

What the Editors Say.

There are more than five millions of bachelors in the country within the military draft age limit. So you see there are lots of 'em who didn't get behind the women's skirt when they heard of the conscription law.—News Times.

The price of wheat has declined nearly a dollar a bushel since the various boards of trade agreed to restrict dealings in futures. The price of flour also has reduced materially, although the buyers of the country as yet are showing no disposition to make a corresponding reduction in the price of their wares.—Observer.

Congressman Decker, who hails from southwest Missouri, overlooked his political hand when he voted against the armed neutrality bill and later against the declaration of a state of war. Recently he requested his constituents to wire or write him how they desired him to vote on selective conscription. A number of business men of Carthage, in response to his request, wired him as follows: "For the love of God, back up the president or give Miss Rankin your seat!"—Umpqua Valley News.

Nearly every department of our government is now teaching and preaching economy in every line. It is about time our people were shown the error of their ways—wastefulness, and given a few lessons in economy. It has already worked wonders in many lines and if the whole sum could be added it would run into the million dollar mark. It also demonstrates the greatness of the American people who can adjust themselves in a short time to the requirements of new conditions. Many are now planning ahead who previously allowed the future to take care of itself. It is pleasing to see the change and the way our great people are falling in line.—Banks Herald.

There is absolutely no excuse for tramps this summer. People will do wrong to feed any tramp who is able bodied this season. The rule has gone into effect at our house, not to feed any more bums. They have a chance to work or go to war, and if they do not care to do either, we say let them starve. Anyone who feeds bums this summer, when food prices are so high and when farmers and others are running around in circles, trying to get help, we say if the farmers have to beg the laboring men to go to work, it is no time to feed tramps. If any tramp bothers around your house sick "Shep" on him. Have him tackle just above the knees on the hinge side and keep him on the job until there is no danger of a "come back!"—News Times.

Resourcefulness on the part of the American chemists has made the United States one of the world's largest exporters of drugs and chemicals since the start of the war in Europe. This statement was made in a report by Secretary of Commerce Redfield, read at the annual convention of American Druggists' syndicate, at Long Island City. Mr. Redfield added that the United States, heretofore an importing nation, will soon be able to supply the world in the drug, chemical and dye line. In 1913, $27,000,000 worth of products were exported by the United States. In 1916 the amount was raised to $124,000,000. The United States is now making in large quantities certain drugs and dyes heretofore imported exclusively from belligerent countries, particularly in Germany.—Itemizer.

It is quite possible that the government will be called upon to do a little "regulating" of the domestic sugar situation, if the claims of brokers in investment securities are borne out by the facts. A recent circular issued by a Chicago firm says the "beet sugar companies should make from three or four cents a pound profit and year, as compared with the three-fourths of a cent a pound in normal times." Allowance must be made for the over sanguine statements of the security salesman, but it probably is not far from the truth that largely increased profits on sugar are being counted on with confidence, despite this widespread agitation for control of food speculation. Elimination of the food speculator has almost been accomplished in Europe, and it is one of the lessons that America will be called upon to apply now that it has entered the war. It is a noteworthy fact that an inadequate proportion of the increased price of sugar has found its way into the pockets of the farmers, who grew the beets.—Oregonian.

We feel like congratulating the good sense displayed in the election on Monday by the people of Yamhill, in carrying the good roads bonds. It evidences at least two things—confidence in your fellow man to honestly administer the state's affairs, and the ability to know a good thing when you see it pushed at you. There was nothing in the bond bill to warrant men in suspiciously lurking jokers. Persons who held such suspicions must be fast losing a valuable virtue—confidence in mankind. Federal aid was offered on the basis of matching it by the state, and the vehicle which most wear the roads were to be taxed most for good road making. This is business and it is also just. When we get the roads we will not be willing to go back to the old condition, any more than city residents who have secured pavement are willing to go back to mud, however much it has cost them. A great responsibility now rests on the Highway Commission to carry out their program with justice, and to verify the figures they have made. This will mean that the annual surplus of receipts over disbursements shall be sufficient to pay off the bonds by 1945. Let no posterity rise with a finger of scorn and say:

"Your figures lied, and our parents told you so."—Telephone Register.

Scrap from Oregon Voter. Again, the people showed a lot of sense in the way they voted. The only bad mistakes were on measures to which little publicity had been given.

Hurray! for Old Oregon! Spence couldn't keep us in the mud any longer. The way the rural districts repudiated the backward leadership of Messrs. Spence and Brown puts heart and courage into all forward looking people.

We are surprised at Lane County. How often, O how often, have we boasted for Lane as being the most progressive county in the Willamette Valley. And to think that Lane should have fallen behind in the good roads procession!

Oswald West seems to have more to do with who will be United States Senator in Oregon than has anyone else. When McNary's appointment was pending he went on record as stating that he would not run against McNary next year. This means that to keep West out of the senate many republicans will support McNary at the spring primaries. For if anyone other than McNary should be nominated, West would run. Terror of West keeps the republican party in chills and fevers.

To the intelligence and patriotism of the country press of Oregon owe the enactment of the road bonding bill. Were it not for the progressive spirit of the country newspapers Oregon would be in a sad case.

Too bad about the penitentiary. The world is cold and selfish. A conflagration that burns a lot of wretches to death may be necessary to arouse Oregon to the necessity of a new building.

Get the best pavement you can obtain for the money, durability considered; that's the line of conduct the state highway commission can pursue with the certainty that permanent roads will be their monument for many years to come.

There will be little waste of state road money; but the waste in the counties and districts will go on to the tune of millions dumped in mud, save as the intelligent public sentiment in each county is aroused to guard road expenditures. Several counties are doing well in road matters, but in others waste is appalling.

Socialists Pass Unpatriotic Resolutions.

The executive committee of the socialist party of this state has adopted unpatriotic resolutions opposing the selective draft law. That action is even inconsistent with the socialistic point of view.

The socialist have always professed devotion to the principle of democracy and unyielding hostility to autocracy. Now, however, when they are put to the test, when democracy is locked in a death grapple with autocracy, they are passing illogical resolutions like the foregoing when even the children of the schools clearly see that their action is lending aid and comfort to the kaiser and Prussian militarism.

In past years they have been openly antagonistic to or cold against the volunteer army and the volunteer national guard. They have contended and there was justice to the contention, that under that system the rank and file of the army was chiefly made up of poor men and poor men had borne the brunt of fighting our wars. The conscriptive draft meets those objections. It takes the rich man's sons and nephews along with the poor man's sons and nephews. So far as it humanly possible to apply abstract justice the draft will be applied without favoritism. The process of selection and elimination will be largely in the hands of local civilian boards. In other words, it will be applied by the people.

We are conscripting wealth, and under this method wealth will be made to bear a greater war burden than it has ever borne before. We are going to take the rich man's son for service, and then we are going to take the rich man's money to defray the expenses of the war—to buy uniforms and guns and ammunition and food and clothing for the men serving in this great citizen army.

We have said "they are passing unpatriotic resolutions," meaning the radicals who are in control of the organization. Happily, conscientious and patriotic socialists are refusing to be bound by them. They do not intend to be put in the light of aiding the kaiser.—Spokesmen Review.

A SAFE TEST.

For those who are in need of a remedy for kidney troubles and backache, it is a good plan to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They are strongly recommended by McMinville people. Arthur Branson, 329 B Street, No. McMinville, Ore., says: "About six or eight years ago, I had rheumatic pains in my back and legs so bad that I wasn't able to do my work. At times, it was all I could do to get around. Sharp, shooting pains caught me in the small of my back and for a minute I could hardly move. When I got down to do anything it was all I could do to straighten up as my back felt so weak and stiff. After I had taken six or eight boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I was cured. Since then I haven't had any rheumatic pains and my kidneys have been as strong as ever." Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Branson had. Foster-Milburn Co. Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
