COOLNESS OF LOUIS BOTHA.

His Nerve in Dealing With a Savage Zulu Chieftain.

A story of the cool daring of General Louis Botha, whose name is so intimately associated with dramatic episodes in the history of South Africa, appears in his biography written by Harold Spender. It happened one winter when young Botha had taken sheep for pasturage across the Drakensberg mountains and down to the warmer coast lands, which were still in the grip of the Zulus.

One tranquil day a young native rushed into Botha's camp. He breathlessly warned the young Boer to fly and save his life. Mapelo was "out." The most bloodthirsty of all the ruffianly gangs that were then ravaging Zululand was the well mounted and well armed gang of Mapelo. Only an hour or two before, said the native, he had cut the throat of a missionary at the old mission station, about six miles from Botha's camp. The native himself had just left the body of the unhappy man lying still and warm on his own dining room table.

Botha had little time to make up his mind, but one thing was clear—he could not desert his sheep. Most of them belonged to his brothers. So he began to prepare to face the raider. Looking at his bandoleer, he found to his dismay that he had only one cartridge left. Scarcely had he discovered the fact when a troop of Zulu horsemen appeared about a quarter of a mile away over a rise of ground in extended order and charged toward the wagon, waving their rifles over their heads and shouting like demons possessed.

Louis Botha rose and very deliberately mounted the box seat of his wagon. He laid his rifle in a conspicuous place next him. Then he proceeded, with an outward calm very foreign to his own inner feelings, to light a match and apply it slowly to his pipe.

Throwing away the match and looking up, he found that the native horsemen had drawn rein in a cloud of dust within a few yards of the front of the wagon.

A few seconds of dead silence followed, the natives glancing at Botha and Botha eying them with a steady gaze of surprise. Then Mapelo advanced and said that his men were very hungry and wanted something to eat. Botha gravely demurred at this stormy way of approach and coolly bargained with the invader of his peace. At last he agreed to give them one sheep on the strict condition that they should withdraw some distance from his camp and not disturb him again. The condition was accepted, and so ended an incident that Botha has always described as one of the most disturbing in his whole life.

One Inning, Six Hits, No Runs.
Can six hits be made in a half inning without the side making the hits scoring a run?

This question was put to the Chicago News, whose expert says "Yes" and explains:

The first man up triples and is thrown out at the plate. The second man triples and is also nailed at the home pan. The third, fourth and fifth batsmen single, filling the sacks. The sixth man drives the ball between second and third, and the leather hits the runner coming from second. The man hit is out, retiring the side, and the man who hit him gets a base rap. This makes six consecutive safe raps without one run being scored.

We Label Everything as Pure.
The word pure is a curious example of the striving of people after perfection. We have pure olive oil, pure candy and pure reading matter. Everything that we know is likely to be adulterated we take pains to label "pure." We never call pure the things we know to be pure, but only those things about which there is an element of doubt. Only in one particular do we vary from this rule. If some kind friend tells us the truth about ourselves we are very likely to refer to that as pure nonsense.—Woman's Home Companion.

Long Distance Lecturing.
A pretentious person said to the Burgess of a country village:
"How would a lecture by me on Mount Vesuvius suit the inhabitants of your village?"
"Very well, sir; very well indeed," answered the Burgess. "A lecture by you on Mount Vesuvius would suit them a great deal better than a lecture by you in this village, sir."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Save Some Money.
Every one should try to live within his income and also to put away a little of his salary for use on a stormy day. Don't watch the other fellow and learn how much he is spending; watch yourself and ascertain where you can benefit. It is time enough to increase your living expenses when your salary is advanced, when it is also time to add to your bank account.

Good Advice.
"The man I marry," she said, "must think I am the only girl in the world."
"Don't worry about that," her married friend replied. "He will think it, all right. Just put in your time trying to find out how to make him keep on thinking it."—Chicago Herald.

Getting Through the Shell.
"A man may have a rough exterior, but a kindly heart."
"Yes," commented Senator Sorghum, "but that kind of man is usually like an oyster. He has to be handled very rough to get any good out of him."—Washington Star.

Debt is the prolific mother of folly and crime.—Beaconsfield.

Red Cross Service Flags.

One of the noteworthy features of the coming Red Cross membership drive, planned by the headquarters of the drive, is the distribution of Red Cross service flags. To every home enrolling a member of the Red Cross one of these service flags will be given.

It is a paper flag with a blue boarder, a white background and red cross in the center. These are to be pinned or pasted on the front window of the home. A small additional Red Cross is to be pasted on the white background for every additional Red Cross member in the home.

It is in the plan to put a candle behind each one of these Red Cross service flags on Christmas eve, so that they will show to the world that in that home the spirit of Christmas and the spirit of the Red Cross and all it stands for have been linked together on this, our first war Christmas.

If this feature is carried out by the local Red Cross membership, and we hope that it is, there should be a Red Cross service flag in every Tillamook home, with one or more additional crosses in the white background.

Mrs. A. R. England, 728 W. Oak St., Hillsboro, Ore., says: "Two years ago I had such a bad attack of lumbago that I wasn't able to get up or down stairs. When I sat down on a chair, I could hardly straighten up. Sharp pains, like a knife sticking me in my back, nearly killed me at times. I could hardly drag myself around, as I felt so completely played out. I had taken only a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills when my back commenced to feel stronger. I had used only one box when I was able to get about as well as ever. Since then I have never had any trouble with my back or kidneys."
