When the Day is Done.

I have eaten a bale Of spinach and kale, And I've never raised a row. I have swallowed a can Of moistened bran And I fell like a brindle cow. I am taking a snack From the old hay stack In the evening shadows gray. And I'm glad you bet, At last to get To the end of a meatless day.

About Constipation.

Certain items of diet tend to check movements of the bowels. The most common of these are cheese, tea and boiled milk. On the other hand raw fruits, especially apples and bananas, also graham bread and whole wheat bread promote a movement of the bowels. When the bowels are badly constipated, however, the sure way is to take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

When You Have a Cold.

It is when you have a severe cold that you appreciate the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. Frank Croker, Pana, Ill., writes: "Our five-year old son Paul caught a severe cold last winter that settled on his lungs and he had terrible coughing spells. We were greatly worried about him as the medicine we gave him did not help him in the least. A neighbor spoke so highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that I got a bottle of it. The first dose benefited him so much that I continued giving him it until he was cured. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store."

Mr. Dooley Goes to Work.

Finely Peter Dunne is now acting as publicity agent for the sale of war saving stamps.—News Item.

"After matchlire connin' over av the situation," says Clancy. "I've reached the conclusion that there's something gone wrong with me friend Dooley. Somebody's put the cometha on him. When an Irishman starts in workin' for the government its time to be lookin' out. Here's Dooley, after sellin' his stories to the papers and gettin' rale money fer them this munny a year, an' here he is out sellin' War Savin' Stamps as large as life an' sayin' 'he's proud of it."

"McGinnis says there was a dollar a year lyin' loose somewhere an' Dooley seen it, but there's nothin' to that. McGinnis is sore. It takes more than a dollar to make an Irishman work fer a government, an' nobody's better able to tell ye that than me frind Edward Carson, aven if he did get the razeoo from the Welshman. Faith, ye can't trust a Welshman to carry the scriptures to the church."

"Well, why is it?" An' faith, Clancy couldn't tell. Workin' for the government. What's to be the fate av the Irish if the best av thim strip themselves of their constitutional rights? "An' did ye see where he's talking in the newspapers?" says Clancy. "I do that," says I, "an' I see where they're printin' it too."

"'Tis the only thing that makes me see the porr bye's reason is not completely shattered," says Clancy. "I see he's talkin' to them in the English dialect. However he may have bin tempted by the government, he's not talkin' in Irish. He stands by the Union, aven if he does sell stamps fer the government."

"Ye're as bad as the man himself, Clancy," says I. "I'm tellin' ye the bye's gone clane crazy. Do ye see what he's saying in the papers? De ye see what he says? Here he's talkin' to this girl Marguerite Moores Marshall, and what does he say? He tells the world we're payin' money for drinks we don't need, an' we can save that. Av course he says it in English. Faith, if he said it in Irish they'd lynch him."

"Maybe he's thinking about prohibition, says Clancy, but 'tis impossible. "He may be thinking about it," says I. "Lots of people is thinkin' about it. But don't forget the Irish is the Irish whin all's said an' done."

"Have ye an idea," says Clancy, "What's he doin' it for anyhow?" "I have not," says I. "Av course in a way he's not workin' so much fer the government as he's working for the Irish at the front." "An' don't forget" says Clancy, "there's lots of Irish playin' hell with the Dutch these days."

"'Tis that which pains me with Dooley," says I. "Fancy an Irishman wastin' his time sellin' stamps when there's a fight to be had. Parnell would be turnin' over in his grave at the thought of it."

"Maybe they wouldn't have him," says Clancy. "Maybe they wouldn't let him fight."

"Clancy," says I, "are ye crazy or what is it? Wouldn't let him fight. Since whin can anybody stop an Irishman from fightin'?"

"'Tis the truth ye spake," says Clancy, "but we're livin' in a new age. I have been radin' barnum's book about the survival of the fittest and 'natural selection' an' a lot av other stuff like that, and I want to tell ye," says Clancy, "when it comes to fightin' there's much in it that affects the Irish."

"Such treatin' is good for ye Clancy," says I, "an' I want to say ye're right. 'Tis true the law of selection is workin' an' there's hope in it, too, for the Irish. Providence has selected the Dutchman fer us to get at and what more can be wanted. Whin ye crack a Dutchman's skull ye're accomplishin' somethin'. And that's what makes me feel badly about Dooley, to thing av him sellin' stamps or playin, marbles when there's a mclce goin' on. I tell you there's something wrong."

"Ah, ye'll be sellin' stamps yerself before yer get through," says Clancy, "and I'm thinking maybe I will."

"But let me tell you Clancy," says I, "if I do, I'll break the neck of any man that hasn't got the decency to buy one. When he knows that in buyin' a stamp he's buying a mallet; when he knows that an' he won't buy, let me say he's pleadin' hard an' not in vain, for a mix up. When I think it over I can see where Dooley isn't worryin' about the government. He sees where the Irish can get at the Dutch. The dream of a lifetime is with us. When I be thinkin' about it in all its ramifications I'm dammed if I don't sell a few stamps meself, an' so will you Clancy, or we'll start a picnic betwix ourselves right here and now."

Chamberlain's Tablets.

These tablets are intended especially for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are troubled with heartburn, indigestion or constipation they will do you good. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

A Hint to the Aged.

If people past sixty years of age could be persuaded to go to bed as soon as they take cold and remain in bed for one or two days, they would recover much more quickly, especially if they take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There would also be less danger of the cold being followed by any of the more serious diseases. For sale by Lamar's Drug Store.

AGAINST GERMAN SERMONS.

Chairman of the Idaho Council of Defense Opposed to It.

Dr. E. A. Bryan chairman of the Idaho council of defense, writing to the chairman of a county council in regard to the preaching of sermons in the German language says:

"Replying to yours of January 30th, relative to the preaching service in German in your county. I congratulate your council and likewise the two congregations that they have consented, during the war, to conduct the service exclusively in English language."

"It is a matter of profound regret that thus far two other pastors have not consented to a like arrangement. Assuming that these pastors and their flocks are loyal American citizens, it is regrettable that they do not see not only the reasonableness but the necessity in the midst of war to avoid anything through which aid and comfort might be given to the enemy government or which might be suspected of being a means of doing so."

"The American people are sending their sons to war against an enemy government, they are giving money and making sacrifices to overthrow the hostile power of that government, and they are in no mood to tolerate anything which is not plain and open, so that it may be known by all that there is nothing hostile under cover."

"Meetings of any kind in an unknown tongue, whether the meetings are political or religious, are likely to provoke suspicion and resentment. The foreign tongue is a camouflage under which hostile sentiment and hostile activities might be carried on, and when it is the tongue of a government with which, unfortunately, we are at war, it will arouse suspicion and resentment."

"We have thousands of citizens of German ancestry and of German birth whom we have gladly welcomed and whom we look upon as our brethren and fellow citizens, entitled to the protection of the laws, to our economic and social opportunities and who unite with us in the support of the same flag and the building up of the same free commonwealth."

"We do not wish to look upon these people with suspicion or distrust. We take it that having discovered in America ideals and opportunities which they desired for themselves and their children, they are willing to unite wholeheartedly in the task of building up the commonwealth. To do this we must become homogeneous in laws, customs, ideals. To promote a separate movement to keep us apart in speech, customs, sources and information, and sympathies, is bad in war or peace."

"I admit that there is no law as yet forbidding meetings conducted in a foreign tongue. The Bolshevik and numerous other anti-American propagandists are not at liberty to hide their work from American people. Doubtless the president by proclamation could do this, but he has not as yet done so. He may and probably will be necessary for the Idaho legislature to require that during the period of the war all public meetings be conducted in the English language. It will be far better, however, for all loyal Americans, who commonly or sometimes converse in a foreign tongue, to voluntarily conform to what so clearly even for their own protection is the part of wisdom."

The Prussian Idea.

Von Hertling agrees so fully with the suggestion for the freedom of the seas as one of the bases of peace that he wants Great Britain to give up Gibraltar and other strategic points to make it more secure. It will be noted by the most careless observer that he does not propose that German give up Helgoland. This significant little omission merely confirms the world's opinion as to the sort of freedom of the seas as well as the land that Germany really wants.

Food Substitutes in Germany.

It is useless any longer to hide the truth. Unless the government actively intervenes to put some control over the flood of substitute foods with which we are overwhelmed, the end of the war will also be the end of a third of Germany's population. Moreover, the remaining two-thirds will be so enfeebled from malnutrition that they will be unable to perform the immense tasks of recuperation and restoration. The devil alone knows what are the ingredients of thousands of these wretched substitutes that already do duty for butter and eggs, oil and milk, flour and spirits, meat and broth, coffee and sugar, tobacco and tea, fish and sausage, cheese and caviar, and so on without end. The latest products of the ingenious substitute-mongers are really too terrible to be tolerated. A preparation of crude kerosene is now being largely sold for kerosene, and 800 cases of serious illness together with nine deaths have been traced to its use in Berlin alone. A preparation called "goose dripping" is prepared from dog's fat; egg substitute from a mixture of chalk and baking powder; caviar from fish scales, and bread from straw. What people, no matter how patriotic, can hold out on such fare?—Dr. Juchenach in Vossische Zeitung.
