

What the Editors Say.

The enlisted navy apprentice who called it the "Ugh" boat, came near putting Oregon in the lead in epigrammatic expressions. The lad is said to be from the Siletz district.—News Reporter.

The new state laws relating to motor-driven vehicles will assist in subduing the road hog, providing they are enforced. There must be vigilance on the part of the officers and strong public sentiment in favor of the law's enforcement.—News Reporter.

There is little news in the revelation that Germany knew in advance that the torch of war was to be touched to the world and made no move to stop the incendiary act. If the kaiser had known then what he knows now, however, the history of the past three years might have read differently.—Oregon Register.

State Game Warden Shoemaker is making out distribution sheets for 4000 China pheasants, preparatory to releasing them in the near future, so that they will be fully matured by hunting season. Last season he liberated a number of birds at the coast and they thrived. This year no female birds may be shot, and only five males in a single day, nor more than 10 in any seven consecutive days.—Oregonian.

For the first time, perhaps, since its introduction in this country, the lowly English sparrow is doing its bit for humanity. In many sections the gardens are being ruined by the plant louse or aphid. The aphids are very hard to destroy by sprays or other means, but the sparrows are coming to our aid. They have just discovered that the aphids are good to eat and they may be seen in flocks hunting and picking off the insects from garden plants. The despised sparrow may yet be our best friend. Protect him.—Itemizer.

The 25 business men of Salem who signed an agreement to pay the farmers who raised flax a certain sum in order that the farmers might be assured of a market, will probably soon be relieved of their contract. Flax, like so many crops of this year, is a trifle short, not only in Oregon, but in other parts of the world. The Pacific Coast Linnen Mills, of Portland, has practically closed negotiations with the Salem Commercial Club, whereby each and every signer of the contract will be released from all responsibility, the Pacific Coast Linnen Mills taking over the contract.—Salem Journal.

One of our local ministers, and a mighty good preacher, made the assertion recently in a sermon that he would not give a snap for a man who didn't have some enemies. We don't know whether the more the enemies the better the man he is or not, but we do know that nobody can make them or have them last longer than an editor. Why, we've got enemies here in Dallas who haven't spoken to us for a year or more, and men we have done favors for time and again, at that. No, we are not worrying; we have some mighty good friends too.—Itemizer.

Prof. Wm. Howard Doughty Jr., of Williams College, Mass., characterizes the Initiator, Referendum and Recall, as employed in Oregon, as "Reactionary tendencies of radicalism," and state further in view of the unfitness of the people to govern themselves they should adhere to representative form of government as found in the state legislature, maintaining that the people of Oregon "utterly fail to grasp the fact that the legislature is just what they make it." He should worry! It will take a century or two for anything so "Radical" or "Reactionary" to penetrate New England conservatism. In the meantime he is kidding the people of Oregon who give up their legislature before they will part with their system.—Mt. Scott Herald.

Truth will out, and gradually the truth regarding responsibility for the world war is being conclusively placed where it has been known to belong. Now comes the admission of former Foreign Secretary Zimmermann that Austria's ultimatum to Serbia, the spark which fired the train, was in the possession of Germany 14 hours before it was delivered in Belgrade. As has been long known, Germany began to mobilize before war was actually declared, and it now appears that the movement which placed the advanced guard of its invading army across the Russian frontier while the czar was exchanging friendly messages with the kaiser began coincident with knowledge that the ultimatum was of such a nature that Serbia could not acquiesce.—Independent.

Hoover is the man of action—aggressive, constructive, direct and humane. No wonder the Senate does not understand him and that some of the Senators have conceived a vast dislike for him. Hoover has not waited for the food control bill to pass, but has gone ahead and done what he could. The overwhelming need of his service is too plain for dispute—except by some Senators. He has authority from the President. This is enough. But evidently the dignity of the solemn Senate has been seriously hurt. And it has been proposed to de-Hooverize Hoover by putting food control in the hand of three directors instead of one. Why not three Commanders-in-Chief of the army? Or three Presidents? Or three Pershings in France? Sometimes we think that the only way the Senate of the United States can elevate itself in the public esteem is by abolishing the Congressional Record.—Oregonian.

Again the submarine campaign has met its answer in our foreign trade returns. During the fiscal year ending June 30, our overseas trade aggregated $8,963,000,000 which was the largest total on record, and exceeded the previous record of 1916 by over $2,- 400,000,000. The relative importance of the submarine was further illustrated by the fact that our exports, which are naturally objects of keener attack than imports, amounted to $6,940,000,000, or more than $1,960,000,000 a year ago, which was the previous banner year. The excess of exports over imports for the year was $2,635,000,000, against $2,135,000,000 a year ago. So much for the submarine which was to destroy the commerce of Germany's enemies and frighten them into submission, but has done neither. On the contrary, our commerce has grown enormously and that of Great Britain has been practically sustained at nearly normal figures in spite of the British loss of tonnage. The submarine policy instead of frightening Germany's enemies, has simply made them more determined than ever to win this war, and exact retribution for inhuman methods.—Guard.

No, we do not believe that all men are equal. They aren't. Edison is superior to Judas. Rockefeller is not on a par with Helen Keller. The Kaiser is far beneath Herr Liebknecht, the daring Socialist who was not afraid to voice his protest against war. Men are not equal. They never will be equal. One will always have more or fewer capacities than his neighbor. We do not strive for social equality. We aim for social security for all human beings. Each individual, under a just system, must be sure of his right to make a living. This is more than equality; it is social security. In other words, it is equality of opportunity, not social quality that counts.—Itemizer.

Our Duty.

(By Charlie Gant.)

We've got to fight old Kaiser Bill, we've got a lot of land to till; got lots of stomachs to be filled and got a lot of ships to build. Got no time to loaf and pike-it's alright if we pull a strike but there's no time to mope and shirk and graft and growl and whine and swear with cannon booming everywhere. When Uncle Sam needs brain and brawn there's just one train which we all file on and do our best in a manly way 'cause the Kaiser's mad and there's hell to pay. We've got no time to pike and chub when the boys at the front are needing grub. Their duty lies in the fields of pain—our duty lies in the fields of grain, in the "tater" patch and the peas and beans and the shops where we build our submarines and big airplanes and chaser boats—We must grow and garner the wheat and oats. We must raise the cows and sheep and swine—scared of the Kaiser? No, nit, nien.

The soldier's duty lies at the front but the place for the old and saved off runt is on the farm with the hoe and plow, the hogs and sheep and the dairy cow. It's the supple and young for the daring deeds and the aged, and stiff for fields of weeds. The lame can't march at double quick but there's army worms for the boys to lick—there's fruit to pick from the laden trees and honey to take from the hives of bees. There's garden truck to bury and house, the meat to smoke and the sausage and souse to fix for winter, there's beans to thrash and the fatted steer to exchange for cash. Every tater we dig this fall will be worth as much as a cannon ball and every calf, fat, sleek and clean, is worth as much as a submarine and the beans will discount shells and bombs and every time we get our glom on a fatted hog we'll smack our lips to the tune of about two "Dreadnought" ships.

The fight is on and some must die, but we'd just as well to laugh as cry. Since the world began its cycle of years there was never a war which was won with tears. We'll fight this war with shell and ball and the good, big spuds which we dig in the fall; the hogs and the sheep and the butcher staff are the things that will call the Kaiser's bluff. We'll keep the stomachs of our boys full and "Pol-avoo" and old John Bull will wonder where we get the chink to furnish the world in meat and drink. When we speak of drink we would have you know that we own the farms where the coffee grows, the vineyards too, and the corn and rye which we use for bread since the state went dry. We may be old or fat and lame, but uncle, we'll with you just the same with cotton and wool to make your duds and swine and sheep and cows and spuds; oats, wheat, rye, corn and beans and the stuff for ships and submarines.

The battle is on, no use to flinch, we'll lick the kaiser and that's a cinch but we'll lose some money and lose some men but we'll hover the earth when the war is done, lead on father! Follow him son! I've got 'em old for the trench and you are young and short by an inch or two, but you can drive and follow the plow and dad can hoe till he teaches how. While the boys at the front do daring deeds you go to the field and keep pulling the weeds, for the boys who fight must be well fed, there's lots of kraut in a cabbage head, there's lots of fight in a mess of beans and spuds are as worthy as gun machines. The place for men to show their worth who cannot fight, is to till the earth or raise the bacon to grease the pan to fry the spuds for the men who can. Their duty lies where the brooks run red, our in the hog and the grain for bread, the belly munitions, Ay, that's the rub which will settle the Kaiser, the Zepp and Sub.

Just the Thing for Diarrhoea. "About two years ago I had a severe attack of diarrhoea which lasted over a week," writes W. C. Jones, Buford, N. D. "I became so weak that I could not stand upright. A druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy. The first dose relieved me and in two days was as well as ever." Many druggists recommend this remedy because they know that it is reliable. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.
