THE TILLAMOOK HEADLIGHT.

Editorial Snap Shots.

We have not heard whether they have had any more "brain storms" in "Marxville."

Bro. Trombley has not made the snap shot man "cough up" that $500 yet. Peradventure Bro. Trombley's conscience is troubling him some.

The sermon at the Christian Church next Sunday evening should be highly interesting to Democrats for it is "Windy Doctrine." That party is the exponents of that kind of doctrine.

Preachers have one advantage over editors. Their remarks in the pulpit are seldom heard outside the church and often addressed to empty pews, but everything the editor has to say goes down in black and white and he can't crawlfish.

F. A. Rowe brought out a fine Scotch Collie from Portland last week which was taken to the Madden cottage at the beach. This is probably one of the best blooded dogs ever brought into this country. It is said that he is so blue-blooded and aristocratic that it is almost impossible to get him to ride in a Ford car.

Wheeler Reider.

Rats. Why the critter wouldn't make good sausage meat.

In the endeavor to reduce the cost of living, what in thunder do we allow two telephone companies to "touch" us when one is all that is necessary. We believe that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the Mutual should consolidate. If they cannot agree on terms then call in several disinterested persons to arbitrate the value. It is not a square deal to tax people with two telephones when one is sufficient.

Tillamook City should have a commercial organization to look after the interest of the city and community and publicity work. We are glad to know that some of our live business men are going to make another effort to bring this about. Our advice to the business men is to get in and help the good work along. Quarters are available in the new city hall, and we believe the little differences of opinion as to this and that can be overcome. Let's get together for the purpose of boosting the city and county, and in doing so it is a boost to every business.

Over in Washington County the office seekers are howling about the court house ring. One would imagine that that county had a terrible bad set of county officials and the rascals should be turned out. That method of running a political campaign is played out. Of late years county officials have been some of our best and most reliable citizens, who have served the people faithfully and well, and instead of abusing them, they should be commended for the manner in which they have performed their duties. It is simply this, the fellow who howls about a court house ring is the fellow who wants to head a ring.

Four hundred and five is the increase in the Republican registration and eighteen decrease in the Democratic registration. The Prohibitionists have fallen from 155 two years ago to 61, while the Progressives have also fallen from 20 to a lone some 8, and the Socialists have retained the same number, 95, for two years. There is also a decrease in the miscellaneous registration. Two years ago it was 123 and this year it is 87. These figures show that it is the Republican party that is making gains in Tillamook County. There is an increase of 272 in the registration this year for the primary nominating election, but there is an increase in the Republican registration of 405.

Russell Hawkins, of Tillamook County, aspires to be one of the Republican delegates at the National convention, and he is outspoken in favor of Hughes. That shows his good judgment for it is confidently predicted that if anyone can carry the Republican party to victory next November it is Hughes, while it is doubtful whether Roosevelt or any of the other aspirants can beat Wilson. The war situation the next few months may cause a stampede to Roosevelt, especially should this country, unfortunately, get mixed up in the deplorable war. However that may be, we hope Tillamookers will give Mr. Hawkins a good vote, for this is his home county and we hope he will be elected. He is no free trader, but believes in protecting the industries that are struggling to make headway in the State of Oregon.

The snap shot man believes it is good horse, as well as good business sense to insist upon a ten years' guarantee whenever the county awards a contract for hard surfacing county roads. It is costing somewhere in the neighborhood of $18,000 a mile for that class of road, and for fear that it may go to pieces in a few years, we believe the taxpayers should be protected, and the way to do this is to compel contractors to put up a bond. The snap shot man would not let a contract unless it contained this provision. Taxpayers and property owners have been "stung" in all parts of the state by paving companies, and the way to protect the taxpayers of Tillamook county is to compel contractors to guarantee their work for ten years and furnish a bond. When this is done, Tillamook County need have no fear of being "soaked."

A large number of citizens signed a petition asking the Governor to patrol or pardon John Theiler, who pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition law, but it seems that the prosecuting attorney is not in favor of recommending the Governor doing so, while Justice of the Peace Stanley is. It may be that we are all more or less prejudiced against those who violate the prohibition law, but there are often extenuating circumstances that should appeal to our better judgment. The case of Theiler is one of these. He is an old man and has been sufficiently punished, with no fear of him offending again. It is costing the taxpayers $5.00 a week to feed him, and under the circumstances, considering the large number of signers to the petition, the Governor would be acting wisely and discreetly to allow Theiler to rustle his own grub stake.

The snap shot man believes that Tillamook County has a just claim against the government, for there is no doubt whatever that the construction of the jetty was the cause of the destruction of the property and the county road at Bar View. The government should be made to dig up, judge.

The Oregonian hits the nail squarely on the head when it says:

"The plan proposed by a resident of Roseburg to publish the names of people who receive shipments of liquor and use city money to pay for publication is absurd. A more effective proposition would be to publish the names of those who patronize the big Eastern mail order houses and send much more money out of the state than is spent for liquor."

There are those also in Tillamook who would like to see the names published of those who receive liquor shipments. We think they are poking nose busy-bodies and are doing a great deal to bring the prohibition law into disrepute.

We are glad to hear that the county court and the Bayocean people have about arrived at an understanding for the completion of that road which should have been completed several years ago. It was unfortunate that the rock used for riprapping went to pieces last winter, which was some thing that was not looked for, yet for all that it is fortunate that it was discovered before the road was completed. It is now proposed to build a bulkhead on part of the road, which will entail a little additional expense. To provide for this the County Court has agreed to allow the Bayocean people the $15,000 as provided in the budget to complete the road, and what additional expense there is for the bulkhead work to be provided for in the next budget and approved at the taxpayers' meeting. This appears to be a sensible way of overcoming a condition that was not foreseen and the right way to surmount the difficulty. Now that this appears to be agreeable to most everyone, we hope no further time will be lost in letting the contract and getting to work. This road improvement has been hanging fire too long already.

Last week the Oregon Voter referred to Ben W. Olcott as a Democrat. This week it says he has always been a Republican. Whether Mr. Olcott is a Democrat or a Republican, most everybody knows that he was a strong booster of our late spectacular governor, West, who brought the state into ridicule, and that Olcott does not appear to be much of a supporter of Governor Withycombe. The flax controversy showed distinctly that Olcott was exceedingly anxious to bring the governor's advocacy of raising flax at the state penitentiary into disrepute, while, as a matter of fact, it is an industry that will be developed in Oregon and will give employment to the unfortunate in the state penitentiary and bring revenue into the state treasury. Mr. Olcott showed poor judgment when he attempted to discredit Governor Withycombe over the flax matter, and it showed also that he was not willing to give a new industry a square deal in being developed, if he could put his political auger into the governor. The state of Oregon is greatly in need of new industries and development, and instead of the West administration doing this it was all the time boosting for Democratic politicians, scaring money and new industries from the state on account of many foolish and spectacular obscurities. Since Governor Withycombe has been at the head of the state government Oregon is again in the safe and sane class.

The snap shot man does not want to show his ignorance or admit that he made a failure of raising potatoes, but we will have to do so to prove the point we wish to raise. Everybody knows there is more or less blight to contend with in this county, which, in fact, is a fast army of fleas which devour the vines in a very few days. That means good bye to the potatoes, for they stop growing as soon as the fleas have devoured the vines. It was stated that spraying would remedy the blight, and the County Agriculturist gave this out as gospel truth. We believed him, but we have grave doubts now whether he was giving us the right dope to head off or kill off the army of potatoe fleas that this county is infected with most every year. For illustration, the snap shot man had numerous back aches while preparing the ground and obtained the best seed that was in the market; also invested in a $3.50 sprayer and $2.00 in spray, to say nothing of the three times he missed up his duds while spraying. Well, to tell the truth, when the army of fleas did make their annual visit last year, why, they simply made a raid on the potatoe vine, that were sprayed, cleaned up everything slick and clean. We do not doubt there may be some virtue in spraying potatoe vines, but somehow the snap shot man is now in a doubting mood and the County Agriculturist will have to "show me" that he is advising the right dope to defeat the annual attack of the army of potatoe fleas.

TILLAMOOK COUNTY AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

By Roy C. Jones, County Agriculturist.

The Silo a Success. Mr. Herman Farmer is still feeding silage to his cows and finds that it comes very handy to supplement the short pastures this spring. The weather has been so cold that the grass has not started and the silage works in just right. The cattle are eating it well and are doing well on it.

Conservation of Material Resources. It is safe to say that two-thirds of the plant food contained in the manure voided on the average Tillamook County farm through the winter is lost so far as the crops are concerned. Herman Farmer has overcome this loss by building a covered concrete pit for his manure. All the solids and liquids are put in together as well as the washing from the barn.

This is removed from the pit by a bucket elevator and spread on the land from a liquid tank wagon. Mr. Farmer reports that he likes the arrangement very much, as it greatly reduces the labor of hauling out the manure and, at the same time saves all the plant food.

Drainage. A preliminary survey of the Big Nestucca district shows that there is ample fall to assure good drainage for the region. Over fifty per cent of the land is already signed up, petitioning the County Court for the organization of a Drainage District.

During Prof. Larson's stay in the county, aid was given in laying out private drainage systems for H. C. Hanson, C. B. Measer, and Jonas Olson. General drainage advice was given to several others requesting it.

Tillamook County Corn Contest. Considerable interest has been shown throughout the county in the past year in the growing of corn for silage and fodder purposes. The degree of success attained was well shown at the first Tillamook County corn show held last November. There is still doubt in the minds of some as to the practicability of the crop for Tillamook conditions. There is need of definite information as to the cost of producing the crop, the cultural methods necessary to produce best results and the yields of fodder which can be expected.

To fill this need a county-wide corn contest is being arranged as follows: At the second Annual Tillamook County corn show to be held this fall, prizes will be awarded for the best one-half acre of corn grown in the county.

Seed—Seed may be obtained from any source, but better results may be expected if only hardy varieties are selected and from seed grown as nearly as possible under our conditions. The County Agriculturist will furnish seed of hardy varieties for these trials if requested to do so. He will also test samples for germination before planting. There is some local grown seed in the hands of those who grew corn last year that may be obtained.

Planting—A record should be kept of the preparation of the seed bed, dates of planting, cultivation, etc. Blanks will be furnished for these records.

Harvesting—A committee will be appointed in each community to visit each half acre at harvest time. This committee will measure the field to be sure it is of the required size, will select a representative square rod and weigh the green fodder produced on this square rod. They will also snap the corn from the fodder weighed and weigh them to get the proportion of grain to fodder.

Saving seed for another year—As the continued success of corn in Tillamook County depends on the degree of acclimatization of the seed used it will be necessary to save as much seed as possible from our own fields. The corn should be allowed to mature as much as possible, and a careful selection of seed from the standing corn should be made.

Care of Seed Ears—These good ears should be strung up so that they do not touch each other, and hung where they will cure and dry out thoroughly.

Exhibit at Corn Show—An exhibit of the best ten ears from each plot will be made at the Second Annual Tillamook County Corn Show, accompanied by report on actual methods.

Score Cards on Which Awards Will be Based. 1. Yield per acre of green silage. 2. Proportion of grain to fodder. 3. Maturity of ear. 4. Best 10-ear exhibit. 5. Most complete report on cultural methods used.

The Modern Meaning. Bishop Francis was talking in Indianapolis about the increasing desecration of the Sabbath.

"There is a lesson for us," he said, "in the anecdote about the little boy who asked: 'Pa, what does the good book mean when it talks about a Sabbath day's journey?' 'I am afraid,' the father answered, 'that it means twice around the golf links, my son.'"

Harmony.

Mr. Leiser, of Canby, who bought the John Evans place a couple of months ago, has sold again to Mr. Wilson, of Portland. Mr. Wilson also owns a farm at Yamhill, where he will remain until harvest, when he will move to Harmony to make his home. We all hate to give up Mr. and Mrs. Evans, but as they think best to leave us this fall to move to the Willamette Valley, we will extend a welcome to the new people and neighbors to fill their place.

Herman Hopkins lost a cow and a yearling heifer last week.

John Cox, of Beaver, spent Friday night at the home of his brother-in-law, G. G. Graves, visiting Tillamook on Saturday before his return home.

The Harmony school closed on Friday. They had their picnic on Thursday so all could attend, and instead of speaking and singing as usual, the program was racing. It sure was some amusement to see the sack races by the ladies, Mrs. E. Krebs won first and Mr. Herman Hopkins last prize. They all report spending a good and lively day.

The Krebs Bros. have their place going to sow oats. They sure did it up in one big hurry.

Those attending the school picnic outside the district were Supt. Buell and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hopkins and family and Mr. and Mrs. P. Erickson of South Prairie.

Mrs. C. E. Walker and daughter called at Harmony Saturday.

Boulder Creek.

On Saturday, April 15th, a party of ten little people made their decided lively around the H. W. Smith residence. The occasion was the 11th birthday of the little hostess, Miss Florence Smith. The picnic dinner, which included a big birthday cake, besides plenty of other goodies, was prepared entirely by Miss Florence herself. She received a number of remembrances from the little guests, and also several birthday cards.

Those present were: Lewis and Clark Johnson, Reta Kinnaman, Jack Wood and wife, and Miss Florence Smith, besides plenty of other goodies, was prepared entirely by Miss Florence herself. She received a number of remembrances from the little guests, and also several birthday cards.

CRISIS CAUSED BY WILSON'S VACILLATION

United Republican Party Needed to Restore Self-Respect and Honor to U. S.

Portland, Ore.—A review of the inconsistencies of the present Democratic Administration, particularly in its dealings with and Mexico, was presented by Theodore E. Burton, Ohio's candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency.

Mr. Burton, who is ex-United States Senator from Ohio, spoke under the auspices of the Oregon Republican Club. His address was essentially political in its nature, but in view of the present difficulties confronting the Nation it was touched throughout with a high patriotic tone.

The audience manifested its unequivocal approval by a tremendous ovation when he said:

"At times like this we are not Republicans nor Democrats, Socialists or Prohibitionists, we are American citizens."

But Senator Burton was emphatic in his declaration that the very presence of these international complications calls for firmness and experience in handling the affairs of the Nation.

Under such conditions and under such circumstances, he asserted, the thoughts of the people instinctively turn to the Republican party—the party of experience, the party of capability, the party of accomplishment.

"The one fact more obvious than any other in all the conflicting current of events," he said, "is that the present ignominious status of the United States in relation to other countries has been brought about by the halting, the vacillation and the hesitancy of the present Administration."

He then took up in detail a discussion of the present Administration's conduct of international affairs, saying:

"Now the President makes the most extravagant speeches for preparedness; he says we must have the largest Navy in the world; he says that no man can tell what a day or an hour may bring forth. It was surely just as obvious when the first gun was fired in Europe that the United States must be ready to protect itself as it is today. There is such a thing as being too late to prepare, but when danger threatens there is no such thing as being too early. Yet the Administration has been on both sides of this question with equal extravagance of assertion, with equal impatience of all who disagree and with equal inability therefore to convince anyone of its entire sincerity."

"And what is it all about? Here again the whole difficulty arose from the exercise of those two conspicuous talents of the present Administration, the passion for interference in the affairs of other nations and the inability to keep away from both sides of the same question."

"On February 10, 1915, the Administration warned the German government of the consequences of carrying out the policy foreshadowed in its admiralty proclamation in case it should result in destroying any merchant vessel of the United States or in causing the death of American citizens, and threatened to hold the German government to a strict accountability for any such act."

"A note from the Secretary of State on May 15, last, limited the rule that lives of noncombatants of neutral or other states should not be put in jeopardy to such as sailed on unarmed merchantmen."

"The word 'unarmed' is important. By departing from these earlier declarations, in the latter part of January, 1915, the State Department, in a note to the various powers sought to induce the allies to disarm their merchantmen and placed especial stress on the disadvantages of submarines in conflict with armed merchantmen, saying in substance it should be compelled to expose themselves to destruction from such vessels and that merchantmen should not be permitted to carry armament at all, stating further that the United States Government was seriously considering the announcement of its purpose to treat a merchant vessel carrying guns as an auxiliary cruiser because of the changed conditions in maritime warfare resulting from the introduction of the submarine and its defenseless character."

"After the publication of this note Germany and Austria-Hungary on or about February 10 very promptly announced that on and after March 1 they would regard all merchantmen carrying armament as warships and would exercise the right to destroy them without warning."

"What did the President do then? He said: 'No, for such a course would involve the loss of American citizens, and American citizens have the right to travel on merchantmen armed for defense.'"

"Thus we attempted to persuade England and France to give up a right which they claimed under international law, but would not ask American citizens to yield a right which we alleged belonged to them under the same law."

"In other words, we took the position that England and France had no right to arm their merchantmen, for thus they became warships, while, on the other hand, only a few weeks later we maintained that although they were warships, Germany had no right to sink them without warning."

"So it appears that the whole controversy, of which the end is not yet, fraught as it is with so much danger to the peace of the United States, discussed from one end of the country to the other, causing the most acrimonious debates for many years in Congress and leading to a split in the party charged with the responsibility of government, was brought about by shifting our position and taking a stand directly contrary to the one first assumed."
