Kill Kare Study Club.

The last meeting of the Kill Kare Study Klub, before vacation, was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Plank, Mrs. Franklin being the assisting hostess. The afternoon was a pleasant one and all enjoyed the "Round Table" talks of the last committee, Mrs. Alderman as chairman. Mrs. Edwards gave her views of the new book "A Fair Country," by "Winston Churchill." Mrs. Poorman entertained by discussing her opinions on the book "Inside the City," by the same author. Mrs. Case's description of the "Patrol of the Sundance Trail" was quite flattering. It is true Ralph Connor introduced it for amusement only but his ideals were highly chosen.

Mrs. Alderman gave a short talk on the book "The eyes of the World" by Howard Bell Wright, and were not overly complimentary. Books of this character do very little in uplifting the minds of readers of either sex.

And last but not least, Mrs. Haberlach gave a glowing description of the play "Every Woman," which she had seen on her recent trip to California.

The Klub voted in Mrs. Reedy as a new member, to fill the vacancy caused by Mrs. Sarchet's departure.

Mrs. Bales was solicited as a delegate to go to the Woman's State Convention at Salem this fall. Mrs. Christensen was appointed to go in her stead, if she cannot go.

The guests of the afternoon were Mesdames McNair, Crenshaw, Harter and Oscar Schultz. The Klub expects to take up the study of immigration and also the topic of South America for their next year's work. Current events will also be discussed at every meeting.

The next meeting will be held the third Thursday in September.

American Horses in Demand.

Twenty years ago, when times in the United States were so bad that prices for farm products got down almost to the vanishing point, a sheep could be bought for 25 cents, but this was not the worst. In some of the Northwestern states horses could not be given away, and many were turned loose to pick up subsistence for themselves on the vacant plains and mountain sides. Automobiles were just beginning to attract general notice. A text enlarged on in various publications was "the coming horseless era." This period has not arrived yet, in spite of the fact that cities alone now has ten times as many automobiles as were then used in the entire country.

No one in the United States need fear to go ahead with all possibly energy in breeding horses and mules. All find a ready market at good prices. The European demand of war purposes is heavy, and when peace comes draft animals will be wanted industrially. Shall we have a surplus? During the thirty years preceding 1900 our horse enumeration showed a large increase. Between 1900 and 1910 the increase was 157,000 a year, and between 1910 and 1914, 282,000 a year. This spring's addition of colts is estimated at 300,000. Our breeders say they can spare 250,000 horses a year for the next five years, and the foreign requirements, to say nothing of the home demand, will easily absorb this number.

Americans who raise horses and mules feel sure that they can go ahead actively to the limit. They are experts in the business and lose no opportunity for its improvement. In spite of the great boom in automobiles the horseless era is indefinitely postponed.

A foreign exchange has this interesting paragraph: There is still in existence an Egyptian papyrus of the date of 3500 years before the Christian era, which contains the following caution: "My son, do not linger in the wineshop or drink too much wine. It causeth thee to utter words regarding thy neighbor which thou rememberest not. Thou fallst upon the ground, thy limbs become weak as those of a child. One cometh to trade with thee and findest thee so. Then say they, 'Take away the fellow, for he is drunk.' This is believed to be the oldest temperance lecture in existence.
