Whatever you do don't forget to talk about and boost the Tillamook County Fair. Say, did you know it is going to be the best fair ever held in Tillamook?

The new postoffice is a credit to the city but there is one defect. It needs a letter box on the outside, for when the front door is closed there is no place to mail letters.

Democratic free trade has knocked the values out of timber, and for that reason we believe the timber men have just grounds to demand that a lower assessment be placed on their timber. They are up against a hard problem, with stumpage in Canada at 50c. a thousand and Canadian lumber admitted free into the United States. So much for Democratic free trade.

Some people want to blame the scarcity of money to automobiles. Well, it is true that a large amount of money is going east for automobiles, supplies and gasoline every year, the automobile mania is here to stay, and we look for them to become more numerous, especially as they are coming down in price. The trouble is a large number of persons buy autos who can't afford to do so and haven't the necessary income.

Tillamook County is threatened with a law suit if it builds the Sour Grass road at Dolph. And it is the toll road people who threaten to do this. On general principles every toll road should be put out of business, and heaven only knows that the toll road graft in the south part of the county for many years have been a curse both to Yamhill and Tillamook counties. To hedges with such antiquated, graft methods of road maintenance.

The City Council will make a great mistake, in building a new city hall, if it does not provide a large auditorium. It is true that quite a number of things are contemplated in the plans, but if it comes to cutting out anything the auditorium should be the last. The city badly needs it and some revenue would be derived from it. As we have previously stated, a good auditorium would go a long way to make Tillamook a convention city. We want people to come here and this is a good inducement.

It is more than probable that the County Court will accept the proposition from the Bayocean people, who offered to operate their dredge for seven months and furnish the labor on the dredge in the construction of 2 1/2 miles of that road on the bay. We hope that this matter will soon be settled and work started as soon as possible, for delay is getting tiresome. With that amount of donation work given by the Bayocean people the road should be completed by the County Court next year in time for the summer travel, which will be great.

The report of the cheese industry in Tillamook County for last year, as published in our last issue, shows that co-operative associations have done for the cheese industry of Tillamook County, and yet, for all that, there are some co-operative associations that will not co-operate. It is co-operation of the different co-operative associations that have brought about such flattering success and the high price paid for butter fat for so many years. The snap shot man can look back to the time when there was no uniform grade of cheese and when cheese buyers used to come here and demoralize the price of cheese on account of no system between the different factories, and set the price themselves. It is altogether different now, for the jobbers have to pay the prevailing price if they want Tillamook cheese, and at a price fixed here. Considering Democratic free trade and the scarcity of money, we think the dairymen can congratulate themselves that they did so well with their product last year and we hope this will prevail in the future, although there are grave doubts with the free trade party in power.

The agitation about Dago labor won't down. We are informed that contractors claim they can get one third more work out of this kind of labor than that furnished by local people. The contractors are in a position to know. The contract system was a matter that was forced upon putting in a fair day's work when they worked for the county. If the taxpayers don't want the contract system it is up to them to attend the next budget meeting and make their wishes known, but in doing so they must conclusively show that the county is more work by day labor. Here they will find that they cannot prove this. The snap shot man is in favor of giving the home people the road work, but they must do a good day's work and the county must receive value for money paid out. This idea when a man works for the county, of doing as little work as possible, won't go any longer. We are sorry to hear so many complaints about Dago labor, and see the injustice it is to those who have not shirked work when working for the county, so, under the circumstances, with the present law, we hardly see a way out, unless the County Court takes the bull by the horns and ignores the law.

Give the business men a rest. Hardly a week passes but what two or three persons are around soliciting money for this or that cause. We remember the adage of the good old book which says, "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," but when this kind of a thing is overdone and the business men are called upon to subscribe to help organizations out of a hole they dug for themselves, why, then, we don't think its more blessed to give than to receive. Take some of our church organizations and for years it has been a struggle with them to make up the preacher's salary, and all manner of devices and socials and entertainments have been resorted to to raise money, and, of course, the business men are the first to be called upon to help out. If some of our religious organizations would raise the preacher's salary amongst themselves and sufficient money for incidental expenses before he was employed, it would be a good thing, but some how we have a poor idea of some of our church goers who subscribe but very little and will pass the plate or drop a measly five or ten cents into it when the Sunday offering is taken up and then come around and want business men to subscribe from fifty cents to five or ten dollars. Have you ever noticed the large number of five and ten cent pieces there are in the collections taken up in other churches and the small amount of coins of larger denominations? Is Tillamook City Church poor because some of the dear brothers are so tight fisted? If this little sermonette will do any good in inducing some of the dear brothers to loosen up and dir up more liberally and cheerfully to support their own churches, it would not be necessary to keep on "touching" the business men for money, which, by the way, isn't any too flush with them just now, in fact is more like draining blood from a turnip. There are a large number of other things the business men are called upon to subscribe to, but we will not touch upon them at this time, but will have a few hot shots at them from time to time. But as we remarked at first, "give the business men a rest," for they have been cheerful givers in the past and have been overworked in this respect.

Two More Belligerents.

At this writing Rumania and Bulgaria seem determined to enter the war on the side of the allies. Several preliminaries have been arranged. The two countries appear to have settled the differences which caused the shocking aftermath of the Balkan war with Turkey. It is reported, and there is much plausibility in the report, that Russia has acceded to certain old claims as to boundaries. Russia's necessities are such that it would concede anything in reason. It needs help in dealing with Germany and Austria Hungary in the Eastern theatre of the war. Rumania, with less than 7,000,000 population, has a war strength of 380,000 men. Bulgaria, with 4,000,000 population, has a war strength of 450,000. Each has a large population of men of military age available for duty, but unorganized. That both armies are capable will not be questioned. They demonstrated their prowess in the Balkan war.

Germany is striving in every way to avert the entry of the two additional belligerents. It is urging Austria-Hungary to make concessions. Austria is a singularly unfortunate ally. With an internal population of an oil and water character, it has been unfortunate in its relations with its neighbors. All seem to remember ancient wrongs and to have decided that this is the right time to seek redress. Even should Austria make concessions they might be received with suspicion. Italy was offered enough and would have probably kept out of the war if it had been sure that the concessions would not be revoked after the conflict. In that event it could have expected no help from the allies. Rumania may follow the same course of reasoning. It is likely that it will become a full-fledged member of the alliance that is fighting Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey. It is not improbable that Greece will also shy its castor into the ring. This will leave Norway and Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland and Spain as the only neutral countries of Europe. However the war will end, there is sure to be a great revision of the map of Europe.

Death of Mrs. Albert Olds.

Addie Dove Olds, wife of Albert Olds died at her home in Tillamook, June 9, 1915, at 3:30 a.m., after a long and painful illness which she bore with patience. Deceased was the loving daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. C. Quick, was 28 years, 2 months and 23 days old at the time of her death. She leaves besides her aged parents, four brothers, Dick and Harry Quick, of Forest Grove, Ore.; Ike and Ladd Quick, of Tillamook; two sisters, Mrs. Susie Erickson, of Center, Wash., and Mrs. Charley Wells, of Netarts; and a husband two sons, Delmar, age 6, and Emmett age 2 1/2 years. She was a devoted wife and loving mother and had been a member of the U. B. church of Pleasant Valley for the past 11 years. The funeral services were held at the U. B. Church this (Thursday) morning at 11 o'clock, the religious services being conducted by the Rev. C. E. Pearson, and the interment in the I. O. O. F. cemetery, which was attended by a large number of sympathizing friends and neighbors.

THE CALIFORNIA JUBILEE QUARTET—"ALL STARS."

Christian Church, Friday & Saturday, June 11th and 12th.

Every member of the California Jubilee Quartet is an artist in his particular line and all show remarkable ability and training in quartet work. Impersonations, instrumental solos, readings, from the noted color writer Paul Lawrence Dunbar, quartet solos, duets and trios make up the most varied and entertaining program.

The feature of the evening is the work of the double voiced singer, the man who possesses the baritone and lyric soprano voices. He sings the highest pieces with an ease that is astonishing. The pianist is advertised as the "Black Paderewski," and is said to be the finest colored pianist in the country.

Mr. Brooks the bass singer, has a most melodious voice, smooth and strong and one that strikes the ear pleasantly at all times. It would be hard to find a tenor singer with a purer and more pleasant voice than Mr. Dennie. His high, clear voice has earned for him the title of the silver-toned singer.

It is in the quartet work that the company appears to best advantage. The harmony in their voices is such as can only be produced by months and years of practice. A goodly number of the good old jubilee songs are on the program and it is in these that the singers excel. There is nothing so full of genuine sweetness, so full of melody as these old negro songs with all their simplicity, and it takes the real negroes to sing them as they should be sung. The white man can sing them, but not with the same feeling as can the colored man.

The natural melody of the negro race is brought out to best advantage in the plantation and jubilee songs. Those who enjoy good singing with lots of jubilee snap should not fail to hear the all-star jubilee quartet. The program is a varied one, the music ranging from these plantation melodies to the more difficult classics. Dialect readings, impersonations and piano solos by the "Black Paderewski" help to make up a varied program.

Classic and popular songs, negro melodies, darkie mimicry, camp meeting, home, cabin and river songs of slavery days, those that bring tears to the eyes, interspersed with more lively tunes that induce the feet to make time, will follow each other in rapid succession at the concert to be given by the California Jubilee Quartet. This quartet of colored vocalists give a most varied program, the quality and finish of which calls forth the highest praise wherever they appear. As special features they offer a very clever impersonator, a man who can change right in the middle of a piece from baritone to lyric soprano, and a pianist who is one of the most talented musicians among the colored people. Mr. Stewart has a number of difficult selections for the left hand only on his repertoire. Come out and enjoy a good, wholesome high-class evening's entertainment.

Katherine Neal-Simmons Pleases Audience.

The benefit concert given last Friday night at the high school auditorium for the ladies Presbyterian Guild by Katherine Neal-Simmons, soprano assisted by Lucia Barton-Gillhouses, Violinist and Miss Evelyn Paddock pianist, was a decided success.

Mrs. Simmons possesses a lyric voice of unusual sweetness and purity, singing with grace and ease, which is enhanced by her splendid interpretation. She captivated the audience with Massenet's beautiful "Elegie" followed by another ovation when she sang the "Little Gray home in the West" and "Long Long Ago." Other numbers which she gave in German and Italian equally pleased.

The violin numbers played by Lucia Barton-Gillhouses were thoroughly enjoyed by the appreciative audience. Her most effective number being "Traumeri" by Schuman.
 Miss, Evelyn Paddock, who is a promising young pianist gave numbers by "Mendelssohn" and McDowell with splendid tone, color and phrasing, was also the efficient accompanist of the evening.

CHAUTAUQUA, TILLAMOOK, JULY 12-17.

The Adelpian Quartet

HERE is one of the oldest musical organizations in the country and one of the most widely traveled. Organized in 1838, it has been on the road every season since. Its members survived on merit alone. They have a very wide repertoire, and their voices blend perfectly. They are one of the finest quartets in the country and are sure of an ovation from every Chautauqua where they appear. They will fill an engagement at the assembly here.

Uncle Silas Says.

The old farmer who yields to the importunities of his son or daughter to quit work and move to town makes a great mistake. He finds himself entirely out of his natural element and his enforced idleness irksome in the extreme. He will become crabbed, reactionary, stingy, opposed to all improvements and soon begin to hate everything and everybody—even himself. His good wife will have her own peculiar trials and miseries, too. She will be dreadfully discontented with her new surroundings and circumstances and will long to return to the dear old homestead—will think of it constantly by day and dream of it by night. While it may be a good thing for the son or daughter (who induced him to move to town) to get married and occupy the old homestead, to do so can only result in unhappiness for the old father and mother whose lives thereby will be shortened many years. No, don't "retire," not even for your children's sake. Let them rustle for a start in life as you had to do, and, of course, help them all you can; but to give up your old home that they may have an easy start in life is asking too much.

The cow will produce seven times as much human food per unit of feed consumed as will the steer. In fact, the corn stalks leaves and cobs produced on one acre of good corn, if fed to a steer, will provide material for about 50 per cent edible dry matter in the form of flesh, while, if fed to a dairy cow, about 330 per cent edible dry matter will be produced. Ordinary economy, then, would demand that our hill pasture and lowland meadow, as well as coarse fodders of our cultivated fields should as much as possible, be employed in the production of milk. We don't have to go into the dairy business to get the most profit out of our milk, because we can sell all we can produce to the butter and cheese factories if we will handle it right and by taking the right care of our cans. Many farmers merely wash them out with dirty water, then put on the covers without thoroughly rinsing and do not let the air in. The only way to remedy this is to wash the cans thoroughly and allow them to drain and stand in the sun as much as possible. It requires considerable money and labor to carry on the dairy business successfully, whereas, the production of milk on the farm for sale to the factories requires but comparatively little capital and labor, comparatively little capital and labor, needs to be done may be done with a rasp. Never cut it, for to do so would do far more harm than good. The hoof wall should be rasped off on the bottom surface until the relation of the heel, side and toe is approximately one, two and three in length, and the work should be done in such a manner as to cause the foot to rest squarely on the ground. Practice and observation will soon enable a man who has fair judgment to determine just what trimming the feet of each coltine eds and how often attention to them will be required. As a general rule, the feet should be examined every six or eight weeks.

I am talking more about livestock than anything else because I regard that industry, coupled with farming, as far more profitable than merely raising crops for sale at the mercy of produce combines in the various markets by whom the price that the producer shall receive and the ultimate consumer shall pay is fixed, regardless of supply and demand. In my experience I have found that the production of milk, to be sold to butter and cheese factories, is, when properly managed, quite profitable. Regularity in feeding and milking is an important point in keeping up the flow of milk. One cannot milk in the morning any time between 5:30 and 9:30 and in the evening between 4:30 and 7 and expect the cow to do her best. In my experience there is a difference of at least 10 per cent between regularity and irregularity. Having a regular hour in the morning to milk it will not do to lye in bed until much later on Sunday morning. If more sleep is needed, milk the cows at the usual time and creep back into bed. There are many chores about the farm that two or three hours earlier or later in doing them makes no particular difference, but milking and feeding the milch cows is not one of them.

There's money in raising Angora goats, which is a very different animal from his distant relative of the caneaning type, now and then seen about a livery stable in town, or used by an urchin to draw his cart. The fleece of the Angora is long, silky and wavy, and it is not wool, but mohair. The fleece from the pure bred animal is used for making very high class fabrics, and the best mohair commands a high price. The grades yield a fleece that is used for lap robes, blankets, rugs, etc., and while it brings a good deal less money than imported mohair it generally sells for considerably more than wool. The pelts make beautiful robes, rugs, furs and trimmings, and a good deal of the flesh of the grades is eaten for nutrition. It is very good when properly fattened, but, owing to prejudice, very few people eat goat meat knowingly.

Manure that is allowed to remain in the barnyard does not give as good results as that taken from the stalls, which fact has been shown by using both kinds of manure on growing crops. That is not to say that manure should be kept in stalls; on the contrary, it should be removed about every day for the comfort and health of the animals; but it points to the fact that it should be carefully stored under cover, to prevent leaching by rains. All foods should be fine and so the bedding, which will permit a better absorption of liquids.
