> There are on the docket of the United States Supreme Court the socalled 5 per cent rebate cases. They involve a tremendous sum in customs revenues, loosely estimated at between fifteen and twenty million dollars, collected under the provisions of the Underwood Tariff law. On the court's decision hangs the fate of these millions. If the Supreme Court upholds the 5 per cent rebate provis-ion in the Underwood law, then the sum in dispute belongs to the foreign importers and must be paid back by the government. The Treasury deficit long ago became alarming. If this additional sum has to be paid out, will still further emphasize the failure of the Democratic fiscal policy. On the other hand, if the Supreme Court of the Underwood law is invalid, the highest court in the land will have convinced the Democratic congress of a humiliating blunder, and still further emphasize its record of legisla-tive efficiency. The fact that the Attorney General, in order to save the revenue involved, is attacking the validity of the law Congress worked six months to pass makes the situation still more complicated. From a political standpoint, the best thing that could happen to the Democratic party in this case would be to have a decision go over until after election. The Danger that Threetens St. Louis

The responsibility of the Simmons Underwood Tariff bill does not rest lone upon the Democratic Congress. President Wilson was a potent factor in the enactment of that law, and it was the President and not Congress decides that the 5 per cent provision that threatened to "hang higher than Haman" on the gibbet of public opinion anyone who cried hard times as a result of the passage of the bill.

The difference between the present superficial free trade prosperity-in-spots and protective tariff all-round prosperity is that one comes steeped in the blood of dead husbands and the tears of widowed mothers and fatherless orphans, while the other furnishes the living fathers profitable in-come to gladden the hearts of their comfortable families.

What is to be gained by avoiding the issue? New York capitalists, confident that Americans will become the world's shipbuilders in the very near future, are investing hundreds of millions of dollars in eastern shipbuilding yards in order to supply the coming demand for merchant vessels. Since commercial ships are now being sunk at the rate of ten thousand tons a day and the foreign shipyards are almost absorbed with the building of fighting fleets, it is demonstrated beyond question that in the future this comtry can become the principal source of supply of merchantmen, whose bottoms will carry the trade of the nations when peace is restored .--Astorian

You remember Noah had to work a long time on the ark. It was uphill business, too, at best, to go toiling business, too, at best, to go toiling And good citizens are insisting that and sweating day after day in the hot boiling sun, building a boat way out on dry land while the local anyil and hammer club sat around spitting to-bacco juice upon his lumber whittle-ing up his pine boards with their jack knives and telling him what a fool he was to expect a big rain in a country that was too dry to grow alfalfa. But he kept at it. Finally the flood came and every mother's son of the croakers were drowned. Mr. Wilson blushes to admit that aliens, born "under our flags, but welcome under our general natural-ization laws to the full freedom and opportunity of America," have poured poison and "disloyalty into the very arteries of our national life." But does our free trade president stop to realize that his own theorizing political organization has been the principal oster-father of this city by its enouragement of alien labor against American products?
