More New Coins Will Be Put in Circulation.

The average man in a few months will not know whether or not he is receiving foreign money when some one hands him change, in which there will be new coins, of the ten-cent, 25 cent and half dollar denominations. The new dime has already appeared, but there will be released shortly through the sub treasuries, new 25-cent and new 50-cent pieces.

The changes were made in conformity with a statute providing that the designs of coins may be changed every 25 years. Coinage of the dimes, quarters and half dollars which have been in use twenty-five years has already been discontinued, and thousands of the newly designed coins have been made. The treasury has in stock $6,415,000 of silver bullion available for this purpose.

Hawley Gets Big Vote.

On the face of incomplete returns received by the Congressional Committee it appears that Representative Willis C. Hawley has been re-elected to Congress from the First Congressional District by a plurality of more than 20,000 votes.

This is by far the largest plurality ever given any candidate for Congress in Oregon. Representative Hawley's vote this year will not only be a plurality but it also represents a clear majority of more than 15,000 votes over the combined vote of all his competitors.

As an expression to the public of his appreciation, Mr. Hawley has issued the following statement:

"I am profoundly grateful to the voters in the First Congressional District of Oregon who in the recent election have returned me to Congress with so generous a majority. I wish it was possible for me to meet my thousands of friends, to whose steadfast assistance I owe so much, and express to them in person my sense of gratitude and obligation, prior to my return to Washington, but as this will not be possible, I wish to convey to them through the press my sincere appreciation and thanks. No man ever had better or wiser friends than I and to them I attribute the very heavy majority received. I shall return to my post of duty conscious of their confidence and with the earnest desire to serve the best interests of the district, the State and Nation."

German People are Said to Want Peace.

(By William C. Bullitt.)

Peace is in the heart of every human being in Germany. The question one is asked most frequently by the Germans is, "How long do you think it will last?" Yet, to judge from the newspapers, one would think peace was the least of Germany's desires. Never a word about peace terms appears in the German papers. That is not because the editors do not think peace and talk peace from breakfast to nightcap, but because the moment a newspaper dares to hint at the terms Germany ought to take it is suppressed for a week. And that is rather costly.

The censor has put an absolute ban on peace talk. There is nothing about which he is so touchy, unless it be allusions to the possibility of Germany beginning again to sink without warning. It was my intention to bring home from Germany notes on some scores of conversations on peace which I had had with representatives of every class in Germany. The censor, who let through all my notes in regard to the food shortage, the industrial situation and so on removed from my papers nearly every good word in regard to peace terms. The ban on peace talk extends so far that the teachers in the public schools who give talks on the war to their classes are forbidden absolutely to talk of peace or allude to peace terms.

One reason for the censor's refusal to allow peace thought to be published is, of course, to create the impression outside Germany that there is no war weariness. Another reason is to prevent the individual German from realizing that every one is as weary of the war as he is himself. Another is to preserve the peace at home. For, unless the censor restrained them, the supporters of the chancellor and the followers of Von Tirpitz would spend much of their time libeling one another. Yet another reason is to prevent public opinion from crystallizing upon some definite set of peace terms which might prove unattainable. At present the German government is able to turn the stream of public opinion and of peace hopes in any direction it chooses.

"When will the war end?" asked the Germans. I could never give them a better answer than the answer given to me by one of their most far-sighted leaders: "At the earliest, in 1918." This man, whose remarks in my notes somewhat escaped the censor's eye, went on thus: "The war might just as well end now, for Germany is ready now to make peace on the same terms that she will take in 1918, but I think the English will have become far more weary of the war than they are now before they are ready to talk sensibly. In the end peace will be made on these terms: French or Belgian soil. Talk of our keeping the Meuse forts and the crests of the Vosges mountains is nonsense. We shall pay Belgium an indemnity of 2,000,000,000 marks. We shall not call it an indemnity, but shall tie it up in the purchase price of a strip of Belgian Congo. We shall not keep the Courland. The present agitation for its retention is sentimental idocy. There is only one German to every 10 Letts, Esths and Lithuanians. We shall not attempt to keep Poland or to bring her into the German Zollverein. It will be better for both Austria and ourselves, if Poland remains under Russian control, for the Poles are the most reliable people in Europe and will always work against the power under whose control they are. The question of Serbia is harder. Bulgaria will probably keep the part of Macedonia which she wants, and Austria will take the north eastern section of the country. Serbia will be compensated by the acquisition of Montenegro and an outlet to the sea in Albania.

"One condition of the peace will have to be a return to the status quo antebellum in an economic way. The plans of the Paris conference for an economic war will have to be abandoned.

"The last vital condition of the peace will be an agreement by Germany to limit her fleet in return for a promise by England not to stop merchantmen in time of war, which pledge will be indorsed by the pledge of the United States to prohibit exports to England if England should break her word."

When the German government can intimate to the president of the United States that it would accept a peace containing some such terms as those outlined by England, not to stop merchantmen in time of war, which pledge will be indorsed by the pledge of the United States to prohibit exports to England if England should break her word.

Now Lookout.

When a cold hangs on as often happens, or when you have hardly gotten over one cold before you contract another, lookout for you are liable to contract some very serious disease. This succession of colds weakens the system and lower the vitality so that you are much more liable to contract chronic catarrh, pneumonia or consumption. Cure your cold while you can. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a great reputation. It is relied upon by thousands of people and never disappoints them. Try it. It only costs a quarter. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.
