

AMERICAN BOY NEEDS DISCIPLINE.
Emphatic Testimony of a Professor of Mental Diseases.

The following earnest letter from Charles W. Burr, professor of mental diseases at the University of Pennsylvania, is published in the printed report of the hearings of the state subcommittee on military affairs:

"I am firmly convinced after trying for years to prove the opposite for myself, that compulsory military training for every youth is necessary in the United States, not only for the purpose of having an army to protect the country, but also and more important, because of the benefit to the mental and physical health of the youth of the country.

"I was much impressed years ago when a student in German (am not only not pro-German in my sympathies, but have a cordial hate for militarism) by seeing the tremendous improvement shown in a few months in the young men called to serve their time. Many of them arrived at the barracks dull looking, not overclean, slouchy. In a short time they were upstanding men.

American Youth Short On Discipline and Duty.

"The American boy has little idea of discipline, obedience or duty, and almost momentarily, so rapid is the progress toward degeneration, is becoming more undisciplined, is yielding more to the sway of his emotions, instead of being taught to control them, and has become so saturated with the importance of his getting his rights, that he has no thought that he owes a duty to his state, his family or himself. He has no point of contact with the national government and does not realize he owes it anything.

"Unless the American boy is taught obedience, unless he learns he must submit to authority, unless he learns that the highest manhood is to obey, unless he learns that work is a blessing not a curse, this country is doomed to the same fate that has overtaken every soft, fat, flabby, emotional and kind-hearted, but mush-headed, race that has preceded us. Universal training will do much to stiffen up, to make firm-fibered and manly the boys of America.

"Should you think any opinion of the American boy is undeserved, may I be personal and state that the character of my calling has given me opportunity to study him closely for more than a few years. He is very bright sometimes, but he is soft, too fond of luxury, and lacks the firm sense of duty the older generation had."

Facts Ignored by Dill and LaFollette.

This is the expert testimony of a learned professor who for years has had exceptional contact with American youth. The published reports of the hearings before the house and senate committee contain hundreds of similar judgments. Military experts, authorities on medicine, authorities on the fundamental principal of our government, speak there with convincing earnestness for universal military training.

The pacifist plea is also presented, but it is vague, emotional and non-authoritative. No one capable of weighing evidence can study the opposing testimony and not be profoundly impressed with the force of the case for preparedness through universal training and the weakness of the opposition. That is why President Wilson and Secretary of War Baker were converted from a learning toward Mr. Bryan's pacifist doctrine to their present stand for selective conscription. That is why hundreds of representatives and senators changed their opinions and voted for conscriptive training.

We question of Dill and LaFollette have ever turned the pages of these voluminous reports of the committee hearings. But whether they have read them and remain impressed to evidence, or have found their opinions without regard to the counsel of experts, their votes against the president's program are equally inexcusable. Their judgment to their patriotism, or both, are under indictment.

The Meaning of $7,000,000,000.

America's war loan of seven thousand million dollars surpasses the powers of the mind of grasp. Spent at the rate of a dollar a minute it would take 13,318 years to dispose of the appropriation. Loaned out at 6 per cent, thirteen dollars could be spent every second for an indefinite period without touching the principal. Converted into silver dollars the coined pieces laid end to end would reach more than four times around the earth at the equator. Piled on top of one another these silver dollars would extend nearly six hundred miles in the air. Made into dollar bills they would cover 26,680 acres. The interest on the loan is greater than the entire running expenses of the government less than half a century ago, while the amount itself would conduct the affairs of the government for fully seven years, on the basis of the annual expenditures of the last decade. Another and more cheerful way of looking at the situation is that, great as the loan is, the wealth of the United States is such that it amounts to the lending of one dollar out of every forty dollars of our existing tangible resources. A penny a day saved by every inhabitant would cancel the principal in twenty years.—Thomas F. Logan, in Leslin's.

GOVERNOR GIVES HIS FULL INDORSEMENT

Says Road Bond Bill Most Important Ever Submitted to Voters of Oregon.

Discussing the $6,000,000 good roads bond bill at the state-wide rally in Portland, Governor Withycombe emphatically indorsed the measure in the following language:

"This is the greatest measure ever contemplated by the State of Oregon. It means more to this State than any measure in its history, not barring the Constitution, because the one thing we need is highways in Oregon.

"I have just returned from a trip through the interior country. When you realize that great expanse of country in the interior—the need of settlers, the need of men and women on farms—you appreciate the need of roads in that locality. Then go along down through our beautiful Valley with its need of roads. It is time for us to get out of the mud. This measure will give us good roads—it will be a highway of prosperity. We should stand as a unit for the whole State of Oregon—there should be no sectional interest.

"These roads are not only for home consumption. Military necessity and patriotic duty should make every voter get out and vote for these bonds. Good roads later may save Portland, and all the State. We need and must have good roads. They will add to the wealth, thrift and happiness of our people and our State. This measure does not add one farthing to our taxes; it simply capitalizes waste. It is a most splendid measure. No sane man or woman should offer a single word of opposition to this movement.

"It is placed in the hands of three as good business men as Oregon can ever boast of and is properly safeguarded in every way possible. It is a step in the right direction. Every good citizen should take off his coat and work for this bond measure, with his friends and his neighbors. Every citizen should keep his coat off until election day, for the passage of this measure means so much to civilization and the welfare of this great State."

OREGON WOMEN FOR GOOD ROADS BONDS

Assurance that the women of this state favor good roads was given at the state-wide rally in Portland by Mrs. Charles H. Castner, of Hood River, President of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs. She said:

"If there is one form of legislation that the women of this State are interested in more than any other, outside of the home and schools, it is good roads, and particularly do they wish this for the rural women, for to whom can good roads mean more than to the women on the farm. It would tend to lessen that great isolation—the great factor in driving the boys and girls to the city.

"The women of my organization, composed of 133 clubs, and nearly 15,000 women in this state, are interested in good roads, as was shown by a resolution unanimously passed for good roads at the last annual meeting held at Seaside."

Within the last few days it has developed that some of the largest interests of Oregon are opposing the road bonding act.

Their fear is that construction of highways will withdraw from the labor market men who will be needed for other occupations incident to wartime operations.

Without questioning either the patriotism or the wisdom of their attitude, there is no doubt but that it will have a big influence in reducing the vote of the road bonds.

It is therefore squarely up to the progressive citizens of Oregon who want roads improved to use every atom of their energy to bring out this vote at the special election June 4.—La Grande Observer.

This happened right in Portland. A householder telephoned a fuel company to send him a load of oak wood. The prospective customer was informed that the dealer did not have any such wood on hand and would not be able to fill the order until the roads had "dried up" so that the farmer could haul it to town. Is it not about time, Mr. Farmer, Oregon was getting into the road building business on a practical and result-producing basis? Such a plan of road building is proposed in the $6,000,000 road bond bill on which the people will vote at the special election June 4th.

Californians have found bonds for road building a profitable investment. Six years ago, by a bare majority, they voted bonds to the amount of $18,000,000 for road construction. Last Fall by a 4 to 1 vote they authorized a further issue of $15,000,000 for the construction of more roads. Evidently they were entirely satisfied with their initial investment. Pretty good argument for supporting the $6,000,000 road bond bill in Oregon at the June election.

The people of Oregon have reason to congratulate themselves upon the selection of Herbert Nunn as State Highway Engineer by the new Highway Commission. No better appointment could have been made. His selection happily eliminated the possibility that an unfit appointment might be made through political favoritism.—Coquille Sentinel.
