INSTANT ACTION SURPRISES MANY HERE. This grocer's story surprises local people: "I had had stomach trouble all food seemed to sour and form gas. Was always constipated. Nothing helped until I tried buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-ika. ONE SPOONFUL astonished me in its INSTANT action." Because Adler-ika flushes the ENTIRE alimentary tract it relieves ANY CASE constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. It has QUICKEST action of anything we ever sold. J. S. Lamar, druggist.

AGRICULTURE NOTES. By R. C. Jones Agricultural Agent. What About the Slacker Land? The first impression the newcomer gets upon entering Tillamook is that it is one of the most wildly beautiful spots on earth, and next he asks where is your farming country that produces your famous cheese and then you point out here and there among the stumps the cattle which are picking their living from the soil which is free to grow grass. Did you ever stop to consider what it is costing you each year to let these stumps and logs remain on your rich farming soil? If you have not, go over one acre of uncleared land and try and figure out how much real land there is to grow grass. Then after you have done this, figure your cost of clearing and then see if it would not pay to get the money and clear the land right away. And especially in this great time of need when America must feed the world it is our duty to get busy and make this land fruitful. Mr. Cunningham, who gave a stumping demonstration here some time ago, writes that he expects to visit Tillamook soon to conduct another demonstration, the time of which will be announced later.

Silos. There is no better immediate method for conserving the food materials grown in this county than by the erection of silos. It will not hurt to again enumerate some of the advantages of the silo. Its first and most important usage is that it increases the food value of the ensiled material. This has been demonstrated on a clover and grass mixture right here in Tillamook. It also solves the harvesting problem, as rain will not do damage to material which is going into the silo. Just what type of silo is built is an individual question, as any of the approved types are giving satisfaction in most instances, however, the common stave silo offers the simplest solution as to which is best in this locality, as the material can be secured at our mills. Just what crop will be developed as a suitable silage crop for this locality remains to be yet solved, although, as has been stated, the clover and grass mixture gave better results in the milk pail than when it was not made into silage. It is interesting in this connection to note that the U. S. Department of Agriculture is breeding toward an apparent frost-proof corn, and present indications point toward success for this would allow us to mature the crop.

Flying. In early spring one lowly fly Winged over the chilly earth. She was so sluggish and not spry, Nor was she full of mirth. The days a little warmer grew, She changed her sluggish song; She hunted for the proper brew, That her race she might prolong. She flew o'er a barn yard large Some manure then she spied, "The proper place to enlarge The family circle," she cried. But farmer Brown had read one day That borax sprinkled on the pile, Would frighten all the flies away, And so he bought some with a smile. The fly she tarried long enough To smell that borax cheap, And said "Not for me is that stuff 'Tyou'd put my babes to sleep." She flew o'er farmer Johnson's "meader," And found another place to lay. She chose to lay them on the spreader Bound for the field that very day. The eggs alas in the hot sun Didn't receive the treatment proper And dried up slowly one by one, After the manure went through the chopper. She flew to farmer Wilson's place, Seeking further her eggs to lay, But alas she had played her ace; There was no place for her to play. For this bright man when work was slack, Had built right under the barn floor A liquid manure tank without a crack Which made the stuff worth much more. Poor fly, she had no place to go, And she was awful weary, Her song was sickly, sad, and low, She died for the world was dreary. Farmer Wilson the best crops had In all the country round, For he took the liquid from the tank And put it on the ground. The next best field for many miles Was Farmer Johnson's "meader"; His face was covered o'er with smiles And he laid it on the spreader. Now farmer Brown had in his field A crop of very good hay; "Tis better, he thought, to increase the yield Than just to drove the flies away. The best of the fertilizer in the yard Had wasted day by day, For when it rained good and hard It washed the good away. However, all three of the men agree, As the pleasant summer goes by, That the best thing of all, you see, Was to swat the very first fly.

Whooping Cough. One of the most successful preparations in use for this disease is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. S. W. McClinton, Blandon Springs, Ala., writes "Our baby had whooping cough as gave us most any baby could have it. I gave him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it soon got him well." For sale by Lamar's Drug Store. Rheumatism. If you are troubled with chronic or muscular rheumatism give Chamberlain's Liniment a trial. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times the cost. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

TILLAMOOK BANKERS ENDORSE ROAD MEASURES. To the Voters of Tillamook County Oregon. We have carefully considered the best of our ability, the question of whether Tillamook County should issue bonds for building hard-surfaced roads. After much deliberation, we are of the opinion that it would be a serious mistake for Tillamook County to defeat the proposed bond measure at the election to be held next Monday, if the bond issue by the county is defeated and the State Bond Measure carries, which seems very likely, Tillamook County will be wholly unprepared to take advantage of the State Aid Provisions of the State Bill, while if the county votes for county bonds, it will be in a position to get the expenditure in Tillamook County by the State Highway Commission of several hundred thousand dollars in paving county roads, the road bed of which must be prepared by the county. If we do not take advantage of this, the money which will be raised by the State will be spent in other counties, and Tillamook County will not be benefited by it.

As we view it, the carrying of both of these measures will mean the early construction in Tillamook County of a good hard surfaced road throughout or nearly all the entire length of the county, and the expense to be borne by the county on account of it will be very small in comparison with the benefits which will be received. Believing as we do, that the best interests of all the people of Tillamook County will be best served by carrying both these measures, we respectfully urge that every voter of the county vote in favor of same. B. C. Lamb, President, First National Bank. W. J. Riechers, Cashier First National Bank. J. C. Holden, Vice President First National Bank. M. W. Harrison, President Tillamook County Bank. Thad Robison, Cashier Tillamook County Bank. C. A. McGhee, Ass. Cashier Tillamook County Bank.

Spence or Loyalty. Oregon has been named by the Secretary of War as an area of possible military activity. He urges that in such areas a network of through roads—roads connecting population centers—be constructed. The Council of National Defense makes similar recommendations, and names the Pacific Highway as a road of first importance. The only way we can get money enough to construct at once any through highway system is by passing the $6,000,000 bond bill on the fourth of next month. Mr. Spence, as the mouthpiece of the granges, says we do not need roads (any roads) "leading from community center to community center." The Secretary of War says we do, and that no share of the government funds designated for post roads shall be wasted on side roads. At least no other inference can be given this letter. As loyal citizens of the United States, whose advice should we follow—that of Mr. Spence or that of the Secretary of War? Who is best prepared to know the needs of the Government—Secretary Baker or Farmer Spence? Who is likely to have the firmest grasp upon the situation as it exists and as it is likely to exist in the future—the spokesman of the Administration at Washington or the spokesman of the granges? After all, it comes right down to a question of loyalty and nothing else. We are given our choice of taking the advice of Secretary Baker and the Council of National Defense, and upholding our government or of taking the advice of Granger Spence and withholding our aid from the government.—Oregonian.

For Sale. New, modern upright Player Piano, stool to match and player records. Easiest terms.—Apply at this office. Government to Buy Horses and Mules. Four boards of the cavalry officers were appointed today to visit Kansas City, Mo.; Fort Reno, Okla.; Fort Royal, Va., and Fort Keogh, Mont., to buy about $100,000,000 of horses and mules for the army. Why does the government continue to issue so many bonds for war revenue purposes? Why not use conscripted incomes for this purpose instead of saddling the general public with a bond burden that will be a perpetual drain upon the workers of the land? The young manhood of the nation is being conscripted to bear the brunt of the fight, and does congress consider these splendid youngsters of less importance than the fortunes of merchant princes? Or is it possible that many of the soldiers in the legislative halls at Washington are interested in buying up these bonds—trafficking in the very life of the country for profit, the meanwhile professing undying patriotism and loyalty to American institutions. These are questions which present themselves to the minds of millions of American citizens these days and no good reason exists for the situation as it now stands. Loyalty to the country we all love and to our own firesides should lead every American to study these questions from the viewpoint of one who is deeply and intensely interested—vitaly concerned, if you please—in the situation. And when you have decided how congress should deal with the issue, takes up the matter directly with your senators and representatives and require of them the protection you demand. Lets have more income conscription and less bonds.—Umpqua Valley News.
