

GERMANY'S DIABOLICAL METHODS OF WARFARE.

Told by Ambassador Gerard in a Recent Speech.

Ex-Ambassador Gerard has done work for their German masters. "Now, think what that means; think what it means if you would come home tonight and found that your wife had disappeared, your daughter, a girl 16 or 17 years old, had disappeared and no one could tell you what had happened to them except that the German soldiers had come in to the street and carried them off. Now, those women and those young girls were taken and sent off to lonely farm houses, lonely villages, to live with the German troops and work in the fields.

Chancellor Avoids Blame, Saying Outrages Were Military Necessity. "When I learned about this, without waiting for orders from home, I protested to the chancellor in the name of humanity, and because the Americans told me that they feared that the carrying out of this order would drive the old men and the boys in the French towns to raise against the Germans, and then there would be a burning and slaughter such as there was in the Belgian town of Louvain, and the chancellor said he couldn't help it, that it was done by the military. He promised, though, he would speak to the emperor and that no more would be taken, and it wasn't until a month afterward that the 20,000 women and girls, or what was left of them, were returned to their homes, after the pope and President Wilson and the king of Spain used their best offices and pleaded with the Germans to act in a humane way and send them back.

Line of Dead Would Reach Twice Across Entire United States. "When I was coming through the state of Montana they asked me to speak at one of the stations, and I was trying to think of something that would bring home to the people the size of this war. Do you know that if you took the bodies of the men that have been killed in battle in this war and put them head touching heel that they would reach from New York to San Francisco, and then you could make another line from San Francisco back to New York, and another one from New York out again as far as Denver, and that without counting the countless people that have been destroyed outside of actual battle.

Lemberg Residents Lucky, Year Ago to Find Even Dog to Eat. "I suppose it won't be until the end of the war that we learn of the horrors endured by the Polish nation. More than a year ago the people in the great town of Lemberg, in Galicia deemed themselves fortunate if they could find a dog to eat in the street. The Serbians have been nearly wiped out as a nation, and I hope it will never be our time to come under the control of the Germans. (Loud Applause.)

Germans, Bailing with Anger Starved and Slew Prisoners. "It is part of my business, because I represented the interests of Great Britain, to visit the prison camps of Germany, and when I tell you the number of prisoners that will give you some idea of the magnitude of the war. In the various hostile countries at war today there are held as prisoners of war over 4,000,000 men. In Germany there are nearly 2,000,000 prisoners of war, and the Germans used these prisoners to carry on their industrial life. They are sent to work as slaves in the factories, mines, and to till the fields; they are given hardly anything to eat, and in the first days of the war when the Germans were hoisting with anger because Great Britain had come in the war, there is no question but what wounded prisoners were killed, wounded prisoners starved, mistreated on their way to the prison camps, and in many of these camps their treatment was not much better.

Forced to Live on Thin Soups for Two and One-Half Years. "In that camp they kept dogs, these German police dogs that were trained to go in and bite the prisoners. They were practically starved, a little piece of bread, some soup made of potatoes with some kind of little meat in it is all those prisoners have had to eat for more than two and a half years for some of them. Of course, for the British prisoners we managed to get packages which were sent from England and which contained the food on which they lived, but the Russians and the Belgians are being starved to death, reduced to such a point that they can't resist any disease.

Seized Women and Girls Return to their Homes Physical Wrecks. "I went down to the great general headquarters, as they call it, where the Kaiser resides in northern France at the end of April, 1916, at the time when I went to settle with him directly what we called in diplomatic language the Sussex question, this whole submarine question.

But that afternoon I met the members of the American commission who are feeding northern France and they told me the secret of these peasants working in the field. The Germans wanted volunteers to work in the fields of northern France. They do not give the products of these fields to the population; they take it for their own army, and the population is fed with the food which you have sent from America. They only get 14 when then called for volunteers in the great industrial town of Lille, and so they gave an order that they were to seize the women and girls and send them out forcibly to Merciful Norwegians Held Up to Public Scorn in Newspapers. "In that Scandinavian part of Germany seven people, before the war, were not allowed to gather together and were not allowed to have Danish servants. And when the Norwegian explorer—Norwegian as you know is similar to Danish—Amundsen, wanted to give lectures about his polar experiences in that part of Germany, they refused to allow him to speak in Norwegian. And so you have a population there that is just as entirely hostile to the Germans because the Germans have been forcing and oppressing them since 1866, at it was at the time they were incorporated in Prussia.

Encouraging Kaiser Here Means Indirectly Killing U. S. Troops. "But there is no use attempting to conceal the fact that a small number of a small number of Germans, or people of German descent, are doing what they can to prolong this war, by giving to the Germans the idea that we are not a united nation. Now, remember that from the very commencement of the war the Germans filled our country with their spies, with their paid propaganda. I saw the other day where Von Bernstorff had asked for $50,000 to bribe members of congress with. I suppose he got it. The Germans have believed that in this country people of German descent or of German birth would rise against our government.

Popular Legislation Impossible Under Present German System. "It is a good thing in life to make up your mind to what you want. A man who knows exactly what he wants is going to be far more of a success in life than the man who is doubtful about his own wishes. Now, I would like to know what these pro-Germans, whether Irish or Germans or Americans, in this country want. Do they want to see this country conquered by Germany? Do they think that if the Germans should conquer this country that their lot would be any better? That they will be put in as dukes or counts to rule us? I do not know that Benedict Arnold had such a good time after he went to live with the enemy.

Call Pacifists Treacherous and Masked German Helpers. "But the Germans have no liberty. Their voting is a sham. The reichstag that you read about has no power. It is nothing but a debating society, because over the reichstag stands the higher chamber, the bundesrath, which is appointed by the emperor and the king of Germany, and they are not going to allow any popular legislation to go through.

Every One Now in America is Either American or a Traitor. "Now, that is the sort of thing that has been going on in every school in Germany for years—bringing the people up from the time that they were children into the belief that they have a chosen mission to conquer the world, and impose what they call kultur on every nation of the world. I can not understand why there should be even one person of German descent in this country who is lifting his voice in favor of that system.

Would Make Cowardly Money Grubbers in U. S. Pay For War. "In October, 1915, I saw the kaiser, and he stood with his face a few inches from mine, and he said, 'I shall stand no nonsense from America after this war.' Well, that means that you, out here in Spokane, when this war is over, you have to look out. (Laughter.) The kaiser won't stand any nonsense from you. (Laughter.) But it means more. It means that the German military party, the Germany autocracy, that rules the country have a deep and bitter hatred against America. "Von Tirpitz, who has imposed his policy on the Germans in this submarine war, came out openly and said 'We must hold the coast of Flanders in order to make war on England and America.' He came out in an interview in the most conservative paper in Germany and said: 'We will through this submarine war bring the English to their knees, and before making peace with them we will take their fleet, we will add the English fleet to our fleet and we will sail with the combined fleet to America and we will make these fat, cowardly money-grubbers pay the entire expense of the war.'

"That is the German opinion of you. They think that you are so lost to all sense of honor that you will stand anything from them; that you will stand up like a German recruit and be struck in the face with a whip by a German drill sergeant. "There was no way of keeping out of the war. If we had lain down then, if we had let Germany override us, we would have had no existence among the nations. Any nation on the Pacific or anywhere else would have thought that they could come over here and do what they pleased with us. I believe in peace. I did everything in Germany to keep the peace. But peace, like everything else, is worth nothing at all if it has to be either bought or kept at the price of honor. (Applause.)

"We are not going to have an easy war. It is going to last a long time before we make the Germans liberalize themselves. We do not fear much from a country freed from the yoke of autocracy. They won't go to war for conquest. They won't face the agony again in order that a few stuffy Prussian generals may have their faces on medals or a few German merchants sell a few more bills of goods. We need not fear a free and liberal Germany. But we have to keep on with this fight until we can make peace with such a Germany. (Applause.)

Any Nation that Fears War Won't Keep Its Liberty Long. "We do not fear this war. Any nation that fears war won't keep its liberty long. (Applause.) We are sending out our young men, and some of them have got to die in Europe. And that reminds me that some people say, 'Why are we fighting this war in Europe? Why don't we simply defend ourselves in America?' Well, if you see a man across the street who, with two men on his side, is fighting with two or three other people, and he calls out to you and says, 'Wait until I finish with these people and then I am coming over to get after you,' don't you think it is the part of the most ordinary prudence to cross the street and take a hand while you have got somebody else with you? (Applause.)

make the greatest sacrifice of all, and allow treason to lift its snaky head here at home? (Cries of No, No, No.) "And then we have got the American pacifists. I do not know what they want. I wish somebody would feed them some red meat. They consort with socialists, and I have noticed in the papers recently that some of our farmers have been going to Minnesota and other places and getting very chummy with the socialists. And coming from the city of New York, I want to tell the farmers one thing, and that is that a farmer here in the northwest with 40 acres of land, a house and an automobile, looks to a New York socialist just as an English duke does to a tramp by the roadside. (Applause and laughter.) And it won't be very long before the socialists make the proposal to the farmers that they should at least have the automobile. (Laughter.)

Police Drive Workmen Back Trying to Meet at Night. "I was staying at the country place of a count in Hungary and I saw a number of women working as gardeners on his place, these barefooted women going about with their rakes, tending to the rose bushes, and so forth, and I said, 'How much do you pay these women a day?' 'Twenty cents.' That is what they get. And for that you go to the house and they get down on their knees and kiss your hand.

Believe Kaiser Sent by God. "We are sending out our young men in the army, every one of them with a chance to be an officer, every one of them, as Napoleon said of the French troops after the rebellion, going out with the baton of a marshal in his knapsack. But this is not true of Germany. No matter how brave the men in the army they cannot become officers. And so I cannot understand why any man of German descent who left Germany and came to America should be in favor of the kaiser. (Applause.)

"We are sending out our young men in the army, every one of them with a chance to be an officer, every one of them, as Napoleon said of the French troops after the rebellion, going out with the baton of a marshal in his knapsack. But this is not true of Germany. No matter how brave the men in the army they cannot become officers. And so I cannot understand why any man of German descent who left Germany and came to America should be in favor of the kaiser. (Applause.)

Given Four Hours' Notice of Ruthless Submarine War. "When I went back to Germany about Christmas time of 1916 every one of them, from the chancellor down, said, 'Oh, no, we are going to keep our pledges; don't believe that we are going to break our pledges we are going to stand by them.'

make the greatest sacrifice of all, and allow treason to lift its snaky head here at home? (Cries of No, No, No.) "And then we have got the American pacifists. I do not know what they want. I wish somebody would feed them some red meat. They consort with socialists, and I have noticed in the papers recently that some of our farmers have been going to Minnesota and other places and getting very chummy with the socialists. And coming from the city of New York, I want to tell the farmers one thing, and that is that a farmer here in the northwest with 40 acres of land, a house and an automobile, looks to a New York socialist just as an English duke does to a tramp by the roadside. (Applause and laughter.) And it won't be very long before the socialists make the proposal to the farmers that they should at least have the automobile. (Laughter.)

Police Drive Workmen Back Trying to Meet at Night. "I was staying at the country place of a count in Hungary and I saw a number of women working as gardeners on his place, these barefooted women going about with their rakes, tending to the rose bushes, and so forth, and I said, 'How much do you pay these women a day?' 'Twenty cents.' That is what they get. And for that you go to the house and they get down on their knees and kiss your hand.
