

"The Kingdom of Love."

A splendid new photoplay that William Fox has made will appear at the Gem Theatre on Thursday, March 21. It is called "The Kingdom of Love," and in it is a new star, Jewel Carmen, whom we have known in times past as a leading woman of great ability and beauty. The play is one that deals with the career of an extraordinary girl who is thrown into the vortex of life among gold seekers of the North.

The play is full of thrilling circumstances and display of human emotion, and it gives opportunity for many unusual and brilliant scenes. It is done in the fashion that has brought fame to the name of William Fox and it is absorbingly interesting from start to finish.

The director of this play is Frank Lloyd, who made such big pictures as "A Tale of Two Cities" which is one of the most brilliant things that has been seen upon the screen. An excellent cast of Fox players surround the star and there is no doubt of the pleasure that this play will give. It is certainly something that every lover of moving pictures will be anxious to see, and a great deal of interest has been awakened by its announcement.

It is said that some of the incidents in this play have been put on the screen in an entirely new way and that there are many unusual features which will make the production one long to be remembered.

Bruce Wade Joins Army.

Bakersfield, Cal., Feb. 28, 1918.
My dear Folks.—My country has called and I cannot refuse her, and am glad to be able to serve her. Was not called through the draft, although it was only a matter of a few short weeks until I should have been. But the Engineer's Corps No. 319 is being organized and they have sent out a strong urgent appeal for men of trades to fill the many vacancies; and why should I turn them down? I simply could not bear to think of being dragged into this war by draft. So many of my friends are doing their bit, leaving homes and loved ones to offer their lives, if need be for the protection of the one left behind. So I, too, have offered myself to serve with the Engineer's Corps. I quit my job tonight and leave Monday for Camp Fremont to join them. Of course there will be another physical examination held there, but I sincerely hope and believe that I will be accepted.

Do not think that I have forgotten the loved ones at home nor our plans for that happy reunion for those same loved ones as well as others are entitled to the protection of all who are able to go. I wanted to help you but it seems that this is the way in which I am to help and I am willing, and even eager to do it in that way if it is, an aid my life is spared I hope to join you after I have "done my bit" But if it is not my lot to return, you need never think of me as a piker, but as willingly giving all I had. I leave here Monday. Will write when I get to the camp and give you my new address. Am going as a truck driver.

With love to all,
Bruce,

Thrills in "The Little America."

In staging the spectacular scenes for Mary Pickford's great patriotic picture, "The Little America" will score one of the biggest hits ever evinced at the Gem Theatre, many actual dangers confronted Miss Pickford and the many other players in the production. The scene depicting views, in the luxurious ball-room of the ocean liner when it was torpedoed created a sensation even among the hardened members of the film producing circles around Los Angeles, where the picture was produced.

A vivid idea of the true cause for patriotism on the part of every American in connection with the great world war can be had from the new Mary Pickford-Artercraft picture "The Little America". In producing this subject Cecil B. De Mille, the genius of screencraft based his play on actual facts and carefully avoided exaggeration so often prominent in films of this nature. Every detail was staged only after it had received the endorsement of an authority and various experts on matters pertaining to the great war, were called in to collaborate in the presentation of different scenes. As a result the picture has been named as the most faithful reproduction of true conditions, by many who are in a position to judge.

Don't miss this to be shown at the Gem Theatre Tuesday evening, March 19.

Spy News in Curl Paper.

Recently British officers boarded an Argentine ship bound for the United States and asked for a famous opera singer on board the ship. They seized a lot of the singers curl papers, treated them chemically and read the code writing that appeared on them. A women member of the contingent then had the women stripped for the bath and discovered that inscribed on her shoulders was the key to the cipher. The woman was a German spy in the pay of Count Luxberg, formerly German ambassador to Argentina.

IRRITABLE NERVOUS

Was Condition of Indiana Lady Before Beginning to Take Card-u-i, the Woman's Tonic.

Kokomo, Ind.—Mrs. H. Hankemeier, of this town, says: "I look so well, and am so well, that it does not seem as if I ever needed Cardui. But I was not always this way. I think I have taken a dozen bottles before my little girl came."

I was feeling dreadfully bad, had headache, backache, sick at my stomach, no energy. I was very irritable, too, and nervous.

I began taking Cardui about 6 months before my baby came. As a result all those bad feelings left me, and I just felt grand, just as if nothing at all was the matter, and when the end came I was hardly sick at all.

Since that I have never taken Cardui at all. It has done me good, and I know it will help others, if they will only try it."

Many women have written grateful letters like the above, telling of the good that Cardui has done them. Why should it not help you, too? If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, and feel the need of a safe, reliable, strengthening tonic, we urge you to begin today and give Cardui a fair trial. MAKING A MAN OF THE BOY

Schoolmaster Has the Great Task in Hand, and on Him Depends the Final Important Outcome.

The sum of all admonitions is that the schoolboy must pay attention. That is precisely what he is doing, writes S. M. Crothers, in the Atlantic. He is paying attention to a variety of things that escape the adult mind. As he wriggles on the bench in the school-room he pays attention to all that is going on. He attends to what is going on out-of-doors; he sees the weak points of his fellow pupils against whom he is planning punitive expeditions; and he is delightfully conscious of the idiosyncrasies of the teacher. Moreover, he is a youthful artist and his sketches from life give acute joy to his contemporaries when they are furtively passed around.

But the schoolmaster says sternly: "My boy, you must learn to pay attention; that is to say, you must not pay attention to so many things, but you must pay attention to one thing, namely the second declension."

Now the second declension is the least interesting thing in the room, but unless he confines his attention to it he will never learn it. Education demands narrowing of attention in the interest of efficiency.

A man may, by dint of application to a particular subject, become a successful merchant or real estate man or chemist or overseer of the poor. But he cannot be all these things at the same time. He must make his choice. Having in the presence of witnesses taken himself for better or for worse, he must, forsaking all others, cleave to that alone. The consequence is that by the time he is forty he has become one kind of a man and is able to do one kind of work.

HAS CHURCH BUILT ON PIER

Ilfracombe, England, Possesses Historic Edifice, Where the Sailors Offered Prayer Before Going to Sea.

Ilfracombe, England, has a church on a pier, and is the only seaside place in the world that has such a distinction. Indeed, Ilfracombe would not possess the honor were it not for the fact that Lantern Hill forms a part of the pier. Those who argue about the matter are always silenced by the plea that you have to go on the pier in order to enter the church, observes a writer.

The curious old building to be seen on the top of the hill has had many strange adventures. It is dedicated to St. Nicholas, the patron saint of seafaring folk, and in that connection it is interesting to learn that at one time the old church was used as a lighthouse. In bygone days the sailors used to trudge up the hill to pray before going to sea, and many were the regrets when the little edifice ceased to hold its services. It is now used by the pier authorities for storing purposes, but the day may come when it will be restored, and form one of many attractive "sights" Ilfracombe already possesses.

Volcanoes Are a Blessing.

For all their upheavals it would not pay Central America to get rid of her volcanoes if she could, for these upheavals have created the finest coffee and sugar land in the world, notes a correspondent. Usually there are long, premonitory warnings and the annual deaths due to this cause are not equal to the number of persons killed yearly in automobile accidents around New York.

Neither words nor artist's brush could do justice to the wonderful atmospheric effects of the mountain lands. The changing lights and colors, the purple mists, the vast white banks of clouds, the cooling vapors that assume the colors of the rainbow at dawn and sunset, the mirages that throw mountain lakes and lofty peaks in the high heavens, resting, apparently, upon a base of blue ether, all these can never be described or forgotten.

Laughing and Good Breeding.

Valuable as a good laugh and a happy smile are for men and women in every activity, there are and always have been some stiff-necked, proper folk who have been a little suspicious of the good breeding of a hearty laugh, asserts an exchange. We have all heard women of the old school of manners admit reluctantly that they "had to laugh" at a play they went to see, as if there were something too crude for well-bred folk in a hearty laugh, and if you could but face the audience instead of the stage during the performance of a taking comedy you would see here and there prim, proper folk pulling their faces straight the moment the curtain goes down and the lights go up for fear some one might think they had so far forgotten their manners as to share in the general laughter.

Seed Counter Serviceable.

When testing seeds, it is necessary to count them and then space them evenly on moist sheets of blotting paper. A device has been developed which does the work accurately and quickly. It is used in conjunction with a vacuum pump operated by exerting pressure on a foot pedal, and consists of a metal contrivance having a square, flat surface with 100 small perforations. When this is brought in contact with a quantity of grain and a partial vacuum created, the suction draws a kernel over each of the orifices. By then placing the instrument on a blotter and releasing the pressure, the seeds are deposited in regular order on the sheet.
