Fire destroyed the residence occupied by Dr. Hoy and its contents just before six o'clock on Monday evening. When the hose company arrived fire had taken a good hold on the building, which was fanned by a northwest wind. It is not known how the fire started. Dr. Hoy thinks it originated in the bath room while others in the parlor. The house belonged to Mrs. John Weiss, of Meda, and was partly insured. Dr. Hoy carried only a small insurance.

TILLAMOOK VOLUNTEER DIES

Perry Gray, of Blaine, First Tillamook Boy to Pass Away in Army.

Perry Gray, son of L. P. Gray, of Blaine, is the first Tillamook boy to give up his life on account of the war. He volunteered last September and joined Company E, 44th Regiment, at Camp Lewis, where he has been in training. He has a brother, Ed. Gray, in the same camp. About the 10th of January Perry Gray was taken down with German measles and scarlet fever, and five days later he was a victim of these diseases. He was 26 years old at the time of his death. Mr. Gray was notified, and with his two sons-in-law, D. Moon and L. Kake left for Camp Lewis. When they arrived at the camp the body had been shipped to Tacoma, and owing to the tip on the railroad at that time, Mr. Gray thought it would be wise to have the body buried at the camp, where the body was returned and on the 18th the deceased was buried with military honors.

Mr. Gray informs the Headlight that when he arrived at Camp Lewis he was accorded the most cordial treatment by the officers of the 44th Regiment, especially the chaplain, who made all arrangements for the funeral.

Mr. Gray was tired and worn out traveling when he arrived and the chaplain kindly gave up his quarters and made him take a rest.

He dined with the officers and they furnished a conveyance to the quarters occupied by the men, where he stayed two days. Mr. Gray is perfectly satisfied that everything possible was done to save the boy's life, for the doctors showed him a record of the sickness and what was done for him at the base hospital. Mr. Gray speaks highly of Camp Lewis, where everything possible is done for the comfort of the men. He saw little or no difference in food served at the officers' mess and that of the men. Each company has a recreation hall, which contains games of all descriptions, and some of them have pianos.

When Perry Gray was taken sick his brother Ed was home on leave of absence, and did not get to attend his brother's funeral, as he thought the body would be brought home which it will be later.

RED CROSS NEWS ITEMS.

Tillamook Branch Makes Its First Shipment of Articles.

Mrs. C. J. Edwards and Mrs. A. C. Everson, president and secretary of the Tillamook Branch of the Red Cross, left this morning for Portland, where they will submit a financial statement of the recent Red Cross drive in this county, when $3,000.00 was raised. There are several matters that these ladies will take up with the officers of the Portland Red Cross, of which Tillamook is a branch, especially that pertaining to the first Red Cross drive, there being some misunderstanding in regard to whether those who subscribed in that drive are members or not, for it appears that a large number subscribed with that understanding. The executive board, finding some complaint amongst subscribers, tried to straighten it out, but was unable to do so as it did not have the literature before it under which the drive was made.

The Red Cross desires to express appreciation of the aid given by the Gem Theatre people. $42.65 was the amount given to the branch from their proceeds. A vote of thanks is given to the Honor Guards whose members distributed the posters.

Packages begin to arrive from the auxiliaries. The enumeration will probably be given next week. The success of the Oretown entertainment which netted that auxiliary $235 was largely directed by Miss Parsons, who is one of the new teachers here this semester. The shadows of the ladies who brought well filled baskets were auctioned off.

A bulletin has been received by the president, Mrs. Edwards, asking for leather vests. These are to be made from old pieces of soft leather from gloves, soft shoes, furniture coverings, chamois skins. Ladies send your old worn kid gloves. These to be worn by aviators.

The resignation of Mrs. Fred Beals as chairman of the local sewing committee has been accepted and Mrs. Dr. Smith has been appointed to fill the place. Mrs. Todd is appointed captain in Mrs. Smith's place. Mrs. Beals will give her entire time to the county work since that has grown to such proportions. The city ladies will consult Mrs. Smith and her captains, leaving Mrs. Beals free for the other heavy work.

Garibaldi Red Cross.

Work for the last meetings, Jan. 18th and 19th, was cutting, basting and sewing tray cloths, napkins, wash cloths and abdominal bands, some of the members not being present at either of the meetings. We are sorry not more of the members come as the Red Cross certainly needs all the help that can be given.

A "give and buy" sale was spoken of at a meeting, this means someone has something to sell and when someone wants to buy it the funds go to the Red Cross.

We hope more will come to our meetings and "do their bit"

Mrs. F. W. Fulcipher, Garibaldi, Ore.

TILLAMOOK HIGH WINS.

Obtains Unanimous Decision Over Beaverton in H.S. Debate.

Tillamook High School was justly entitled to the unanimous decision in the debate with Beaverton High School at the high school building in this city Friday evening. The question debated was "Public ownership of Railroads," Beaverton taking the affirmative side of the question, being represented by Misses Wilma Norris and Vivian O'Conner, while Tillamook took the negative with Charles Lamb and Miss Margaret LaFollett representing it.

Miss Norris was the first to argue the question in favor of government ownership, and she made some logical points in doing so, claiming that the railroads were controlled by a few men, that great delays occurred in hauling freight, it being hauled over long distances instead of being carried by the most direct route, and contended that the railroad employees were underpaid. She mentioned different rates on railroads and to the car shortage, and said these would be eliminated if the government had control.

Charles Lamb was the first to oppose government ownership, and assuming the attitude of a "stump" speaker. He put a whole lot of energy into what he had to say, basing his argument on government control instead of government ownership of railroads, and in doing so endeavored to show that there was more efficiency in private corporations than in government affairs.

Miss O'Conner was the next speaker, and she took up the same line of argument as the other speaker for the affirmative.

Miss LaFollett made a number of good points in the first part of her speech and then contended that if the government took over control of the railroads they would be run on the same system as obtaining money for the rivers and harbors, and the whole system would be dominated by politics and the "pork barrel". A large proportion of her argument was devoted to the "pork barrel".

Miss Norton made an excellent reply for the affirmative, as did also Charles Lamb for the negative side.

Chairman G. P. Winslow received the decision from three judges, each of whom decided in favor of the negative team, which came in for a round of applause from the audience.

Although the debate was interesting and brought out some good points, both sides could have made their arguments much more convincing had they delved into the subject a little deeper. The affirmative side overlooked the enormous cost of building railroads under private ownership, watered stocks, and the financial panics that have occurred on account of speculation in railroad securities. The negative side did not mention one very important matter connected with government ownership of railroads, viz. the enormous amount of money it would add to the national debt nor did the negative rebut the argument that railroad employees are underpaid, for as a matter of fact they are the best paid employees in the United States.

One bad feature with the negative side was the preponderance of extracts that were read, the affirmative side not relying on that as much as the home team. Any other debates that the high school team may take part in, this should be eliminated to a large extent.

Charles Lamb was by far the best speaker and made the best argument, but he is a little too rapid in talking and does not give proper emphasis when driving a point "over the top." With these defects improved on he is liable to make a good speaker, for he puts plenty of vim and action into his argument, which is always appreciated in a public speaker.

The affirmative team composed of Claire Small and William Wilmont, debated with Forest Grove on Friday, and lost with a score of 3 to 0 in favor of Forest Grove.

Registered Cattle for Sale.

I have at the Fair Grounds five head of registered Guernsey cows and heifers and six head of registered Jerseys, all of four of which are bred to freshen this spring, beginning in February. The other four are yearlings and are not bred. All this stock is tubercular tested and free from disease.

Pedigrees and full particulars can be had of Geo. H. Webster, owner, at the Fair Grounds or of R. C. Jones, County Agent.

Notice to W.R.C. Members.

The W. R. C. members are all cordially invited to come out Saturday, Feb. 2nd, as there is lots of work to be done and your help is needed, also those members who are to be installed. We want them all out. Our corps is doing good work, and taking in new members every meeting.

Many persons are not aware of the fact the loyal women, as well as relatives of the veterans, are eligible to membership in the order. Let us remember that we are banded together to assist the Grand Army of the Republic, and that from the soldiers alone come not all the sacrifice.

Pay For the "Grub."

We have been looking for you to come in and settle your account. You got the "grub". We need the money. You intend to pay eventually, why not now?
