Eat Cheese.

A marked increase in the sale of Oregon cheese has been reported from various points throughout the state since Federal Food Administrator W. B. Ayer started his campaign for an increased consumption of Oregon products by Oregon people, with a special urgent appeal for the more liberal use of cheese. "I am greatly pleased with the reports that are coming in," said Mr. Ayer, "and am hoping for even better results in the near future. Oregon full cream cheese compares favorably with that made anywhere, and it should be in every Oregon home, and daily on the table. I am convinced that those who make a point of varying their diet with cheese dishes, and who adopt cheese as a meat substitute on Tuesdays will find it an almost indispensable food commodity after a little time, and that the increased consumption will be permanent.

"The Food Administration has not attempted to say what would be a fair profit for the retailers on cheese, preferring to rely on the State patriotism of the retailers to prevent their charging unfair prices for this product of an important Oregon industry. As has been so often published, the Food Administration Bill passed by Congress did not give the administration any authority over the retailers except those doing business of $100,000 per year or more, but the bill does not give the Food Administration authority to define what an excessive profit is on food commodities.

"In regard to the retail price of cheese in Oregon, I wish to say that when the cheese factories of the State are selling cheese to the wholesalers at 23c per pound, and the wholesalers selling to the retailers at not more than 24 1/2c per pound, the public will have little difficulty in judging whether it is paying excessive prices to the retailer or not.

"My observation leads me to believe that there are very few retailers who are now making excessive profits. Recently Assistant Federal Food Administrator W. K. Newell was in Grants Pass, where he talked with various retailers in regard to cheese and the desire of the Administration to increase the consumption in Oregon, of this Oregon product. The retailers voluntarily reduced the price of cheese to from 30 to 32 cents per pound. Allowing for shrinkage and loss in cutting, this price leaves only a moderate profit to the retailer, and gives the consumer a most valuable food product at a very reasonable price, when compared with war prices on other food commodities.

"Every Oregon housewife should make a special point of serving cheese dishes, in tempting variety, on her table, thereby saving meat and other food commodities that must be conserved, and at the same time giving much needed support to the cheese-making and dairying industries of her home state."

"Baby Mine" Brings New Star To Screen.

The first comedy offering of Goldwyn Pictures, Margaret Mayo's screaming farce, "Baby Mine," which will be shown New Year's night at the Gem Theatre, introduces a new star in motion pictures. She is Madge Kennedy, the famous comedienne of "Twin Beds" "Fair and Warmer" and other stage productions that have been big successes.

Miss Kennedy plays the role of Zoie in the picture presentation of the comedy, which in stage form had a run for nearly two seasons in New York.

Zoie is a light-hearted bride whose yearning for suppers and theatres leads her uncompromising young husband to abandon her. Her scheme to get him back furnishes the situations around which the comedy revolves. After he has been away for some months, Zoie causes his return with an announcement that a baby boy has come to the household. There is no such thing, but Zoie proposes to get one from the children's home.

But Alfred, the husband, played by Frank Morgan, gets home sooner than expected. There is no baby on hand, and Jimmie, Alfred's friend (John Cumberland) who is brought into the plot by Zoie, steals a baby from the foundling home.

The mother of the stolen child is soon in pursuit of her baby, so while Alfred is rejoicing over the arrival of an heir, it becomes necessary for Jimmy to get another baby. He "borrows" one of the washerwomen's twins and, the first baby not having been returned, Alfred is told that he is the father of twins. The resulting complications make all the fun.

Thrift Saving Campaign.

War savings campaigns, similar to war-savings certificates and Thrift-Stamp campaign just launched by the Treasury Department of the United States, are proving highly satisfactory in England. There, as in the United States, the laboring classes, and their children, unable to invest in the bonds of larger denominations, do take pride and patriotic satisfaction in investing their small earnings in "Baby bonds," for they realize that they are thus helping to win the war.

Already the effects of the educational features of the propaganda are being felt. Parents and children alike are learning to save. They are lending to the government and at the same time are putting more money in the saving banks.

Basil B. Blackett, of the British treasury, in an address to the American Bankers' Association advised that the working people of small savings capacity in England, Wales and Scotland have lent their government $400,000,000 out of sixteen months savings.

Mr. Blackett speaking of the larger features of the campaign said: "The war savings movement has in the first place increased savings banks deposits during the war. Still more important, it is educating a vast new army of future clients for savings institutions after the war. Finally, it can not fail to be of enormous significance in the future state of England that one in every four of its population, at the very least, is a direct holder of government securities."

If you're doing your bit, do another bit. That's two bits, for which you can buy a War-Savings Thrift Stamp, and that's still another bit.

You can do your bit quite easily To make the Allies "Champs;" Step right up to the window And buy War-Savings stamp.

Say "Thrift-Stamp" to your mail man.

I'm just a little Thrift Stamp With goo on my back, But I'm a sticker. I may not amount to much by myself.

Neither does a drop of water, or a Grain of sand, or a Speck of powder on milady's nose. But a lot of them together Change the looks of things. That's me.

The more of my kind that is licked, the sooner We'll lick the kaiser. I'm just a little Thrift Stamp With goo on my back, But I'm a sticker.
