

A CERTAIN MAN

*A Certain Man When Poor,
Said
"I will save and get ready and maybemy chance will come."*

YOUR CHANCE WILL COME

This certain man, whose name is Legion, had very little chance, you would say, to acquire a competence. But he was determined to save and succeed. "Some day" he said, "My chance will come." So he saved and got ready. And his chance did come.

Your chance will come. Some day you'll be considering an investment. If you're ready you can take it up. And you can get ready no matter if your salary is small. It's what you save that counts, not what you make.

If you really want to better yourself, begin now by putting away regularly a little money in this bank and a year hence you will be surprised at the amount saved.

Announcements are out announcing the marriage of Melva, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wade of Portland to Thomas F. Bailey, of Portland. The wedding took place on Sept. 23rd. The bride was well known here and has the best wishes of many Tillamook friends.

Miss Nell Rasmussen, sister of Mrs. Fred Burton, fell one day last week and hurt her back very seriously. Dr. Hewitt formerly of this place but now of Corvallis was called to take charge of the case. The doctor treated her here for a few days, but found it necessary to take her to his hospital at Corvallis.

George Williams took a party of ladies to Seaside by auto on Wednesday, and owing to a blow out on the Foley, they were detained there overnight. The ladies were Mesdames Botts, Hill, Goynes, O. A. Schultz, Alderman and Sanders. They are attending a meeting of the State Federation of Women's Club at Seaside. Mesdames C. J. Edwards, F. R. Beals, Mark Harrison and A. A. Pennington are also at Seaside for the same purpose.

Married, at St. Mary Episcopal church, Eugene, Ore., on Wednesday, Sidney E. Henderson and Miss Lucia Eugene Campbell. Following the ceremony a reception was given at the Hotel Oregon, to which more than 500 guests were invited. The groom is a son of Attorney John Leland Henderson, and a few years since resided in this city, where he was most popular with the young people. Since then he has resided in Coquille, Ore., where he is city surveyor. The bride is a daughter of P. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon. She is a graduate of the U. of O. of the 1912 class and a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority, was one of the most popular young ladies on the campus.

Fire Sunday destroyed W. O. Kilbourne's residence on Sunnymeade. It originated in the roof, and notwithstanding that the hose company did excellent work the building was a total loss. It was insured for $2000. Mr. Kilbourne also lost some furniture which was in the building. P. S. Anderson's house, the roof and side of which were damaged by fire, amounted to about $125.00. Henry Cook, one of the firemen, while fighting the fire on the roof, came near losing his life. The wind suddenly changed and blew the flames in the face of Cook, who inhaled them and injured his lungs, causing him considerable pain. Mr. Heacock had rented the building and was about to move his furniture, he lost some canned fruit which had been taken to the house.

This is what Judge H. M. Townner, Congressman from Iowa, said about Congressman W. C. Hawley: "I hoped I might have an opportunity of telling your people how much we appreciate your representative and how much we value his services. His position on the great Committee on Agriculture has enabled him to extend a commanding influence in the interests of the farmers of this country. His services on the Senate and House joint committee on Rural Credits have been a great value to Congress and the Nation. No man stands higher in the regard of his colleagues than Mr. Hawley. His character and ability have made him one of the really influential members of the House. Oregon is a long way from Washington, but I want to assure your people that their Representative never for a moment forgets their interests. I sincerely hope Mr. Hawley will be returned by such a vote that he will be strengthened here in the good work he is doing for his people and the country."

At a meeting of the Tillamook Commercial Club on Monday evening the matter of enlarging the Port of Tillamook was informally discussed, when the plans of the Port were more fully explained. It was shown that the enlargement of the Port was equally as much a benefit to the dairymen as to the business men, for both should be interested in obtaining cheaper freight rates. It was stated by some of the members of the Port who were present, that they simply wished to place facts and figures before the people and show them the benefits that will be derived and the reasons why the Port should be enlarged. The Port will gladly furnish anyone with information that they may be in doubt about. In fact, it is a business undertaking for the benefit of this section of the county, and the Port will start a campaign of education between now and the 21st of November, for that is the date the special election is called for.

TILLAMOOK COUNTY TO HAVE ANOTHER RAILROAD

Hill Line to Build Down the Wilson—Rumor that S. P. Will Extend Line to Willamina.

For several weeks reports have been in circulation that in the near future the Hill lines would be extended into Tillamook, giving this section of the county two railroads. Another rumor was heard that the Southern Pacific Co. would extend its line from this city to Willamina, which would have been commenced before this but the war in Europe delayed the building of this piece of railroad.

Several of the large timber owners on the Wilson river are anxious to have the Hill people build the road over the survey that was made a few years ago.

It is safe to say that considerable railroad development will be undertaken in Tillamook County in the near future, for both the Hill lines and the Southern Pacific are after feeders, and the large amount of tonnage to be obtained in this county makes it exceedingly attractive to the railroads for the time is about ripe and conditions right to develop the lumber industry in Tillamook County. The plan of last week President L. C. Gilman of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railways, came to this city with some of the timber owners. They left by auto soon after the train arrived to go out over the Wilson River. They stopped one night at Rush's and the next night at Reeher's, meeting another party that came in by way of Gales Creek. They reached Portland on Saturday. It was the intention of President Gilman to keep his presence in Tillamook a secret, but it soon leaked out, but he would not give out anything for publication. The fact, however, of Mr. Gilman leaving for the East to confer with the executive and operating heads of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railways, after he visited Tillamook, is taken that work will commence soon, but the final decision may be delayed until after the election.

(Oregon Journal)
Revival of rumors of new Hill line railway construction in Oregon has followed the departure of President L. C. Gilman for St. Paul, where he will confer with the executive and operating heads of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways, joint owners of the North Pacific System.

It is known that of late Mr. Gilman had been collecting data regarding the timbered areas of the Tillamook country and the upper Nehalem. For some years a survey has existed from the present terminus of the United Railways at Wilkesboro westward to Bay City, one of the points on Tillamook bay. The survey passes considerably south of the Southern Pacific's line and is said to tap an untouched body of timber.

Another body of timber so far untouched lies along the north fork of the Santiam river east of Albany up the western slopes of the Cascades. Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern, is heavily interested personally in this tract. Gossip has had it for a long time that this timber is soon to be developed by transportation, although Mr. Hill denied during a recent visit here that any immediate railway construction was contemplated.

Revival of the lumber business generally has given a new turn to events, however, and announcements of new construction projects and prosecution of old ones are to be expected within the next few weeks or months, it is asserted.
Should the Santiam line be built, it would connect with the Oregon Electric at Albany and follow the Santiam river into the mountains. The construction on the east end of this would be very heavy. The same is true of any extension of the United Railways through the Coast mountains to the Tillamook country.

Falling off in Registration.

The registration for the November election is closed with a falling off of 132 in the registration of two years ago. The Republicans made a gain of 188 and the Democrats a loss of 37. The Prohibitionists lost 171, the Progressives 28 and Socialists 16.

Alice C. Mills vs. William J. Gilbert. Damages. Trial by jury and verdict in favor of defendant.

Paul Erickson vs. George Ethel. Action for money. Non-suit taken by plaintiff.

W. H. Flippin vs. John Maginnis et al. Foreclosure of mortgage. Default and decree.

Annie M. Draper vs. Janet McAlpin et al. Foreclosure of mortgage. Default and decree.

Nellie Worthington vs. Millard J. Worthington. Divorce. Defendant ordered to pay suit money as costs and attorney's fees.

A. F. Coats Lumber Co. vs. Bernhard Jacob, et al. Foreclosure of lien. Settled and dismissed.

Tillamook Bay Construction Co. vs. Tillamook and Yamhill Counties. Action for money growing out of the Sour Grass contract, will be tried at Hillsboro on the 25th.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

By R. C. Jones County Agriculturist.

Silage Corn

Unusually early frost this year has caught a great deal of corn intended for the silo before it reached the most ideal stage. Much of the corn, even of the earlier varieties has been caught in the milk and the soft dough stage. This corn can be safely put in the silo and will make good silage that is well worth having and using even though its quality is not equal to that of corn which has reached an advanced hard dough stage. The important thing is to get the frosted corn into the silo as promptly as possible in order to avoid souring should we have a period of hot weather following the freeze. We must, as far as possible, also avoid the whipping off of the dry leaves and consequent loss of considerable nutritive value.

Where there are prospects of getting the ensilage cutter within a very short time, the frozen corn should be cut and laid down in bunches at once. If there is danger of a prolonged wet spell, it up in shocks until a cutter is available.

Usually the immature corn if put into the silo within a short time after the frost will contain sufficient moisture to keep it properly. If considerable time elapses, as a week or ten days of drying, after a hard killing frost, it is then usually necessary to apply sufficient water to bring it up to the proper moisture content for safe keeping.

Thousands of acres of Willamette valley corn still in the field can be safely and economically put into the silo if harvested and stored promptly.

Seed Corn.

Seed corn will undoubtedly be a very scarce article next spring owing to the unusually early frost this fall and to the late season that we have just passed through. The early frost has caught a great deal of the seed corn in the milk and consequently much of it will be unfit for seed purposes.

Each farmer should go through his field before cutting the corn for silage and snap off all of the more mature ears, which show reasonably good denting. These may then be husked out within a few days and stored on the studded rocks recommended by the Agricultural College in some place that is warm and where there is a current of air. Much of the immature corn may be dried in sufficiently good condition to germinate and produce good corn next year.

This season which has been late as a growing one and early as to frost again very forcefully demonstrates the necessity of an early to a medium maturing type of silage corn both from the standpoint of quality of silage and ability to secure sufficient seed to keep up the crop.

Under no conditions, try to store the immature corn in bulk or on shelves or in sacks because it will certainly mold. It should be put on racks or on wires or should be tied up with strings so that no two ears touch and so air has access to each ear. Put the corn in a place that is warm and in a draught so it will dry out quickly and without sprouting. If put in a place that is warm without ventilation the immature corn is likely to sprout at once. If put in a cool place without ventilation the tendency is for it to mold and sour. Corn will safely stand 130 Fahrenheit. Every farmer should save enough of his best matured seed and dry it in order to be certain of a seed stock for next year.
