Mary Adel Hays.

Chautauquas are to hear Mary Adel Hays, the New York prima Donna coloratura, who is rapidly establishing a reputation as one of America's great singers. One critic said in reviewing her work, "—and when this young woman comes on the stage one is impressed, not only with the consummate art in this fresh soprano voice of such an exquisite quality, but with her charming personality that is so pleasing and winning." Miss Hays possesses an unusual range of three octaves and the agility with which she does the coloratura roles cause one to feel that time surely is her forte,—yet the timbre of her voice is so smooth and warm that she is able to do sustained work just as effectively. Her repertoire is extensive, consisting of operatic and oratorio arias, and the little classics in songs down to the simple ballads, all of which she sings with keen intelligence and sympathetic understanding.

Miss Hays comes as soloist with the Royal Venetian Band, appearing only in the evening.

Graus' Tyrolean Alpine Yodlers.

Graus' Tyrolean Alpine Yodlers, the singing company which for forty weeks produced the famous Swiss Scene in the "Trip Around the World" at the New York Hippodrome, are coming to Chautauqua. No company of American singers can give you anything like the Yodler songs of these magic singers, for the talent of twisting the tones in yodeling is inherited, not taught. Fifteen years the director, Frank Graus, attracted the attention of European tourists by his joyous singing, as he tugged at the oars of a ferry boat on a native mountain lake. Later he entertained the Royalty of Russia and Denmark, employed by the first Tyrolean troupe of that time. He soon organized a troupe of his own. Now to the Chautauqua platform his company of entertainers bring all the musical attainments of strict training, besides great skill with their home music. On the stage they thrill and call and shout with utter abandon. Then to the happy astonishment of the audience, they give zither, guitar and violin solos and vocal numbers equally splendid. Echo songs, hunter's songs, festival songs and native airs galore contribute a continuous sparkle to their programs.

"In an evening in the Alps, produced by Graus' Tyrolean Alpine Yodlers on the last night of the Chautauqua, promises to be one of the greatest musical attractions of the week."

season. Miss Hays possesses an unusual range of three octaves, and an astonishing ease with which she does the coloratura roles is equalled only by the warmth, smoothness and strength of her voice in sustained passages. She especially excels as a band soloist, the volume and power of her voice rising easily above the heavy accompaniment.

RAPID FIRING GUNS.

Hurling a Tornado of Death Into the Ranks of the Enemy.

Since the introduction of the modern quick firing gun and the perfection of "time" shrapnel and high explosive shells new and scientific methods of rapid firing have been developed. When a rapid and overwhelming fire is wanted, the range is found, and the ground within the limits of the prescribed area is swept from end to end with a tornado of fire.

In the French army this is called a rafale (a squall or gust). It is a series of eight rounds per gun, each two rounds being laid to burst 100 yards farther than the last, thus sweeping an area of say 400 yards with a rain of shrapnel or a devastating series of high explosive shells. "Sweeping" fire is a series of three rounds per gun, one in the original line, one to the right and one to the left. This is also, and significantly, called "moving." A further combination is called "search and sweep."

Time was when the commander of a battery stood near his guns and shouted commands to his gunners. Today the artillery officer may be two or three miles away directing operations by telephone from an observation post in view of the enemy's works. The observatory may be a ruined house, a tree trunk, a shell crater or a haystack, and from this point he observes the accuracy of the fire of his battery and telephones instructions to the gunners in the rear, altering the range when necessary and communicating any enemy movements, so that the shells soon find a new mark.

Instruments of precision and careful calculations are of course necessary to fight a battery in this manner, many allowances having to be made for the difference in height, distance and angle between the battery commander and the guns under his charge.—Exchange

TWINS AND A WEDDING.

Simple Method of Solving a Matrimonial Problem.

The late Colonel Anstruther Thomson in his "Eighty Years' Reminiscences" tells the story of a remarkable marriage.

Of the many quaint "characters" whom Colonel Anstruther Thomson met in the hunting field none captivate the imagination like the brothers Leamon of Ivybridge—"two thin, delicate looking old men, twin brothers, seventy-two years old, with white hair, very gentle and courteous in manner, sed cutaway coats, white cords, black boots, caps and gloves; most respectable and nothing slangy about them; they are so alike you can hardly tell them apart."

When past sixty years of age one night after hunting one of them said to the other:

"I have been thinking neither of us can have much longer to live in this world, and it will be a terrible thing for the survivor to have to remain here alone. Don't you think one of us ought to marry?"

"Yes," was the reply. "I have thought so for a long time."
"Well, do you know of any lady?"
"Yes; I do. Is there any one you fancy?"

On comparing notes it appeared they had both selected the same woman, the manageress of the hotel at Okehampton.

"Well," said one, "we have lived together all these years without a wry word, and it's a pity we should fall out at our time of life."

So they tossed up which should marry her. The winner rode down to Okehampton next morning and was accepted. All three lived together, and the wife nursed both brothers in their last illness and was left their money.

The Three Scutaris.
There are three places named Scutari—one in Albania, one opposite to Constantinople and one in southern Greece. It is curious that each name comes from a different original form. The Greek Scutari is otherwise Scatari, the Albanian one is the Hlyrtan Scodra, and the Asiatic one is the Turkish Uskudar. This last means a courier carrying royal orders from station to station, and commemorates the fact that this place, the ancient Chrysopolis or City of Gold was the starting point of the Asiatic couriers.

How He Got the Moon.

John Henry Maedler, the astronomer whose favorite study was the moon, having learned that Frau Witte, the wife of the state councillor, owned a wonderful model of his pet lunary, spent years trying to gain possession of it. As her husband was living, he could not marry the owner of the model, so he married her daughter, and at the death of his mother-in-law the coveted moon became his.
