So Democratic office seekers are going to throw overboard non-partisanship at the coming election, and conduct their election on partisan lines. That suits us, and we believe every Republican who has faith in the G. O. P. That means that Democrats are going to line up, and it will force Republicans to line up as well.

It used to be that Oretown, in this county, was a regular hot bed of socialism. What a wonderful change of sentiment have taken place. It is reported that every male person in that section of the county bought a Liberty Bond. That, to our way of thinking, is very commendable from a patriotic standpoint, when taken into consideration that it was pro-Germans who dominated the Socialist party in the United States. It is safe to say that very few persons will vote for socialist candidates at the next election.

Very few of the state newspapers published the names of those who bought liberty bonds in their respective counties. The Headlight did so, because we considered it a splendid record for the people of the county, and our citizens should keep a copy as a souvenir of what Tillamook county did to support the government, going over the top before the drive commenced with every prospect of raising $315,000, when the quota was only $105,000, is, in our estimation, something to be proud of. We feel that way and so does most Tillamookers.

Voters who complain about so many lawyers, and not business men, filling legislative positions, have an opportunity of electing a wide awake business man for United States Senator for Oregon. R. N. Stanfield, who started making a living as a farmer's boy at the age of 14, is one of the aspirants for United States Senator, and from the looks of things he is going to land the Republican nomination because he is a business man and not connected with the legal profession. There is another good reason why Mr. Stanfield should be elected. Eastern Oregon is entitled to some of the political honors. So let's have a change and give the United States Senator to Eastern Oregon.

It looks as though the State Grange and the Farmers' Union have some radical leaders. It is reported that C. E. Spence master of the State Grange, has registered as a Socialist, and J. D. Brown, president of the Farmers' Union, is one of the principal organizers of the Non-Partisan League. To the average citizen, and especially farmers, these organizations are making a mistake by keeping such men as leaders. Every Grange and Farmers' Union in the state should pass resolutions protesting against socialism and the non-Partisan League. The Socialist party was dominated more or less by pro-Germans and the Non-Partisan League is another quack political nostrum farmers should avoid.

We do not like greedy persons, nor do we like greedy office seekers. Secretary of State Ben Olcott appears to belong to the latter. The people of Oregon honored him with the office of Secretary of State, and his term does not expire for nearly three years, but not satisfied, he is now wanting the people to elect him governor. Mr. Olcott should have been satisfied with his present position and stayed with it. It is to be hoped that the people of Oregon will show their resentment of a greedy office seeker. Had Mr. Olcott resigned his position to run for governor people would have looked at the matter somewhat different, but he doesn't want to let one job go before he is assured of another.

A little mistake was made when the county was divided into four banking districts for the Liberty Loan drive, by giving Cloverdale territory that did not belong to it. Part of the Cloverdale banking district rightly belonged to Tillamook district, but being placed in the former district, the bond boosters in the south part of the county organized and went to work, with good results, but instead of the money subscribed at Henlock, Beaver, Blaine, Sandlake and Hebo, being deposited in the Cloverdale bank. When the money is turned over to the federal government, this will lower Cloverdale's average, but notwithstanding that it is entitled to the honor, for when the county was divided up into districts it was given that territory.

Just one word to those who should have bought a liberty bond and have not done so. Do so right now. In years to come you will regret that you failed to do so, if you do not come through now. True there are some persons who are not financially able, and we would not hurt their feelings by saying one unkind word about them, but there are persons in the county who are financially able and should help the government in this critical stage in the history of the United States. Consider for one moment the great sacrifice Belgium, France, Italy and England have made the past few years, and the sufferings they have manfully endured, to prevent the Kaiser dominating the whole world. Don't be one of those who won't do their bit, but do so today and do so cheerfully.

The Kaiser sneered at England's little contemptible army when war was first declared, and since that time the Kaiser's troops have found out to their dismay that John Bull is some fighter, especially so when in a tight place. The Kaiser's last drive was for the purpose of annihilating England's contemptible army and capturing the French coast. Notwithstanding the terrific assaults of the Germans, John Bull, is fighting with indomitable pluck, courage and determination, and it is safe to say that the little contemptible English army has accounted for over a million of Germans since the present drive commenced, and if the Germans use the same reckless waste of men much longer the British Bull Dog will put another million Germans hors de combat. With so fierce fighting England must have lost a large number of men in killed and wounded, for they have had to bear the brunt of the fighting, but now that contemptible army is being reinforced by American troops, that makes the resistance the Germans have to meet that much stronger and more difficult for them to break through, which they will not be able to do.

De-lighted to learn that Fred C. Baker, editor of the Tillamook Headlight, is to be a candidate for state representative. Mr. Baker is a proven patriot, who has devoted a large part of his time to the different war drives. His editorial policy has won for him the respect of the press of the state and the confidence of his community. His editorials are freely quoted throughout the state because of the soundness and patriotism of his views. He is just the kind of man who ought to be elected in the legislature.—Oregon Voter.

We wish to inform our respected contemporary that the editor of the Headlight is not a candidate for state representative, and never had that kind of a political bee buzzing in his bonnet until some of our friends, seeing that no one in Tillamook county was aspiring to the position, asked us to make the race. It was in the interest of the county that our friends were concerned about, for we are all agreed that this county should have a representative in the lower house. This is how the editors name became connected with the position. Some of our friends contended that if no one else consented to make the race, we would have to do so. Under those circumstances we felt a patriotic duty we owed the county, and half way consented. But we are glad to say that C. J. Edwards consented to make the race. He is doing so because the county should have a representative in the house, and we do not know any better, wide awake business man in the county who would fill the office to better advantage. We don't say that we hypnotized Mr. Edwards, but our persuasive powers were a little stronger than Mr. Edwards' and that is the reason he is now a candidate for joint representative for Yamhill and Tillamook counties, and not the editor.

We have in previous primary elections refrained from advocating the nomination of any particular candidate, but owing to the attitude of Oswald West, we intend to depart from our usual custom and advocate the nomination of Stanfield for United States Senator, on the Republican ticket, for the action of West is, if possible, to divide the Republican party and cause a factional fight. There is no doubt whatever in our mind that this is the frame up, with the purpose of electing a democrat for United States Senator. So there is nothing much else for Oregon Republicans to do, if they expect to send a Republican to the United States Senate, to nominate Stanfield and elect him at the general election next November. We are now going to ask the Republicans of Tillamook county to support Mr. Stanfield at the primary election next month, because we think it is to the best interest of the Republican party and to the best interest of the state of Oregon to elect a wide awake, progressive business man, one who has been prominently identified with agriculture and its development. It was on the farm that Mr. Stanfield made his start in life, when but a boy, and with persistent energy, it is to his credit that he is a successful farmer of Eastern Oregon, being one of those big, broad gauged men in that section of the state who carries on farming on a big scale. If there is one class of men to be admired more than another, it is the successful farmer or dairyman, for it is only by hard work and thrift that they succeed. Mr. Stanfield commenced at the bottom and worked his way up step by step, which quite a number of dairymen in Tillamook have done and with good success. That is the kind of man that is now appealing to the Republicans of the state for their support, and we hope the Republicans of Tillamook county will rally to the support of Mr. Stanfield. We have given, in another column, some information about Mr. Stanfield which our readers should carefully read, and published for their information.

Forty years old; born in Umatilla, Oregon; his family crossed the plains in the early fifties; is married; has a wife and one daughter, who is now being educated in the public schools at Pendleton.
 Became at the head of the family at the age of nineteen, when his father died, leaving a wife and eleven children; worked hard, plowing, farming, riding the range, made himself and the business from the ground up; never had a vacation in his life; never got a dollar but what he worked for it.

Went into farming and stockraising. In 1912 was the largest individual sheep owner in the United States; when war was declared, offered his entire wool clip to the Government at the then prevailing prices; that offer has never been withdrawn.
 Served six years in the Legislature; was elected speaker in 1917; served on committees on banking, roads and highways, livestock assessments and taxation, and many others; supported constructive measures and opposed destructive measures.

He was largely responsible for making Portland the second largest grease wool market in the United States. This made the manufacturers come to Oregon for wool, and it cut out the middlemen, improved markets, improved the livestock industry and benefited all the people of the state. Ask the sheepman or the livestock man what this means to Oregon and the part that Stanfield has done to make it possible.
 He started as a poor man; his money has been made in agriculture and the livestock business. They are honest dollars and taken from no man. He is enriched with the respect of the people who know him.

He knows labor, as he is a laboring man himself. Many young men are in business because he has started them. He favors the universal eight-hour day in industries and believes in just and proper consideration of the rights of labor.
 Is a generous subscriber to Liberty Bonds, Red Cross, Y. M. C. A.; Y. W. C. A.; Knights of Columbus, Armenian Relief, Jewish Relief, etc. He is a liberal citizen and believes it is the duty of every one of us to devote our lives and fortunes to the successful prosecution of the war.

He has come in actual contact with every phase of Oregon's industrial life; he knows Oregon, and there is no man better qualified in the state to determine the needs of this commonwealth, and what the Federal Government should do for the state. There is no man better qualified to get these things for our state. He is a tireless worker, a result getter. He has obtained results in his business; he can obtain results for you as your representative in Washington.

Knows Oregon can build more ships, produce more lumber, cut more spruce, grow more wheat, raise more beef, mutton and pork; can do more, when Oregon and the Federal Government get together on a plain business proposition in a business way.

He is a man who does things; a man who has accomplished something; young man, vigorous, in the prime of life; a business man; has the human instinct; a judge of men; a man who can meet people; a man who knows how to transact business with business people; a man who is not afraid to take his coat off and go to work.

 What he is has made himself through the industrious application of native talent and good, sound business judgment. He is a man who can do a good deal for Oregon, for the people individually and collectively, and the nation at large.
 He has the will, the heart, the courage, the resolution that does great things.
 Ability, efficiency, industry, loyalty, faithfulness—qualities valuable in times of war.

A political sensation has been caused by the announcement of Oswald West that he will seek the democratic nomination for United States Senator. When C. L. McNary was appointed to the senate a few months ago to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Harry Lane, West told friends that he would support McNary if the latter made good, West assuming at the time that McNary would be nominated in the primaries. West was announcing his candidacy it is the belief that West considers that McNary has not made good, or he is fearful that McNary is unable to defeat R. N. Stanfield for the Republican Senatorial nomination.
 It was West who appointed McNary to the Supreme Court, and there has been a strong friendship between them. Construction placed upon West's latest act, is that he discovered on his recent visit to Portland that Stanfield was making so much progress that there was grave doubt as to McNary's winning. Returning to Washington, where he laid the situation before McNary, West telegraphed his determination to enter the race.
 This has upset the plan of the democrats who are registered as Republicans and who intend to vote for McNary. If they do not change their registration back to the democratic party they are expected to throw votes to Stanfield, already increasing Stanfield's strength, on the theory that West if nominated wants to oppose Stanfield. The outstanding fact of West's entry is the McNary's chances have been greatly imperiled and McNary supporters are discouraged. Nothing, say the politicians in the democratic and republican ranks, would have induced West to take this step if he was convinced that McNary could defeat Stanfield in the primaries.

When You Write a Soldier.
 When you write to a soldier always write with ink and address him by his army title instead of mister, and write his name in full instead of using initials. There are several hundred J. F. Smiths in France and elsewhere in the army. These suggestions come from the postoffice department at Washington. Another thing put your own address on the envelope. It takes about thirty days for a letter to reach a soldier with his command in France although many letters get through in from 15 to 20 days. About 2,000,000 pieces of mail a month go to the soldiers in France. They can be promptly delivered only if addresses are plainly written and the address designates company and regiment.

Farmers Waking Up.
 In spite of the fact that J. D. Brown president of the Farmers' Union in Oregon and Idaho, is one of the principal organizers of the Non-Partisan League, and also in spite of the fact that the Farmers' Union of Oregon at its state convention in McMinnville endorsed the Non-Partisan League, some of the Farmers' Union people in the Pacific Northwest are revolting at the idea of having the league thrust upon them through their own organization. Witness the resolutions passed at a recent meeting of the local Farmers' Union at Waitsburg, saying "Whereas, there is grave reason to believe as shown by the government investigation, that the aforesaid league had its origin in pro-German sources with the object of embarrassing the Government in its war program, therefore be it
 "Resolved, that we as patriotic, loyal, American citizens, repudiate any and all statements purporting to associate, or in any manner connect, the Farmers' Union with the Non-Partisan League movement."

"The Rich Man's War."
 The stock argument of the pacifists and those who denounce the war is that it is the "rich man's war." Just why it is a rich man's war they profess to believe is because some poor devil is using it to make himself rich, and because that may be true then the war is unrighteous and unjust and they will have none of it. That sort of a man is less than no man at all—he is a traitor to his country, and too weak to protest when his wife is ravished and his children tortured. He lacks the full conception of freedom and liberty and is an ingelworm in the body politic. Why don't he get down to facts and ask himself if the war was brought on by J. P. Morgan so his only son could join the navy and offer his life for his country? Or what part Henry P. Davidson, who is devoting his energies without charge to the administration of the Red Cross work took in bringing on this war? Was it because his only son could then enter the aviation service of his country? Did Cornelius Vanderbilt bring on the war so that he and his son might serve in the army in France? Was it Geo. Gould who insisted upon war that his sons could be drafted into the national army? And was it a host of other rich men who brought on the war that their sons or their son-in-law might take up arms for the defense of liberty and justice to mankind. When this matter is looked into it will be found that the rich man is as loyal to the nation as the poor man; that patriotism knows no distinction as to wealth and poverty and that when the war is over and the United States emerges with the banner of universal freedom the patriots names written on the scroll of daring deeds performed for humanity's sake will not include the copperheads too cowardly to stiffen their backs for the fray but are content to remain at home and sow the anti-war seed of "it's a rich man's war."—Sheridan Sun.
