George Washington is doing business on a much firmer foundation—a few old rotten stumps having been removed from under his office. Say George, it don't look exactly the right stunt for the chief fire warden to be doing business in a fire trap building.

The ladies belonging to the Shakespear Club, after the summer vacations, resumed their monthly gatherings on Tuesday afternoon of last week, when they met at the home of Mrs. Barrett and had a delightful time. There were a number of invited and the hostess served a dainty lunch.

The W. R. C. met in Artisan hall on Saturday afternoon and had the honor of having Mrs. McBride, Department Inspector of Oregon, present. She was very enthusiastic in her praise and complimented the members on the work they are doing. As yet, little relief work has had to be done, as most of the veterans, their widows and orphans, are capable of caring for them selves. Post Commander Reynolds, on behalf of the Corinth post, G. A. R., presented the corps with a portrait of Lincoln, the corps president, Mrs. Lucas, accepted the gift, with a few well chosen words. It was hung in a prominent place at the head of the hall. The president presented Mrs. McBride with a souvenir spoon as a gift from the members, and she in turn responded most cordially. Mrs. Hewitt, of Bar View, was a visitor and made a few pleasant remarks. After the meeting adjourned a long table was set, with all the good things that help to make a birthday lunch long to be remembered. Every one had a good time and will be on hand at the next meeting October 10.

Women in Politics.

Quite a bit of amusement is going the rounds as a result of an effort to form a free trade Woman's Club in this city to boost Dr. Smith for Governor. As a result for a call for a meeting only four local ladies met a dignified lady from Portland. This lady, so our informant tells us, was stenographer for four years for Dr. Smith, and she is now going over the state attempting to form Women's Democratic Clubs. If she is not meeting any more success than she did in Tillamook then her efforts will not amount to a great deal.

When speaking of Dr. Withycombe she sneeringly referred to him as a veterinarian doctor and looked down upon him as below her dignity, but Dr. Smith, why, he was a dear nice gentleman. Why should a key punching stenographer think herself so much above and superior to a veterinarian surgeon, we don't know. But this is the funny part, and which is causing the fun and the gossips to smile. When it came to the four unterrified Democratic ladies electing officers, it was here where trouble commenced. The lady who was "slated" for president was objected to because she was the wife of a candidate of a different political faith to the free trade, Smith-West-Chamberlain political bosses, who are making a strenuous effort to ride the water wagon and the beer wagon at the same time.

Just wait until election day and see how the Republican women voters of Tillamook will "swat" that kind of a combination, for that kind of prostitution of politics won't go here.

"DRYS" HOLD MEETING SUNDAY.

Large Congregation at the Christian Church.

At a union meeting of the Tillamook Churches last Sunday night in the Christian Church, R. P. Hutton of the Anti Saloon League, of Oregon spoke on the business phases of the Oregon Dry Campaign.

He stated that the world had got the habit of doing tomorrow what the United States did to day. The United States had the habit of doing tomorrow what Oregon did today, so that to be an Oregonian was greater than to be a king of Oregon was ruling the world.

If Oregon progressives and with woman suffrage went dry Congress would submit the national dry amendment. If this nation was dry or nearly so when Uncle Sam sat down at the head of the table to arrange with all civilized nations for the cessation of war they would agree to let war and liquor, the twin destroyers die together. Three fourths of all taxes in civilized countries now goes to war. The only excuse offered for the saloon is that "We need the money." If nations agree to disarm the last excuse for the saloon is gone.

On the business phases of the question he said, "John D. Rockefeller, the Guggenheims and the Pittsburg Board of Trade have made the important discovery that God Almighty tells the truth. They like all others have for years admitted that the liquor traffic is wrong but held that it was profitable. They have come to the conclusion now that so far as the prohibition of the liquor business is concerned if you "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, all these things shall be added unto you".

On this phase he said: "Going dry boosts dividends. Get behind the movement for a dry state and a dry nation, for business reasons. This is the message which Pittsburg manufacturers and members of the Pittsburg Board of Trade are sending to the business men of Oregon, Washington, California and Colorado this fall."

"These Pittsburg men paid out of their own pockets for a luncheon to Portland business men in order that they might tell them why the Pittsburg board of trade had petitioned Congress to submit prohibition. Briefly summed up, they found that valuable machinery stood idle on Monday because men were absent, not having recovered from their Saturday and Sunday debauches in the open saloons. They found that the accidents and deaths which they were compelled to pay for happened on Monday, and for the same reason. They found that their defective and spoiled work happened on Monday, and for the same reason manufacturers are dry."

"In December 600 of the Pittsburg manufacturers, lunching together in the Ft. Pitt Hotel, took account of these things, declared for state and national prohibition, and petitioned Congress for the submission of the Shepherd-Hobson national dry amendment. The West Virginia Lumber Industries Association, the Ohio Manufacturers Association, the National Foundrymen's Association, 48 per cent of the railroads of America and many other productive industries, are taking action along similar lines.

"The Colorado Fuel & Iron Company was wet. This summer the troops closed saloons in the strike district. The output man increased 11 per cent. Guggenheim and Rockefeller, who can smell a dollar further than a camel can scent water, are the owners of the Colorado Fuel & Iron. The Colorado Fuel & Iron has now turned dry."

"The Booth-Kelly Lumber Co., of Eugene, the Northwestern Door Co., Portland, the Baker White Pine Lumber Co., of Baker, and other manufacturers of Oregon, testify that the saloon is the heaviest drain upon their business. In order to secure the location of new factories, in order to protect the factories which we have, it is business to get rid of the liquor business in Oregon.

"The Anti-Saloon League has a circulation of more than a million a month for its several publications. This means five million readers, and includes most of the big manufacturers. It is a paid circulation, which means that the readers are interested and read the paper.

"You would consider it good business if the Baptists were going to hold a national convention on the Pacific Coast, to reach all the Baptists in America with the facts as to why your state your county your city were the ideal places in America for Baptists to invest. Your Chamber of

Prohibition vs. Temperance

In Germany, where prohibition is unknown and where all the people have been temperate drinkers of wholesome beers and light wines, there is less drunkenness than in Maine or in Kansas—the two most conspicuous prohibition states in the Union.

The same is true of France and Italy. The world over you will find that the really temperate races are those who are not prohibited from drinking temperate beverages such as beer and wine.

Prohibition in Germany, France or Italy would produce exactly the same results that it has produced in every state in the Union where prohibitory laws have been enacted. It would not stop men from drinking nor decrease drunkenness, but it would drive out the mild drinks and encourage men who do drink to resort secretly to the highly concentrated spirits.

If prohibition really saved men from the "curse of drink" it would have more to commend it to the intelligence of the people. But, as the great editor, Henry Watterson, observes in the Louisville Courier-Journal, "It does not promote either temperance or virtue. It arouses human passion to frenzy by restricting private rights. It does not reduce drunkards. It multiplies Parishes and malefactors."—Paid Advertisement.

E. D. Ulrich, Chamber of Commerce, Portland, Oregon.

Commerce would grab at the chance as a hungry dog a bone. Now, five million readers will read of the state and the county and the city which give the big dry majorities this fall. We shall boost these places in all the dry publications. Many of those readers will attend the Panama Fair in San Francisco next year. Manufacturers will say, "We must look at that city on the way out. It gave a big dry majority. If they have the proper natural advantages we shall want to locate that western branch factory in that place." Others will say, "We want to move west; we must look at this town, for we want to live in a dry city, where the sentiment is strong. Others will say, "We believe that investment in a dry town is more profitable and that taxes are lower. We must visit this town and make an investment."

"Anything that reaches five million people with information about any place of a kind toward which those five million people are favorably prejudiced, is good advertising. It is the kind of a stunt publicity agents dream about and when that advertising is true, and has been proven by a referendum vote of all the people of that community, and they have endorsed it by an overwhelming majority, it is the best business in the world. If Oregon can give the biggest dry majority that ever was given, and your county can be the driest county, and your city the banner spot of the county, you will achieved advertising which will be worth millions of dollars, and which a million dollars would not have secured for you in space rates. "Five hundred and eighty-five of the business men of Portland, the leaders, are putting themselves behind the effort to advertise Oregon as the driest state in the union, and Portland as the largest dry city in the world. One hundred and fifty business men in Eugene pledge a thousand dollars to get the dry banner for Lane County, and the Eugene Springfield city. They are sending notaries to round up every unregistered voter. Corvallis, Albany, McMinnville are already in the field for the same purpose. The funds are being administered by an executive committee of business men. They are putting organizers into the field to get out the vote. They are sending notaries to register them. Mentalities has taken the place of sentimentalities and business organizers have replaced the hot air artists. It is business now, and it is good business to be first.

"Other things being equal, the one who is first at the end will be the one who is first at the start. There are votes and to spare in every place in Oregon. The city which gets the vote out is the city which will win. Election comes on November 3. Registration closes October 15. There is not a moment to lose, and it is no job to put into the hands of a man who has failed in everything else. If you want this thing, it will up to you to drop your other business for a few weeks and attend to this business. Do this public business well, and you will do your private business good."
