The Tillamook Headlight.

Editorial Snap Shots.

The political pot in Tillamook county is slow in boiling.

It's now up to Freddie to investigate whether the streets paved with gold in the celestial city are o.k.

The light of other days—the unoccupied bank building. No one is, however, shedding crocodile tears.

The "Go to church Sunday" movement is being tried in several cities. Try it in Tillamook next Sunday. "Go to church Sunday."

Freddie's mouth organ had another spasm last week. Say, Bro. Trombley, it's too bad that you are so badly affected and controlled by Freddism.

Say, Freddie, how did you "work" the State Land Board when you wanted to borrow some money on the Elmore ranch? Great scheme, Freddie, wasn't it?

What a contrast. The East and Middle West is in the grip of a cold snap. In Tillamook the snap shot man is mowing his lawn, which is covered with a heavy growth of new grass.

Talk about honesty and dishonesty, which head does real estate sharks come under who, having obtained options on property at certain prices, dispose of it at advanced figures, and then stick the advance price and the commission in their jeans?

"Progressive is as progressive does," was Taft's version of the progressive party. The progressives split up the republican party, placing the democratic party in power, and this was followed by free cattle, free lumber, free milk, free cream, free fish, free wool, etc. This is, as Taft said, what progressives does.

It is estimated that somewhere near 15,000 young calves are slaughtered in Tillamook county every year, simply because it did not pay to raise them. There is now a demand for them, buyers offering $1.50 a head. It is more than likely that a bill will be introduced at the next State legislature that will prohibit killing calves as soon as they are born.

Bro. Trombley, the democratic fog horn, has quit calling the snap shot man a republican "standpatter." It is not to be wondered at, since his nibs can see that the dairymen, the fishermen and the lumbermen got it where the chicken got the axe from the democratic party. Stand pat, Bro. Trombley, stand pat, for you are a "free trade standpatter," pure and simple.

Say, Bro. Dairymen, will Senator Chamberlain have the gall to ask you to vote for him since he voted for free cattle, free milk, free cream, free fish, free lumber, etc.? Get your knife ready, boys, for the slapped Tillamook county in the face when he voted to place the industries of this county on the free list, and Senator Lane did the same. It is well to mention that every republican senator and congressman from Oregon have voted to protect dairymen and other agricultural industries.

Prohibitionists have been

they will wipe out the liquor traffic, and notwithstanding this procrastination and the "dry" campaigns, government figures go to prove that the drink habit is on the increase. There are those who believe that it is education, not prohibition, that will eventually win. Drinking and eating to excess are two great evils, for it is claimed by doctors that ten persons die from over eating to one from over drinking. To our way of thinking there is no difference between the gluttonous drinker and the gluttonous eater. Both need educating along the lines of temperance, for if it is a sin to drink to excess it must also be a sin to eat to excess.

Business men and others appeal to the newspapers to preach "Patronize home industry," and they readily do so to foster that sentiment and assist as much as possible in bringing more business to the city and to merchants. The snap shot man felt hot in the collar this week when he found that hundreds of dollars of job printing was sent to Portland, and exorbitant prices paid for some of it, which should have been done at the home print shops and at less cost. The Portland printers don't pay taxes here, nor do you ever find their names on subscription lists, nor do they help to boost the city or county, in fact, there are printers idle here because so much job work is sent outside.

The effort to make Oregon "dry" will be fought out at the November election. This is the first time in the history of the State that an election of this character will have taken place, and, consequently, there is some speculation as to what the result will be, although the prohibitionists seem to feel confident that they will carry the state now that women have the suffrage. There is nothing sure about this, in fact, we believe that the vote in Portland will keep the State "wet." It is more than likely that there will be an increase in the "dry" territory, and it depends a great deal whether Tillamook county will be included in it whether the voters have forgotten the violation of law and bad conditions that existed during the "dry" regime.

Tillamook has two strong banking institutions that are a credit to the city, which our citizens have implicit confidence in. Both have strong backing, and have model, up-to-date bank premises, which are also a credit to the city. We want to commend both banks for the enterprise they have displayed in providing elegant quarters, which is conclusive proof that the stockholders have great faith in the future growth of the city and surrounding country. As we look back and remember the first bank that was established in this city, with its exorbitant commissions, its usury, its warrant shaving, its rule or ruin policy financially and political, and its stool-pigeons, we feel glad that those conditions have passed and gone and that we have now banking institutions that we feel proud of.

The good roads movement in Oregon, with so many of the counties already bonded and other preparing to bond, thousands of men the coming summer will be engaged in road work. This will place a large amount of money in circulation and give employment to those who are willing to work. Here in Tillamook county the County Court has a limited amount of money which will make a good showing, for some excellent roads and improvements have been made the past few years. And we predict, owing to persistent efforts and the energy displayed by those whose duty it was to look after road work, that at the end of the year Tillamook county will have better roads and better bridges than the counties which have bonded for large amounts. The County Court should have had $50,000 more this year and could have expended it to good advantage in districts which need better roads. Taking the road work for a number of years and the county can congratulate itself on substantial improvements in all parts of the county. With other counties making rapid progress in road building, this county must be wide-awake and progressive as usual, for there is a bright future for Tillamook county, from an industrial and tourist and summer travel points of view.

Certainly Columbia and Clatsop counties are in the progressive rank in the good roads movement. The former county voted to bond for $300,000 and the county court levied a road tax amounting to $170,000, while the latter county bonded for $100,000 with a road tax levy of over $100,000. This is a large amount of money for two counties to expend in one year on roads, considering that a considerable proportion of it will be used constructing the great Columbia Highway through those counties to the sea. We are glad to see the enthusiasm in these and other counties in a desire to be connected with the highway, for they see the benefits that will be derived from it. Thousands of tourists, home seekers and those wanting to invest will use this highway, and it is no wonder that there is a desire on the part of the people to include the county they reside in connected with the Columbia Highway. We hope that Tillamook county will wake up to the situation and become as enthusiastic as other counties. If they are expending enormous sums of money on this project, surely this county should be most anxious to connect with it. Get the Columbia Highway sentiment.

Republicans who have been fooled the past elections by the politicians with some catchy slogan can now see what it has culminated in, and it is not to be wondered at that they want to get back now that they plainly see the mistake they made in deserting the party. We expect to see a strong, united republican party in this county in opposition to the democratic party for placing the dairy, fish and lumber industries of Tillamook county on the free list. But a word of advice is not out of place, and that is, Do not be fooled with some passing ism that is devised to deceive the voters. Everyone has the privilege to affiliate with either of the parties, and they do this when they register, but to register and vote as such at the primary election, and then to knife the ticket for personal or other reasons is not playing fair in politics. This is our interpretation of the primary law: If you are a republican, good and true, then register and vote with that party. The same remark applies to those who join either of the other parties, for neither party likes to have those who are liable to "backslide" in their ranks.

If a New York woman routed some gunmen with a broom, what could she not do with a rolling pin?

The experience of the Pole who swallowed pearls for pills shows that Cleopatra wasted time in dissolving hers.

It is to be hoped that the syndicate that leased four large warehouses in New York for storing beef from Argentina first took the precaution to find out who controls the beef supply in that country.

Following anticigarette legislation by the Council of Moultrie, Ga., an agitation for ordinances against high heels and corsets has begun, candidates for appointment as inspectors being especially active.

Gen. Wood takes the sensible view that an army, however strong it may be in numbers and field equipment, is not of much account in a time of war without ammunition. Even Napoleon had to use powder.

Prof. H. J. Davenport is an indulgent critic. He says women spend too much money trying to "show off," but he states it more as a passing fact than as implying censure. He is rather inclined to censure men for it, rather than the women. Originally the men did the showing off and the women were the providers and workers, more workers than providers in a larger sense. Man hustled about and hunted game, also his fellow-man, who was in primitive times considered a legitimate addition to the family lair. Having done the show off part of providing, the men left all the work of preparing food for the family to the women including the building of the family habitation, the dressing of skins for the family clothing, and the fabrication of everything used except the weapons of the hunter and fighter, which lordly man considered not too mean for him to busy himself with. It was a part of his showing off. Those who have seen Indians fish for salmon can understand this. The lord handles the spear and net in the actual catching of the fish, but once impaled or impounded, the further handling of the fish is too menial a labor for him, and he smokes while the squaw works.

Why You Need a New Range

Some housewives who display a remarkable amount of broad, sound, common sense along other lines, persist in the delusion—and it is a delusion—that they are really practicing economy by trying to get along—to get results—out of an old, worn-out range merely to save the price of a new one.

Your old range or stove was put together with putty and stove bolts and probably you can stick a pen-knife in the seams and joints anywhere on it where the stove putty has crumbled away. When a range gets in that condition, it takes fuel enough to warm all outdoors in order to get your oven hot enough for baking—and then you run the risk of burning whatever is in the oven. You can soon burn up the price of the best range ever made in a useless waste of fuel in an old, worn-out stove or range—and that's neither practical economy nor good management.

If you would practice real economy in your household management, it will pay you, the next time you are in town, to call at our store and inquire closely into the perfect baking and remarkable fuel saving qualities of the

Great Majestic Malleable and Charcoal Iron Range

Outwears Three Ordinary Ranges

It is the only range made entirely of malleable iron and charcoal iron. Charcoal iron won't rust like steel—malleable iron can't break, and while the first cost of a Great Majestic may be more than some other ranges, it outwears 3 ordinary ranges.

open iron grate—you can see it. No heat escapes—no cold air gets into the oven—saves half the fuel and assures perfect baking.

Movable Copper Reservoir

The reservoir is all copper, heated like a tea kettle through copper pocket (stamped from one piece of copper) setting against left hand lining of a box. It boils 15 gallons of water in a jiffy and, by turning lever, the frame—and reservoir—moves away from fire. This feature is patented and can be used only on the Majestic.

Ask us to show you the greatest improvement ever put into a range—makes Majestic 300% stronger where other ranges are weakest.

Half The Fuel

The Majestic is put together with rivets (not bolts and stove putty) making it absolutely air tight, like an engine boiler. The joints and seams will remain air tight forever as neither expansion nor contraction can affect or open them.

Pure Asbestos Lining

In addition, it is lined with pure asbestos board, covered with an asbestos board, covered with an asbestos board, covered with an asbestos board, covered with an asbestos board.

Other Exclusive Features

It's the best range at any price, and should be in your kitchen.
