Discuss Questions of Interest to People.

Berlin is reported to be greatly worried by a sensational wave of crime that is sweeping over Germany.

How much this from David Lloyd George, sounds like Abraham Lincoln "There are tens of thousands lying in blood-stained guanoes with a daily and nightly debate of shells around them."

If we do not speed up shipbuilding, we must slow down production, not only of war material but of everything that enters into foreign commerce.

Cold Comfort for Lumbermen. There is small comfort for the lumber industry in the order of the Government that each mill shall be furnished two cars to carry lumber to the private consumer for each car which carries lumber for the government.

The plan to organize more regiments of cavalry for the American army in France means that the men at the top believe the German lines will be broken and then fighting will then be in the open, where mounted troops can be utilized to advantage.

The Sentinel never has thought very much of the propaganda of the Non-Partisan League, but particularly at this time, when all our energies are needed for the conduct of the war when there must be unity of all classes.

"Farmers, Wake Up!"

Any man who does not agree with the advanced socialistic principles of the Non-Partisan League is called a "war profiteer," a "tool of big business," one of the "beasts that prey," etc., etc.

Recently the plan has been to combine union labor and the farmer in a solid body against all other citizens and thereby control state and national affairs along special class lines.

It is high time the farmers awakened to the seriousness of the condition they are creating.

Probably the majority of the farmers who are members of this organization do not realize that they are supporting the most highly developed socialistic program in the world today.

Through this organization they are demanding state ownership of principal lines of industry of special benefit to them thus making the man favored class at the expense of the general public.

It is idle for the farmers to imagine that they can escape with their landed interests if they take over the property of others.

Farmers, wake up! You have more special privileges today from our government than any other line of industry. The course you are pursuing can lead to only one end, final overthrow of American institutions including the privileges of owning your own land.—Astorian Budget.

Thank Berlin for this Admission.

"We thoroughly misread American sentiment," wails the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung. That is the most gratifying utterance that has come out of Germany in many a day, for it is a frank confession that German politicians, militarists and newspapers were wrong in their loud and insolent proclamations that the American people were a craven nation, wrapped up in money-making and too weak and cowardly to resent insults or to avenge the savage murder of their own women and children on the free seas.

Hourly it becomes more obvious that our war declaration last April was wise and that no other honorable course lay before us. If we had gone on in our course of timid neutrality and permitted Germany to destroy France and Italy and defeat Great Britain, existence on this Kaiser-dominated planet would have been mendacious. Insult would have been heaped upon insult, atrocity piled upon atrocity, until America's lot would have become insufferable and we should have had to fight triumphant Germany alone and single-handed.

Germany has misread American sentiment, and that is but one of many blunders perpetrated by Germany's military masters. They thought that France was decadent, that Italy was helpless from internal differences, that England would not fight for the salvation of Belgium.

All of these dark intrigues have gone agley. Germany has done more than to "thoroughly misread American sentiment." It has thoroughly misread world sentiment.—Spokesman Review.

TEN HUN U-BOATS SUNK.

Interesting Account of Destruction of Prowlers.

A recent Associated Press story from London carried the following details concerning the destruction of ten German submarines by naval aircraft, eight by seaplanes and the others by dirigibles, obtained from the report of the British admiralty.

The first case is described as follows: "In the English channel a seaplane sighted a submarine eight miles away directly in the path of an on-coming convey of merchant ships.

The second case: "At dawn a seaplane sighted a large submarine on the surface. The seaplane dropped a bomb on the tail of the U-boat and afterward photographed the sinking submarine with a big hole in its deck.

The third case: "Two seaplanes attacked a large submarine traveling on the surface at 14 knots. A bomb exploded close to the conning tower and the submarine began to sink stern first.

The fourth case: "Three patrol planes sighted a large submarine as it was submerging and dropped two bombs close to the conning tower, causing the submarine to turn turtle and disappear in a mass of oil and wreckage."

The fifth case: "A seaplane sighted two submarines close to the surface and dropped two bombs. One bomb was ineffective but the other hit the deck fairly amid-ship. The submarine was hidden by the smoke of the explosion and when the smoke cleared the U-boat was sinking with both ends in the air."

The sixth case: "A seaplane saw the track of a torpedo fired at a merchantman. It dived and sighted the black shadows of the submarine, well below the surface. It dropped two bombs which exploded close to the submarine, resulting in a large quantity of oil, bubbles and wreckage."

The seventh case: "Two seaplanes sighted a U-boat on the surface and dropped a bomb each. The first bomb caused a heavy list to the U-boat, which began to sink by the stern. The second bomb exploded in the center of the swirl, demolishing the U-boat."

The eighth case: "A seaplane dropped a bomb on a submarine just emerging and the U-boat disappeared with a heavy list to port. The pilot dropped a second bomb into the swirl and a few minutes later a patch of oil 150 feet long and 12 feet wide appeared on the surface."

The ninth case: "A naval airship at midday sighted a suspicious patch of oil and circled it. Suddenly a periscope broke the surface in the midst of the oil. The airship dropped a bomb close to the periscope and a series of bubbles began appearing, indicating that the damaged submarine was moving slowly away under the water.

The tenth case: "An airship dropped two bombs over a submarine which was engaged in attacking merchantmen. Great patches of oil and bubbles indicated severe damage and trawlers made this complete with death charges."
