TILLAMOOK WINS PRIZES AT STATE FAIR.

County Walks Away With First Prize—School Exhibit Gets Fourth Prize—Cheese on Top.

Tillamook County's reputation was well sustained at the Oregon State Fair. In answer to a telegram sent by the Headlight to J. H. Dunstan called the editor up on the phone on Wednesday afternoon and informed him that Tillamook County had won the first prize for county exhibit. That the school exhibit from this county had won the fourth prize, and that had won the fourth prize, and that the exhibit by the Tillamook Creamery Association had won first honors.

Sixteen Counties Represented at the State Fair.

A post card from J. H. Dunstan informs us that the county exhibit at the State Fair was completed on Sunday evening, and was the first county in the state to be ready. Mr. Dunstan also informs us that Tillamook County has a much better exhibit than last year.

The Oregonian on commenting on the county exhibits at the State Fair said on Tuesday:

As the only coast county represented, Tillamook's booth is winning much favorable comment. Aside from a beautiful display of grasses and grains, giant salmon, great ocean crabs and other sea products are here to amaze the inland visitor. In a separate booth Tillamook County shows in excellent fashion the great cheese and dairy industry which has been developed.

The judges of the county agricultural exhibits plainly have a difficult task ahead of them, for each of the 16 counties entitled to compete has put forth remarkable efforts to make a good display. In addition to Marion not in the competition, the counties having exhibits of agricultural products in the new pavilion are: Tillamook, Multnomah, Clackamas, Washington, Lane, Polk, Linn, Benton, Morrow, Union, Wallowa, Jackson, Columbia, Gilliam, Umatilla and Malheur.

School Boys Send Cooking to Fair.

The greater part of the cooking and baking sent by the pupils of the Tillamook Schools to the State Fair at Salem, was done by boys.

William Monroe, of the 7th grade, entered a cake which Miss Ueland pronounced extraordinarily good, and four boys of the 4th grade, Ernest Dodge, Clay Myers, Leslie Gray and Herschel Laughlin, each entered bread.

CONVICT KILLS HARRY MINTO.
Penitentiary Head Falls in Battle Near Albany—Jefferson Marshal Shot.

Salem, Or., Sept. 28.—Harry Minto, superintendent of the Oregon Penitentiary, was shot and killed at 11:30 last night, a few miles north of Albany, by Otto Hooker, an escaped convict.

A few hours earlier, Hooker had shot and perhaps fatally wounded J. J. Benson, City Marshal of Jefferson.

Minto Shot in Head.

After Hooker had shot Marshal Benson, Superintendent Minto started directly for Albany to head off the fugitive convict. Returning north from Albany in company with guard Johnson, he came upon Hooker.

Minto and the convict opened fire at about the same time, Minto using a shotgun and the convict a revolver. A bullet hit Minto in the head killing him instantly. Hooker escaped amid a hail of shots fired by Guard Johnson. Hooker was evidently not hit. He was seen an hour later near Millersville station, some distance south of Jefferson.

Three Poses in Pursuit.

Three poses are on the trail, one from Albany and two from Salem, one led by Sheriff William Esch. The officer shot by Hooker at Jefferson is dangerously wounded and may die.

Hooker escaped from the prison work gang today near the prison. He was serving time for burglary, having been sentenced from Umatilla County a year ago. He had been a quiet prisoner and was not considered desperate.

The gun which Hooker killed Minto had been taken from Marshal Benson at Jefferson, the convict having shot the officer while they were scuffling.

Marshal Shot in Scuffle.

Hooker escaped this afternoon from a gang of 25 convicts grubbing brush a mile south of the penitentiary. When Hooker slipped into the brush from the field where the gang of prisoners were at work, he was not missed immediately. Later when the alarm was sounded, Superintendent Minto rushed to the scene in an automobile. They trailed Hooker southward and Monto, leaving part of the posse, pushed on ahead to Jefferson, where he notified Marshal Benson to be on the watch. Minto then returned to the vicinity of the place where the escape took place.

Avoiding his pursuers, Hooker entered Jefferson about 10 o'clock last night and was accosted by Benson, who summoned him to surrender. According to word reaching here, Hooker made as if to comply, but when Benson walked up to him, he grappled with the officer and wrested his gun from his grasp. Hooker then turned the revolver on the marshal and shot him, the bullet striking the marshal just above the collar bone and ranging downward.

Hooker Shot at Albany.

Albany, Or., Sept. 28.—Otto Hooker, the youthful convict who late Monday night aimed in the moonlight and killed Harry Minto, superintendent and warden of the Oregon State Penitentiary and dangerously wounded J. J. Benson, City Marshal of Jefferson, Ore., was shot and possibly fatally wounded tonight at 11:30 o'clock, almost 24 hours to a minute from the time he shot Warden Minto.

Hooker was shot by A. L. Long, patrolman of Portland, who aided in pulling Hooker from his place of hiding under a newly constructed, but unoccupied house in the East end suburbs of Albany. Hooker had been discovered when he coughed, attracting the attention of a neighbor next door, who knew the house was unoccupied.

Convict Shot Through Breast.

Hooker was shot through the breast by Long, when he whipped his gun from under his stomach, just as he was half pulled from under the house, and made as if to shoot his captors. The bullet came out on his shoulder, Hooker having writhed from a position on his stomach just as he whipped out his gun, to a side position facing the officers. The wounded man was taken to St. Mary's Hospital where he died.

L. D. Moore, John Talent, both guards at the penitentiary, Deputy Sheriff H. Christofferson, of Multnomah County, and Patrolman A. J. Long, of Portland, made the capture.

A report reached the men who were on guard watching the Southern Pacific trains at Albany that a man whose name had not yet been learned and who lives at eighth and Cravland streets Albany had heard a man cough under the floor of an unfinished house next to his own. Moore, Talent, Christofferson and Long went to the scene. When they reached the house they discovered Hooker.

Hooker Resists Capture.

They grabbed him by the legs and shoulders and attempted to pull him from under. Hooker resisted. He was lying flat on his face with his gun under him. Suddenly he twisted, rolled partly on his back and tried to shove his gun at the captors. Long, quick as a flash, let fire and the bullet went through Hooker's breast.

The shot was from a Krag-Jorgensen rifle, carried by Long.

At first it was thought that the captive would surely die soon from the great gaping wound in his chest, but at the hospital two hours after the shooting he had regained consciousness ness and showed signs of vitality which led the physician to declare he had an even chance for recovery. He talked freely and denied flately having shot Mr. Minto and refused to say how he had come to Albany.

It was discovered when Hooker was shot Mr. Minto and refused to say that his gun was empty. The officers believe he "broke" his gun in whipping it out from under him and that the shells will be found.

Says

It is glorious to get old and be glad of it. The unhappy man is always trying to get things. The happy man is always trying to give things.

Study the higher branches, but remember that the higher branches that father breaks off the apple tree back of the home have more to do with shaping destiny.

I am not surprised at what anybody does—if an angel falls or a devil rises I'll pity the one and love him. I'll cheer the other and love him. Both are made out of the same kind of mud.

I know when I am growing—I am so dissatisfied with myself. I know when I am not growing—I am so satisfied with myself.

You have to pay for what you get, or you don't get it. People may give things to you, but you don't get them. You can't get something for nothing. You must give an equivalent. You can't give help to a beggar until he tries to help himself. That's why I charge for my lectures; the audience that pays gets more out of them. The "dead-head" who pays nothing generally appreciates least, because he has given least, and he is therefore the greatest kicker. Free things are a failure. Even salvation isn't free. It is the most costly thing in life because you have to give all you have for it. (Copyright, 1915, The Lyceum Magazine)
