POOLISH REASONS GIVEN FOR DECLARING WAR.

Emperor William Blames Emperor Nicholas, and Nicholas Blames William.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—Emperor Nicholas issued today a manifesto in which his Majesty outlines the events leading up to the declaration of war by Germany and then says that Russians will rise like one man and will regular the insolent attack of the enemy.

The text follows: "By the grace of God, we, Nicholas II, Emperor and autocrat of all the Russians, King of Poland and Grand Duke of Finland, etc., to all our faithful subjects make known that Russia, related by faith and blood to the Slav peoples and faithful to her historical traditions, has never regarded her fates with indifference.

"But the fraternal sentiments of the Russian people for the Slavs have been awakened with perfect unanimity and extraordinary force in these last few days when Austria-Hungary knowingly addressed to Serbia claims unacceptable for an independent state.

"Forced," Says Czar. "Having paid no attention to the pacific and conciliatory reply of the Serbian government and having rejected the benevolent intervention of Russia, Austria-Hungary made haste to proceed to an armed attack and began to bombard Belgrade, an open place.

"Forced by the situation thus created to take necessary measures of precaution, we ordered the army and the navy put on a war footing, at the same time using every endeavor to obtain a peaceful solution. Our parleys were begun among friendly relations with Germany and her ally, Austria, for the blood and the property of our subjects were dear to us.

"Contrary to our hopes in our good neighborly relations of long date and disregarding our assurances that the mobilization measures taken were in pursuance of no object hostile to her, Germany demanded their immediate cessation. Being rebuffed in this demand, Germany suddenly declared war on Russia.

Russian's Honor at Stake. "Today it is not the only protection of a country related to us and unjustly attacked that must be accorded, but we must safeguard the honor, the dignity and the integrity of Russia and her position among the great powers.

"We believe unshakably that our faithful subjects will rise with the unanimity and devotion for the defense of Russian soil; that internal discord will be forgotten in this threatening hour; that the unity of the emperor with his people will become still more close and that Russia rising like one man, will repulse the insolent attack of the enemy.

"With a profound faith in the justice of our work and with a humble hope in omnipotent Providence in prayer we call God's blessings in Holy Russia and her valiant troops. (Signed) "NICHOLAS."

German Emperor Discloses Correspondence With Czar.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—The German government has issued a white book recounting the events leading up to the war and giving the texts of the telegrams exchanged between the German Emperor and the Russian Emperor.

The government insists that it worked shoulder to shoulder with Great Britain in mediatory action and supported every proposal in Vienna from which it thought a peaceful solution could be hoped.

While all such measures were being denied to the German representative at St. Petersburg, and even before the Austrian answer to the last British-German mediation proposal could reach Berlin, Russia ordered a general mobilization.

The German Emperor in a telegram called attention to the menacing character of the Russian mobilization and the continuance of his own activity in the direction of mediation. On July the Russian Emperor sent the following telegram to the German Emperor:

"I thank thee from my heart for thy mediation, which leaves a gleam of hope that even now all may end peacefully. It is technically impossible to discontinue our military operation, which has been rendered necessary by Austrian mobilization. We are far from wishing war, and so long as negotiations with Austria regarding Serbia continue my troops will not undertake any provocative action. I give thee my word upon it and I will with my strength in God's grace hope for the success of thy mediation at Vienna and for our countries and the peace of Europe.

"THY DEVOTED NICHOLAS."

To this the German Emperor replied: "In answer to thy appeal to my friendship and thy prayer for my help, I undertook mediatory action between the Austro-Hungarian government and thine. While this action was in progress, thy troops were mobilized against my ally, Austria-Hungary, in consequence of which, as I have already informed thee, my mediation was rendered nearly illusory. Nevertheless it continued. But now I am in possession of trustworthy advices concerning the serious war preparations on my eastern frontier, as well.

"My responsibility for the safety of my empire compels me to counter-measures of defense. In my endeavors for the maintenance of the peace of the world, I have gone to the extreme limit of the possible. It is not I that shall bear the responsibility for the peril which now threatens the civilized world. I lay it to thy hand to avert it, even at this moment.

"No one menaces the honor and might of Russia, which well could have waited upon the result of my mediation. The friendship for thee and thy empire bequeathed to me by my grandfather on his deathbed has always been sacred to me, and I have remained true to Russia when it was in grave distress, especially in your last war. The peace of Europe can yet be conserved by thee if Russia decides to discontinue her military measures, which threaten Germany and Austria-Hungary."

Even before this telegram reached its destination, the white book says, the mobilization of all the Russian forces showed clearly that Russia desired war.

State Press Clippings.

Imports of meat have been growing the last few months, but they do not reduce retail prices. Will our Democratic friends explain? Argentina since January 1, has shipped to this country 464,000 quarters of beef and 144,000 quarters of mutton and lamb, but they have not affected prices in the market. Now the Chicago packers say that these prices are about to rise sharply and an increase of from two to four cents a pound at retail is predicted.—News Reporter.

In these days of strife between the great political parties should we remember that after all we are all just a band of brothers here on earth, traveling from the cradle to the grave. We live side by side, our children attend the same school and after the smoke of battle has cleared away we will still be friends and neighbors. Let the bitter things go unsaid. At best, life is short, and we get out of it a full message of sorrow.—Polk County Itemizer.

Are you working for the town in which you live? Are you boasting, not criticizing the efforts of the various local organizations? Are you standing back of the mayor and councilmen you helped to elect in every good move aimed at municipal improvement? Are you patronizing the home advertising stores in preference to dealing with the mail order houses? Are you keeping up with the progress of your home town in reading the home newspaper? Do you realize that it is your patronage that makes it possible for the local merchants to carry complete stocks? Are you proud of your home city as people come to visit and congratulate you on its neat and attractive appearance?—News Reporter.

The great ban of American life today is extravagance. We talk of sins and abuses, like drunkenness, immorality, dishonesty, divorce, and a dozen and one other evils, but as a fact they are all more or less comprehended by extravagance, a part or outgrowth of it. This failing is common to every walk of life. The poor are extravagant as well as the rich. The "have nots" offend as do the "haves" whatever difference there is being in degree and not in principle. Our national government is extravagant and so is our state government, our county governments, and city governments. Most of our railroads are extravagant and are all heavily in debt, and corporations are extravagant and with rare exception in debt. Hence it is natural that the individual also should be extravagant and that debt should be a matter of course and insolvency not unusual.—Polk County Observer.

Man should abstain from whatever is quite sure to lead him into sin. There are Total Abstinence Societies in the Church but no Prohibition Societies. A Catholic may belong to the Prohibition Party and vote for Prohibition, but it is our observation that Party Prohibition treads preciously near rock reefs of destruction to our personal liberties. It is a point well taken, and we believe every Catholic parent should encourage their children to abstain from the use of intoxicating beverages, at least while in their teens for the good of their bodily health and spiritual advancement. We are not among those who believe in legal prohibition, but we believe in parental prohibition. Parents have a right and duty to prohibit the use of liquor for children. This business of parents saying that they permit their children to eat and drink whatever they eat and drink themselves is nonsense. The child doesn't think as a man, it needn't eat like a man.—Father LeMiller in Verboort-Roy Calendar.

Out of the labyrinth of figures, facts, and near facts on the question of railway rates, the main points of contention have for weeks been slowly emerging. President Ripley, of the great Santa Fe system, has with an admirable appearance of candor helped to set forth before the country the point of view of the railway men in an article in the January Atlantic, says Current Literature. He does not limit himself to the specific question of rates, but endeavors to correct what he feels to be false position in general in which the people have come to regard the railways. He admits that in the past, up to a comparatively few years ago, the public did its duty to the railways better than the railways did their duty to the public. The public grew rightly incensed and was justified in taking "vigorous measures" to correct "deplorable abuses" that characterized railway management. But the public has allowed itself to go farther than was fair, and the railways now have a right to complain that they are doing their duty to the public better than the public is doing its duty to them. As a result both are suffering. The county, Mr. Ripley maintains, has been feeling the effects, for the last three years of the "unhealthy conditions" of the railway business. Here he gets down to some interesting figures. If the railways had expended as much, during each of the last three years, for operation, addition and betterments as it was expending in 1907, their expenditures would have been $400,000,000 larger. If they had spent proportionally as much for new railway construction, their expenditures would have been $300,000,000 larger still. The fact, instead of increasing their expenditures as they should have done to keep abreast of the growth of commerce, the railways have actually curtailed expenditures by $700,000,000, has we are told, been one of the main influences for prolonging the depression of business.—Rogue River Courier.
