Communication.

Garibaldi, Ore., Jan. 15, 1917.

Editor of the Headlight.

Kindly permit me to say through the columns of your valuable paper, that the members of the Garibaldi Athletic Club wish to extend a vote of thanks to the large and appreciative audience that attended the basketball game between the home team from the McMinnville High School on last Friday night. It was the largest crowd that ever attended a game at the Garibaldi Gymnasium, about 200 people being present. The game was the best ever played in our "Gym". It was full of exciting thrills from start to finish. The first half closed with the score 11 to 19 in favor of Garibaldi. In the last half the McMinnville boys, after a drilling by their coach and manager, rallied themselves, and time was called with a score of 15 to 17 in favor of the visitors. While Garibaldi lost the game, the defeat has all the effect of a victory. Our boys, the majority of whom, had worked hard all day, and donned their uniforms in the evening, had the husky McMinnville High School Athletes guessing at every stage of the game. The visitors had no such at any time. At one time in the first half the home team was six points ahead, but after that, neither team was over two points ahead at any time. Our boys have had no professional training, simply coaching themselves on meeting nights, but they are made of the stuff from which "stars" are made.

Coach Malarkey of the visitors paid our boys a high compliment when he said, "with proper training for two weeks he could take our team and beat any team in the state," he believed.

After the game the members of our club gave the visitors a reception in the school building, at which refreshments were served and toasts and speeches made. The visitors are a fine lot of young men and enjoyed their first trip to the coast as a team. Considering the trimming they gave the Tillamook High School on the night following, 41 to 11, our boys may well feel proud of holding the once state champions to so close a score, and the whole Garibaldi community may well be proud of young men who have such ambition and love for the game as was displayed on last Friday night.

Respectfully submitted,
H. S. Brimhall,
Sec. and Tres. Garibaldi Athletic Club.

Death of Frank Long.

Frank Long, Sr., one of our most respected citizens, died at his home here Tuesday forenoon at about 10 o'clock from heart trouble. He had been suffering from a sore jaw for about five weeks and was on the road to recovery when the disease suddenly went to his heart, killing him.

The funeral will be held at the home on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Further particulars in regard to the life and death of Mr. Long will appear in our next issue.

ARE YOU EFFICIENT?

Try These Tests, But Do Not Yield to Despair if You Fail.

Are you efficient? The awful query refuses to down. The clocks tick it, the flat wheels in the subway thump it, the ungreased curves of the elevated screech it. If you are an old business foggy the question burns in the eye of every pitying employee. You find your wife measuring the distance from the range to the kitchen cabinet and your son computing the power necessary to propel a football in the lowest arc. The telephone company advises you to give your name instead of saying "Hello."

Blessed be the concrete of thought if not of deed. Concreteness enables you to see just what the efficiency masters mean. One of them, William Fretz Kemble, tells in Industrial Management "How to Test Your Employees." Of course every man who reads it will first test his most important employee, his father's son. Watch and pad and pencil are all that are needed to acquaint yourself with your virtues and faults. In thirty seconds answer as many of these questions as you can:

Give the name of a vegetable, a metal, an insect, a reptile, a fish, a man, a woman, an ocean, a lake, a town.

If at the end of the half minute you have written only "beet, gold, flea, adder," you are pretty poor. If you have also put down "trout, Edison, Addams, Atlantic," you are up to human average of eight answers. If you feel that you can go beyond ten answers you may describe the color of water, tea, beer, ivory, the sky, grass, milk, chalk, coal and skin. But men who go beyond fifteen answers in thirty seconds are rare. They should have secretaries, limousines and big black cigars.

Next try to answer five "difficult questions" in twenty seconds:

First.—Who is the greatest living general?

Quick, now, and pick a short name that doesn't take a long time to write.

Second.—What is the most powerful force in the world?

Perhaps love isn't, but it's a shorter word than militarism.

Third.—What is the greatest modern discovery?

Quick, man! Radium will do.

Fourth.—What is the greatest necessity of commerce?

Our secretary of commerce probably would not answer that in less than 11,840 words. You perhaps will write "ships" or "railroads" and pass on to the last:

Fifth.—What is the cheapest food for the human race?

Bread, unless you are a fender for lentils or employed by the makers of fluted corn. But you ought to answer three of the questions in twenty seconds, says Mr. Kemble. If you answer fewer it indicates "slowness or deliberation in thought."—New York Sun.

CLOSE ELECTIONS.

Many Great Events Decided by a Narrow Margin.

HISTORY MADE BY ONE VOTE.

In Several Instances in the Life of Our Nation, Notably in the Hayes-Tilden Presidential Contest, a Single Ballot Turned the Scales.

There have been many close elections in the cities, counties and states of this great nation, as well as in the nation at large itself. In the latter class the Tilden-Hayes contest was the most sensational. In that memorable election the result turned upon the single vote of the fifteenth member of the electoral commission, who was chosen by four judges of the supreme court.

Our history abounds with instances in which the course of events has turned upon single votes, and some of them may be conveniently selected from the compilation made by Speaker Clark for one of his Chautauqua lectures.

General Jackson was elected major general of Tennessee militia by one majority. Without that one vote he could not have fought the battle of New Orleans, and politics would have been different for a quarter of a century.

Martin Van Buren won the presidency through his defeat by one vote on the confirmation of his nomination as minister to England.

John C. Calhoun, as vice president, cast the deciding vote which gave to Van Buren what Calhoun never got for himself, although his claims were not inferior.

Edward Everett lost the governorship of Massachusetts by one vote, and that took him out of the list of available for the presidency.

Thomas H. Benton was elected to the senate by a single vote. The loss of that one vote not only would have cost him his career of thirty years, but would have meant the loss to the senate of one of its strongest and most famous members in a most trying era. One of the great characters of American history might never have emerged from obscurity.

Henry Clay cast the deciding vote in the constitutional convention which admitted Kentucky to the Union as a slave state. If Kentucky had entered the Union as a free state it is hardly doubtful that Missouri would have done the same, and it is conceivable that there might have been no Missouri compromise, and perhaps even no war between the states.

The Walker tariff passed the senate by a single vote. Taft lost the vote of Idaho through a tie in the precinct of Boise. If one more man had voted for Taft Roosevelt would have lost control of the state.

There is at least one case in which a single vote was the entire election. At the primaries for the Prohibition nomination for judge in Schuykill county, Pa., one vote was cast. There being no other candidate or voter, Richard H. Koch was unanimously chosen. A miss is said to be as good as a mile, and under some conditions one vote is as good as a million.

On the other hand, a majority of 100,000 may be worthless, as was actually the case in Indiana. At the general election in November, 1900, a proposed amendment that "the general assembly shall by law prescribe what qualifications shall be necessary for admission to practice law to all courts of justice" was submitted to the electors.

Nearly 100,000 more votes were cast for the amendment than against it. But it did not receive a majority of the votes cast for presidential electors and governor. The supreme court held that it had not been carried by the constitutional majority required for the ratification of a proposed amendment. That was a case where an actual majority at the polls lost in the courts.

There would be no end to the precedents regarding the value of a few votes if the search were extended to foreign history. One example will suffice to show that the count of the votes is as important as the casting of them. In 1911 the Monis ministry fell in France because it was thought to be in a minority of fourteen, when in fact it had a majority of five. According to the contemporary cablegram:

The crisis arose over an interpellation regarding the attitude of the government as to the chief command of the army in the event of war, and the official list showed 238 votes against the government and 234 in favor.

M. Monis was still on a sick bed as the result of an accident and his colleagues decided on resignation.

The curious fact has now been brought to light, however, that at the moment of the fateful division there was considerable confusion in regard to the votes for and against.

A number of deputies announced that their names had appeared on the wrong division list. An official rectification was made, with the result that so far from having been defeated the government had the narrow majority mentioned above.

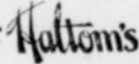

Through this discovery may be the source of much personal satisfaction to the ex-primer, it is, of course, too late to affect the fate of his ministry.

These are cases merely of misadventure in the working of the machinery of voting. The cases of malicious falsifying of popular sentiment are too numerous to record.—New York Times.
