THE TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.

What do we Gain by It?

Oregonian.
The one industry which the Democrats promised to take care of in revising the tariff was farming. In angling for farmers' votes they baited their hook with the farmers' free list and in angling for urban dwellers' votes they used the free market basket as bait. They slurred over the fact that whatever they gave to the farmer they took from the manufacturer and his workmen and that whatever they gave to the consumer in his free market basket they took from the farmer.

The farmer now has his free list and the consumer is saving 2 1/2 cents a pound on his butter in consequence of New Zealand importations. A decided check has been given to the dairy industry of Oregon, and men who contemplated engaging in it have held off. Land does not sell as freely or at as high a price, the demand for all the commodities which would be used or consumed on dairy farms is restricted and there is less employment for labor in producing these commodities and on the farm.

The question naturally arises: Has anything been gained by this state or by the United States through this saving to the consumer in the price of butter at the expense of the farmers' profits? With more land improved, more creameries built, more farmers in the country to buy of the neighboring towns and with more labor employed, should we miss that extra nickel in the price of a roll of butter as much as we miss the prosperity which flew away with the advent of the Democratic party to power?

These are questions which both farmers in the country and consumers of farm products in the towns should ponder. The chief consideration with the voter this year is the eminently practical one, how to revive general prosperity. The Underwood tariff has brought what we now see. It is hardly what we bargained for.

Misuse of the Wireless.

Nearly all discoveries and inventions which have been of service to the world have also afforded the malevolent and reckless opportunities to work injuries or cause annoyance. The first lighthouse suggested the use of false lights to smugglers and wreckers. The development of engraving and lithography was seized upon and utilized by counterfeiters. Even discoveries by bacteriologists and biologists have been used by perverts in the practice of crime. The theory that education would reduce crime finds no support in experience. Our prisons are filled with men who are keen of intellect and skilled in many arts and sciences. The entire world is concerned at the possibilities of the misuse of wireless telegraphy, a few striking instances having shown how probable it is. The world was startled a few weeks ago by a report that American liner Sibera had run aground and was sinking off the coast of Formosa. This report was accepted and British and Japanese cruisers were rushed to Formosa for relief. The friends of many passengers were in sore distress until the Sibera arrived at Manila and reported that it had suffered no accident and had not been within 100 miles of Formosa. Who sent the false warning and why it was sent are puzzling mysteries.

The London Electric Review, in commenting on this danger, shows that the authors of such messages may preserve the anonymity at pleasure, with little risk of detection. Requirement that all wireless operators procure government licenses may reduce the evil, but it can not abolish it. But little apparatus is required and it may be temporarily erected and easily removed. The direction of a sender may be ascertained, but whether he is ten or fifty miles away it is impossible to determine. The opportunity of forging a message is practically unlimited. In time of war a whole nation could be thrown into frenzy by false messages. False reports on securities might cause great fluctuation in stock markets.

All of these presume malevolence and sinister motives. But the chief danger at present is from people without moral responsibility, though without real malevolence. Practical jokers with twisted conceptions of humor have already caused much annoyance. Crises of distress must be heeded, for it is not safe to doubt their genuineness. The value of the wireless is so great that it must be protected from impairment. Severe penalties for false messages must be provided by law and the law must be enforced rigorously. This can best be accomplished under the license regulations. The supervision should be as strict as the federal rules governing the operation of a still, for example. This would soon dispose of the foolish jokers and limit the offenders to the intentionally criminal against whom society would have to continue to wage incessant war.

The Farm in Real Life.

Why is it that railway magnates, presidents of banks and heads of great enterprises who must perform do business in cities, almost all try to have homes on farms in the country, where they develop soils, plant crops and breed animals? It is because there is wearisome monotony in piled-up brick and stone. There is confusion in crowded streets and clanging trolley cars and hot, smoky railways. These things man has made, and they are needed, but they are not life, much as the farm boy may imagine them to be.

Life is in the open country. Life is in the growing grass, the waving field of wheat, the springing corn. Life is in the trees and birds, life is in the developing animals of the farm.

Any man who works with the land, who feeds a field and watches the result, gains a real fundamental knowledge of the underlying foundation on which rests all our civilization. It makes him a sober man, a thoughtful man, a reverent man, and if he experiments wisely, a hopeful optimist. Life is where things are born and live and grow. On the farm is real life.

The constitutionalists must be trying to force something by their arrest of a British consul.

Kidnapping appears to be one of the favorite campaign arguments in Illinois local option fights.

The pigeon is still the champion aviator although it has too much sense to loop the loop.

In addition to the poor, it seems that we are to have Congress always with us hereafter.

The Presbyterian synod Saturday adopted a resolution favoring statewide prohibition in Oregon. A notable feature in connection with the resolution is a clause requesting the General Board of Temperance of the church not to send temperance workers into the state and not to make expenditures from a fund of $20,000, raised for the campaign in five northwestern states, without consulting the synod. In other words, the prohibition campaign in Oregon should be waged by Oregon people. The resolution reveals the exercise of good judgment. Too many important prohibition workers might injure a cause which now seems certain of success. —Eugene Guard.

A newspaper in Hope, Ark., gave Opie Read to the world of American letters and now a newspaper of the same bustling little town gives that world, or as much of it as it can reach, something still better. It is the Hope Gazette which is now printing a chapter of the Bible in each of its weekly issues. In the latest issue of the last of the Four Gospels was printed and the editor, writing to the Little Rock Board of Trade, which has interested itself in the novel enterprise, gave assurance that the circulation of the Hope Gazette has been markedly increased as a result of the new feature, and that the paper will continue the publication until the last of the New Testament is printed. It will then begin again with the first chapter of St. Matthews and reprint all of it. It might be asked what is the matter with the Old Testament that it should be debarred the privilege of the circulation of the Hope Gazette. We are convinced that it carries thrilling stories which would come as the most complete news to readers in many sections.

Ambassador Da Gama, speaking at Niagara Falls after the A. B. C. mediators had taken an indefinite recess, and reviewing the work they had accomplished, was rightly congratulatory over the fact that they have thus far succeeded in preventing a war between the United States and Mexico. As that was the original, and, as then appeared, the only purpose of the tender of mediation by the three South America republics, the mediators are to be congratulated upon their success. The ambassador made it clear that the mediators have, regarded the government by Huerta as the government of Mexico, very properly, indeed, since Mexico has no other government and has had none other since Huerta's inauguration. The Washington administration having refused to recognize such a government in Mexico, and having announced, at the beginning of the difficulties which brought the tender of mediation, that the question in issue was not with a Mexican Government, but with an individual Mexican, there will doubtless be casuists claiming that the Brazilian ambassador is not precise in saying that "there is an international side of the conflict."

Notwithstanding the repeated assurance by the State Department that the proposed Columbia treaty, already ratified by the Columbia Congress, contains no apology for our recognition of the Panama Republic so soon after it was organized, the campaign being conducted by the friends of the treaty appears to have as its sole basis the contention that we at least owe an apology. Seizing on a rather boastful declaration of former President Roosevelt about how he took Panama without waiting for Congress to debate the matter, the New York World now publishes the evidence it gathered to use in defense of a liable suit, the purpose of which was to show that the Panama revolution was not a spontaneous uprising, but was engineered by interested persons and received official aid and comfort from the United States. It should be born in mind that this evidence was never used and was not subjected to attack or even unfriendly examination. It glosses over Colombia's behavior preceding the revolution. Senor Reyes, has addressed a public letter to President Wilson in which he declares our attitude toward Colombia and Panama put a stain on our flag. To argue, in the face of this that we are not apologizing is obvious quibbling.

State Encampment.

The delegates from the Shepards-town Post and Womens Relief Corps who attended the State Convention at Tillamook last week returned the latter part of the week tired, but full of praise for the good people of Tillamook for the fine time given them. This 1914 convention is the best the state has ever known, and was enough to enthrall the most indifferant to a proper regard for their country.

On Wednesday morning the parade six blocks in length made up of the patriotic men and women from all over Good Old Oregon was a thing long to be remembered. There was hundreds of flags in this march and it seemed to make these honored Veterans young again to march with life and drum and Old Glory floating so proudly over head.

The Clatskanie delegation have many good reports to make as to the generous way in which they were treated while in Tillamook, such as free receptions etc. On Thursday afternoon more than two hundred automobiles were furnished to take the visitors through the surrounding country where they visited the cheese factories. They are already looking forward to the next encampment which will be held in McMinnville one year hence.—Clatskanie Chief.

5 1/2 Acre Bearing Orchard.

I have offered me a 5 1/2 acre, highly improved fruit orchard tract, which is located about 5 miles out from the city of Salem.—

Best places in Marion county and a big producer.

All of this place in bearing orchards principally Italian prunes. There are some Spitzenberg Apples, Bartlett Pears and 250 English Walnut trees which are six and seven years old. There are also a good many cherry trees of good marketable fruit producers and are about 20 years old and fine large trees.

There are good buildings consisting of house, barn and outhouses and a large prune dryer of 500 bushels per day drying capacity. Water is piped to all of the buildings from a fine spring.

There is a good sprayer and other farm and orchard tools too numerous to mention that I am sure will be put in with the place; altho they are not listed with the contract, but was stated so verbally.

There is also an electric dynamo on the premises and electric lights throughout the dryer.

I have this place for sale or trade as follows:— Price, $20,000. Terms, $5000 to $7000 in good county property or city property that is worth the money, and will assume mortgages on property to $5000 or $6000, this would make from $10,000 to $14,000, which the owner of this place would put into a place here in this county. The balance of the purchase price of his place to be secured by a balance mortgage, or cash or terms to be suitable to purchaser.

Don't you think that this would suit you?

If you want to go take a look at this place I will go with you at any time or will place you directly in touch with the owner.

Yours very truly,
Rollie W. Watson.

Notice Closing Streams.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that, whereas for the purpose of propagating, stocking and protecting the salmon fish which frequent the waters of Nestucca River and its tributaries, in Tillamook County, State of Oregon, the State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners has decided to close the said Nestucca River and its tributaries above a point on said Nestucca River one hundred (100) feet below the lowermost portion of the confluence of Horn Creek and the Nestucca River, to prevent fishing therein by any means whatever, except with hook and line, commonly called angling, for salmon fish during the period of time hereinafter specified.

NOW, THEREFORE, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN by said State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners that said Nestucca River and its tributaries above a point on said Nestucca River one hundred (100) feet below the lowermost portion of the confluence of Horn Creek and the Nestucca River, are and each of them is hereby closed to fishing by any means whatever, except with hook and line, commonly called angling, for salmon fish, from and after 6 o'clock P. M. on the 15th day of July, A. D. 1914, until said streams are opened to salmon fishing again in accordance with Section 5316 of Lord's Oregon Laws, and it is and will be unlawful to fish for, or take or catch any salmon fish by any means whatever, except with hook and line, commonly called angling, during the said period of time above specified.

Any and all persons whomsoever so fishing in violation of this notice will be prosecuted as by law provided.

State Board of Fish and Game Commissioners.
