RATTLED THE BANDIT.

Curious Experience With a Band of Mexican Cutthroats.

Everybody in Mexico goes about armed. Even the passenger trains on most of the railroads are guarded by detachments of soldiers who ride in special cars, while on every station platform are seen rural guards armed with carabines ready for an emergency. Foreigners have to adapt themselves to the custom of going about armed or $1.00 else make themselves unfavorably conspicuous in the eyes of the natives. It was a novel experience, however, to see railroad surveyors, when occupied .$2.00 with their peaceful work, armed to the ..$1.00 teeth with knives and revolvers. As a matter of fact, arms were rarely required in Mexico as a means of defense. As everywhere else, it is well to remember, however, to keep cool and forget that you are armed in case

In this connection the principal locating engineer of the road had an expe rience at which he displayed some nerve. He had to make a reconnoissance of a mountain range called the Sierra Gorda, said to be infested with cutthroats. He was warned to let the district alone, but duty prevailed, and he went. When reaching a rancho near the summit at sundown he and his attendant were met by four men whose law breaking propensities required no further introduction than their faces. They took hold of the party's horses, told the engineer and his attendant to dismount and made Prof. F. G. Boughton, of McMinnville no effort to conceal the fact that they

There is still a sultan, who receives ment, but some day he will be deposed, and there will be no further pretense of a sultan having anything to do with fices by the British. Near the palace is the harem, now deserted, since the present sultan has but one wife.

The sultan, who had trouble with the English, was educated in England and resented the high handed proceeding and sent word to the defenders of his dignity to sink the English gunboat and put the insolent captain in the

There was an old fort near the pal ace, on the walls of which were mounted a few rusty cannon. The defenders of the sultan tried to fire these at the English gunboat, but they burst, one by one, and almost wiped out the sultan's defensive force. The captain of the English gunboat then began dropping shells into the palace and, with one solid shot, sank the sul-

Half The Fuel

The Majestic is put together with rivets (not bolts and stove putty) making it absolutely air tight, like an engine boiler. The joints and seams will remain air tight forever as neither expansion nor contraction can affect or open them.

Movable Copper Reservoir

The reservoir is all copper, heated like a tea kettle through copper pocket (stamped from one piece of copper) settling against left hand lining of fire box. It boils 15 gallons of water in a jiffy and, by turning lever, the frameand reservoir—moves away from fire. This feature is patented and can be used only on the Majestic.
