's arms and said with a grim smile: "My friend, you are the most proper person I know of to defend your own property. Stay here, then, and do so. Stir at your peril."

ENERGY OF RADIUM.

One Ton of It Would Equal in Power 1,500,000 Tons of Coal.

If one could utilize the energy of a ton of radium through a space of thirty years it would be sufficient to drive a ship of 15,000 tons, with engines of 15,000 horsepower, at a rate of fifteen knots throughout the whole thirty years. To do this 1,500,000 tons of coal are actually required, says the Chicago Tribune.

These are not fanciful figures, for the energy is there, though, as a matter of fact, it is unlikely that man will ever produce much more than half an ounce of radium a year.

Still, the fact is important for this reason—that science is convinced that the radium in radium bromide is not the only element which possesses this marvelous store of energy, but that the calcium in gypsum and the sodium in common salt contain also this energy content.

The evidence of the wonderful atomic energies in the common elements of everyday material is rapidly accumulating, and scientists are of the opinion that perhaps these same discoveries may in time alter the whole future of the human race.

The Kitchen Sink.

It is a statistical fact that farm women die earlier than do farm men and that those who survive the years of drudgery break in health sooner than do the men. The opposite is true in town. There is no doubt in my mind that the biggest factor in the development of this state of affairs is the woeful lack of labor saving contrivances in the farm woman's home. Many houses in the country are still without that greatest of labor savers—a kitchen sink, a sink with a pump or faucet and with a drain leading out from it. The carrying in and out of water is the most laborious and back breaking task of all the hard tasks belonging to the housekeeper. There is no substitute for a kitchen sink. If you can add but one thing to your home this year and if you have no kitchen sink let that be the addition.—Farm and Fireside.

Why People Travel.

Because they think they are going to learn something, and it is only by traveling that they can discover that knowledge does not come by travel. Because it helps them to get better acquainted with their neighbors—some of whom they are bound to fall in with on their travels. Because the doctor tells them they ought to.

Because it gives them the illusion of superiority and furnishes them with topics of conversation. Because it costs more than they can afford.

Because they don't know all the disagreeable things that will happen to them.

Because it is the only way in which they can discover how comfortable they are at home.—Life.

Hum of the Wires.

Anything that is stretched is apt to be thrown into vibration by the force of the air blowing against it. If it vibrates so fast as to produce the air waves that our ears can hear then that is what we call sound. This is what happens to the telegraph wires when they hum, and if we put our hand on the telegraph pole we shall feel that the wires vibrate strongly enough to set the whole pole trembling too. But when the air is quite still the telegraph wires do not hum.

Very Attentive. "I can't get old Slop the tailor to pay any attention to me," remarked Dubbleigh. "That's strange," said Slaters. "He's most assiduous in his attention to me. Sends me three or four bills every month."—Harper's Weekly.

Uses 1/3 Less Coal. The best Baker ever built. Built like a locomotive boiler. Riveted, not bolted together. No stove work and messy. Easy to keep clean. Saves work and money. AMERICA'S BEST RANGE. The Arcadian is a perfect baking range and a perfect boiler for a lifetime because it is built like a locomotive boiler. Built of malleable iron and charcoal iron riveted together instead of being bolted together. Makes right without the use of stove putty to crumble and fall out, as happens in cast iron and so-called sheet ranges, allowing false drafts to slip the fire or smother it. The Arcadian Range will never have false drafts—it will always do perfect baking, using a third less fuel than common ranges. Never need to use blackening—a job with an old stove makes it superior. It never gets soiled or stained in the least or soiled by anything of the way it makes a woman's work easier and allows her to do perfect baking. THE ARCADIAN IS SOLD BY J.S. Jones-Knudson Furniture Co.
