Local interest in the big gridiron clash next Saturday in Eugene between the Oregon Agricultural College and Oregon University, is growing daily. Backers of both sides are eager to bet on the outcome of the game and for the special benefit of the high school faculty the result of the game by quarters will be wired from Portland. There are many people in the city who are graduates of both schools and they are eagerly awaiting the result of the game.

W. G. Dwight has given the high school free use of the opera hall for basketball and is allowing the students the privilege of fixing the hall for the games that are scheduled for the season.

Representatives from four classes in the high school met this week and arranged a basketball schedule of three games for each class and the class having the highest percentage at the close of the series will claim the school interclass championship.

The opening basketball game will be played next Wednesday evening between the Agricultural class team and the college preparatory class team, at the opera hall.

The second debate tryout for the selection of the high school debating team was held in the Christian church last Saturday morning and the following candidates were selected in their order of ranking, Ernest Crockett, first; Delmer Powers and Clifford Martin, tied for second place, and Lee Doty and Trevor Hare tied for fourth place, Charles Lamb was a close sixth. Coach Crockett says that he has never seen such material for a debating team as there is this year in the school.

Attorney H. T. Botts spoke to the high school students on last Tuesday afternoon, giving them an insight into the simple workings of the laws of our country and a new idea of the duties and responsibilities of lawyers in the community. The lecture was listened to attentively by the students and was of special benefit to those who are studying in school with the intention of taking up law study in college.

Mr. Botts and Mr. Lamb, members of the school board, recently spent an entire afternoon inspecting the work of the schools. They visited all the grade rooms for various lengths of time and a number of the high school classes.

The sixth grade won the Paler Pennant this week for the most progress in penmanship. The fifth grade came second, and fourth grade third. The results were very close and being only one-tenth per cent difference between the average grades.

The Curtis Practice Tests, which were ordered not long ago have arrived and the grades from the third-A to the eighth inclusive are spending part of the Arithmetic period each day in drilling in the fundamentals of Arithmetic. The Curtis Tests which were given a few weeks ago, show that the average efficiency in the fundamentals of addition, subtraction, multiplication and division is low, although some individuals stand well. The complete result of these tests will be given at an early meeting of the Parent Teachers' Association.

The last spelling tests given in the high school show very much better results than previous tests. Out of 60 taking the test, 50 have perfect papers and the grades of nearly one half of the remainder are 90 or better.

Do You Need a Little Fairy in Your Home?

Have you a little fairy in your home? This time, we do not mean fairy soap, but real, wide awake, happy little boys and girls who would brighten any home with their spontaneity, and who would reflect the wholesome, affectionate atmosphere of your home. It is really just a matter of selection, if you have a good home and desire to share it with a less fortunate little boy or girl. And yet when you come to select, it is a difficult matter for there are Ira, and Mike and Ambros, and ever so many other boys.

Ira is dear. He is olive-skinned, has soft eyes, and is very lovable. Mike is our baby. He is little and has been sick because he was not properly nourished before he was committed to the institute. When he was beginning to get better his nurse tried to arouse his interest by talking to him about Christmas. "Santa Claus never comes to me," he informed her with pathetic decision.

"But if he should come this time," she coaxed, "What would you like?" "Peanuts," was his simple request. "They're long," he added wistfully. Ambros is a fine looking lad and does remarkably well in his school work. He promises to be well worth while.

There are girls too—thirty of them. Claudia is eight but small for her age. Somehow she reminds one of the timid things of the woods. She is quick in her movements, keen in her intellect, and there is something fascinating and elusively artistic in her healthy pallor and her straight brown hair.

However, this is but a small fraction of the children we have, who appeal, each in his or her own individual way. If you should step into the dining room and meet with the affectionate greeting of one they consider a friend, or pause in the doorway of their dormitories at bedtime, you would feel for yourself each separate appeal, and wish it possible to take several and give them the comfortable home and clothing, the good schooling, and the real affectionate interest, which are the birthright of every child.

And so in case you wish to add a human fairy to your household address your communication to the Superintendent of the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society in Portland.

Evidence, to which we have heretofore called attention, that Canada regrets her rejection of the United States reciprocity treaty four years ago, continues to accumulate. Particularly in the great agricultural provinces in the west of the Dominion, the feeling of regret is becoming so bitter as to amount to one of exasperation against the Eastern provinces, which is not logical but, is perhaps, natural under the circumstances. It is now being charged, in some parts of the Canadian West, that the voters of that section were misled into voting against reciprocity because they had been induced to believe that such action was necessary as a means of protection to the manufacturing interests of Ontario province, and of Quebec, Halifax and Montreal.

In this neck of the woods it seems to be the style and fashion to speak to no one if you can help yourself. Its a style set up by the old mossbacks and carried on by the arrivals of late years. This advice would be well for this community if taken by the right ones.

During the last forty-five years the Republican party has controlled all branches of the government so much of the time that the periods of Democratic authority must be regarded as the rare exceptions. One of the exceptions, no doubt of brief duration, as all have seen, is now running its course, and a national campaign is near to render a fresh judgment on the capacities of parties to fulfill the duties of successful leadership. The Democratic party, which at best is a minority of the whole electorate, after its present short term of ascendancy, is on the defensive. To be "digging in" already is the reverse of a recommendation. It looks bad in the list of results. The financial situation is not creditable. The treasury deficit is large in spite of taxation not resorted to before except in time of war. Revenue from a new income tax has not helped to roll back the tide of deficiency. If the party has the ability to make both ends meet it has failed painfully to give the demonstration. In directing financial affairs the Democratic party has failed again.

Their line comprises the following well known instruments.

Mason & Hamlin, Ludwig, Milton, Kingsbury, Conover, Hardman, Rembrandt, Wellington and many others.

These instruments are received by me on consignment, and being at no expense in selling, saves you from $100.00 to $150.00 commission always made by a salaried salesman. At the time of your purchase you receive a signed "Agreement of Exchange" whereby if for any reason within one year from date of sale you would prefer another instrument, you receive full purchase price for yours in the exchange. This is the only house on the coast that will do this. Could anything be more fair, I leave it to your judgment.

We will wager there isn't a paper of any sort that arrives at the Woods postoffice that is looked forward to with more interest and eagerness than the "Old Headlight" nowadays. And it certainly is amusing to sit around the gathering place and enjoy the comment, jokes and criticism on these writings. None of the old "Mossbacks" know who is going to get scraped next for the next week's news. It's certainly a pleasure ye writer enjoys immensely.

Referendum ordered by petition of the legal voters of Tillamook City:		Referred to the legal voters of Tillamook City:
100	Yes.	Shall Ordinance No. 303 passed by the Common Council of Tillamook City, October 18, 1915, and referred, by petition, to the voters of said City, be enacted?
101	No.	Mark X between the Number and answer voted for.
This Ordinance gives the Standard Oil Company a right to maintain warehouse and tanks on water lots numbered 1, 2, 3, and 4, Stillwell's Addition to Tillamook City, for the storage and distribution of petroleum and its products, provided the same shall not be erected or maintained nearer than 100 feet of any building now erected in Tillamook City.		Shall an ordinance granting to the Standard Oil Company permission to locate, erect, operate and maintain warehouses, tanks, or both, and other necessary buildings on water lots numbered 1, 2, 3, and 4, W. D. Stillwell's Addition to Tillamook City, for the storage and distribution of petroleum and its products, and other kinds of merchandise handled by said company, and providing that no storage tank or tanks, or gasoline in cases shall be kept on said property nearer than 100 feet of any building, now erected, unless the written consent of the owner or owners of such building be first obtained in writing, referred by the Common Council of Tillamook City, Oregon, to the legal voters thereof, be enacted?
For second ordinance set out herein amook City by the Common Council.		Mark X between the number and answer voter for.
This ordinance covers the ground stated in the question as submitted above. It differs from the provisions of Ordinance No. 303 here-in set out in that it permits the building and maintenance of the structures and		business covered by the ordinances within 100 feet of other buildings of the written permission of the owner or owners thereof be obtained in writing.

Which election will be held at 8 o'clock in the morning and will continue until 6 o'clock in the evening of said day.

Dated this 16th day of November, 1915.

John Aschim,
City Recorder of Tillamook City, Oregon.

James Whitcomb Riley has an estate of $250,000, it is said. The world do move—since the days of John Milton.

There is one addition to wealth over which we can rejoice because we know it is real. We refer to the estimated value of the principal farm crops of this country placed by the government experts at $5,500,000,000. There is nothing psychological or speculative about that, like the dream wealth of men holding shares in "war specialties" quoted at five or six times par. After allowing for land rent, taxes and the cost of labor and supervision, nature produced much of this huge increment of our national wealth this year. Owing to the large foreign demand, and the better home demand, improved by the activities responsible for the increased volume of our exports, the value of the principal crops is greater than that of 1914 by about $500,000,000.

While the allies, as Sir Edward Grey reminds us, are bound by the pact of September 5, 1904, not to conclude peace separately, there is nothing to prevent each talking peace terms. The pact may hold, although Serbia in its distress might sue for peace as a matter of self-p
