Failing to break through in France, and with the arrival of millions of American troops, will Germany sue for peace before winter? That appears to be the opinion of some persons.

Wouldn't that jar you. According to report of a captured German in France, the Germans soldiers have been told that a Germany army have captured New York and is advancing on Philadelphia.

ley, for we are wanting you to take us on a joy ride over the road as soon as commend you for the good job you have made of it.

We want to say this of Tillamook county. There are a large number of willing workers when it comes to war activities. The recent drives have demonstrated this, but there are those who should, but have not taken a lively interest in these drives.

Hope they raise the draft age to 45. That'll catch your editor."—Oregon Voter.

Don't procrastinate, Bro. Chapman, but strike out right now for the fe--cruiting station and volunteer your services. That's the right course and not dodge behind the age limit if you are really in earnest about serving your country in this critical crisis.

We think Tillamook County to be congratulated upon the result of the W. S. S. drive. It was generally thought that the quota was too high and impossible to raise that amount of money at the present time. By the united efforts of committees in each school district have caused some little surprise, for when the work is finished in a few days Tillamook county will have reached the place of honor and raised $151,000. Bully for Tillamook county and those who bought thrift stamps and baby bonds. We feel sure that most everybody in the county will feel glad that the county did not fall below its quota.

! There is a tendency in this county to pile too many things on one person and not pass the jobs around. County Clerk Harrison is on the draft board, secretary of the Fair Board and school clerk. It is hardly fair to force so many jobs on one person, especially the county clerk, whose time is fully occupied looking after the duties of that office. But we suppose it is another case of riding a willing worker and follows the old adage, if you want anything done get somebody to do it who is a busy man and with little time to spare. MOSS URGENTLY NEEDED.

Tillamook Red! Cross Workers Called Upon to Hurry Up with Sphagnum Moss Production.

There is urgent need of more Red cross workers in Tillamook county, s there are urgent demands for more sphagnum moss to be supplied imnediately. That is the situation that onfronts the Executive Board of the illamook Red Cross, and it is a Luation that must be met, and met by a more strenuous effort on the part of, the people of Tillamook county. The Portland chapter is wantng to know the number of sacks of noss that it can be furnished by this ounty every week. Moss gatherers er Brighton road, Commissioner Al- and aross pickers must be obtained amediately, and those who have not taken an active part in the patriotic it is finished, Herb, so that we can The county must be well organized to meet the demands for moss. Some auxiliaries can devote their time to gathering moss, but before people start out to gather moss they should be well informed to how to gather it to the best advantage, for a large amount of moss that is gathered is not gathered properly, and on that secount is not as valuable as it might c. Moss gathering localities can obcain the necessary information from Mrs. C. J. Edwards. What is really necessary to know at the present time is the amount of moss the auxiliaries will gather and the amount picked over every week, and until that information is obtained it is going to be difficult to make any promises as to the amount that can be shipped every week. This is a matter that every auxiliary in the county should immediately determine, for it is important that they do so with as little delay as possible and solicit more help from persons in the vicinity. All other ked Cross activities in this county will center on gathering and picking over oss, as it is urgently required for curgical bandages, so it is up to the patriotic citizens to take a lively inerest in this work. We may state in were shipped from Tillamook County last week which goes to prove that the ladies of the county are zealously working, but for the next few months every Red Cross auxiliary in the county should hurry up the production of moss, and every day in the week should see a large number of ladies at the work rooms, for Tillamook county can and should furnish 50 to 100 sacks a week if our citizens would wake up to the great import ance of providing that amount of

MUST KEEP ON 'MAKING GOOD'

Men Who Have Accomplished Great Things Cannot Afford to Rest on Their Laurels.

"We were talking about a young man here in New York. Said one: Til tell you why that chap is such a wonder, The minute he winds up one big job he goes after another. He wastes no time patting hiniself on the back for past achievements. When he finishes putting something over he turns round and says in regard to his own performance-'Oh, that wasn't much. I have got to beat that. Now I must get to work and really do something." Then he pitches into a fresh job as if he had never accomplished a thing in his life.

"In other words, you have not only got to do good work, but you have got to repeat and keep on repeating if you want the world to continue to respect

"The other day a famous author was telling me how he felt when his first story was accepted. He said that within a few minutes the thought flashed through his mind that he could not stop-but must go on. One good story must be followed by another and another and another-else his reputation would die and he would be humiliated. He said that the feeling was not exactly comfortable—that the prospect was in a way terrible. 'Being successful.' he said, is not easy. The successful man advertises to the world that he can do certain things well-and he must go on making good or back off the map. It's a great sensation, a great experience-worth almost anything-but it isn't a snap.'

"It is the same way in business. The salesman who sets a high mark has to go right out and beat that mark or suffer by comparison with his own record. He can't sit down in a rocking chair and devote the rest of his life to receiving congratulations. "Have you ever sat in a restaurant and compared your job with that of a walter. Try it sometime. No matter what your work is I am sure you will see the point if you watch the waiter and think how exactly his work typifies yours. Take, for example, my job this connection that 43 sacks of moss | -- that of an editor. An editor's job is exactly like that of a waiter. He has to go and get something good and bring it in. And after he has brought it in he has to go right out and get something more and bring that in. The minute he sits down or stops to talk unnecessarily with the guests, he ceases to give as good service as before. Then the guests who praised him a moment ago begin to growl. And so, almost immediately, he has turned from a good servant into a poor one.

Oldest Living Woman. In the city of Posen, in the German province of the same name, the oldest woman in the world is about to enter upon her one hundred thirty-fourth year of her life, unless death has overcome her since the receipt of the latest news from that part of Europe. She is Frau Gretchen Dutkiewitz, and she has spent practically all her life in Posen. She was a young woman when Napoleon and his legions swept like a conflagration over Europe, and has lived to see a similar catastrophe engulf almost the entire civilized world. Frederick the Great was still alive when Frau Dutkiewitz was born, and only a few years before Voltaire had gone to his rest. The German empire of today was then an aggregation of petty, warring states, and the American Union had just been born out of the travail of revolution. These centuries-the eighteenth, the nineteenth and the twentieth-this woman has seen, and within the compass of her lifetime a new civilization has sprung up in Europe and America, a civilization now in the balance, and threatened by the land which gave her birth.-New York World.

Fearless Cooks. M. Paul Biraults, editor of the Bulletin des Armees de la Republique, who recently returned to Paris from a visit to the British front, is a man of discernment. The day after he had witnessed a battle, seeing it all "from the artillery preparation up to the wave of assault," he was asked, at the general's table, what had impressed him most. He promptly replied: "The kitchens of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers. Amongst all those soldiers," he added, "who rivaled each other in courage, those who seemed to me the finest were the cooks, who, unarmed, under the shell fire, polished up their pots and pans as if their kitchen on wheels were appearing in a review." Anyone might most people, in all probability, would

ELOQUENCE IN BRIEF WORDS General Pershing May Be Said to Hold

the Record, but There Have Been Some Others.

There are many four-minute wartime speakers, but so far as known there has been but one four-word wartime speech. That was the sententious utterance credited to General Pershing. It was delivered at the tomb of Lafayette on the first of last September in the presence of a number of distinguished persons who crowded about the flower-covered grave in the quaint old cemetery.

"Lafayette, we are here!" said General Pershing.

There are other sententious speeches in the annals, but it is doubtful if one can be found that combines as much sentiment with its brevity.

An exchange recalls a remarkably brief dedication speech uttered by Richard Mansfield on the occasion of the opening of the Garrick theater in Philadelphia. The eminent exponent of the drama took no advantage of the opportunity afforded him. He came to the front, cast a complacent glance at the expectant throng and then gracefully waved his arm and said: "I dedicate this building to theatrical

This was very nearly as brief as the ordinary boat christening. Which recalls an incident that happened many years ago at one of Cleveland's early-day shipyards. It introduced a peculiar combination of brevity and novelty.

A big schooner-they were all wooden boats at that time-was ready for her first dip into the waters of the Cuyahoga.

A pretty young woman, a relative of the owner, had been selected to swing the bottle of wine against the prow of the boat and say, "I christen thee J. G. Frothingham," if that was its name. Everything was in readiness. The ast prop awaited the final blow, the bottle was poised in air. The yard manager waved his hand. The bottle struck the side of the ship.

Unhappily, there was a defect in the glass. The bottle collapsed in an unexpected manner and threw its contents all over the young woman's nice white frock. Consequently what she said was this:

"I christen thee-good gracious!" And the stanch three-master Good Gracious gracefully slid into the water.

Save Milk and Save Lives. Whipped cream desserts and lots of butter on bread mean that milk which babies need is being sacrificed to pam per adult appetites.

The childrens' bureau of the United States department of labor is trying to save 100,000 lives of young children during this second year of the war Clean milk is a food babies must have to thrive; if they are not bottle-fed their mothers need to drink it for them.

With the appalling rise in the price of grain, and the scarcity of labor, farmers are selling off their cows and not nearly so much milk is being produced as heretofore. This in face of the fact that malnutrition of little children means certain death to thousands -lives needed to replace the awful waste of war. In order to save whole milk, both England and Italy have curtailed the sale of cream and butter. Surely every community in the United States will exert itself to control the price of milk so that it may not fall to reach the children in homes where the income is pitifully small, and will use the contents of the morning milk bottle very sparingly until our sick soldiers are plentifully supplied.—By Reinette Lovewell of the Vigilantes.

"Green Balls."

The Germans are great lovers of much of these as the flyer by night over the Hun lines.

There is one device, above all, which is most interesting and inexplicable, as well as being extraordinarily beau tiful. This is known variously as "flaming onions," "chain rockets" and "green balls." It consists of long chains of brilliantly luminous balls, a bright emerald in color, which rush upward from the ground in lines of thirty or forty, or even more, and which are chiefly fired at allied machines when on bombing raids at night. The green balls form light relief and take the airman's nervousness and strain away.

Parcel Post by Motor.

One of the biggest steps yet taken in the introduction of motor trucks as a city-to-city carrier results from the decision of the postoffice department to establish numerous parcel post motor truck routes. These have already been surveyed and aggregated between have notice it, of course; but then 3,000 and 4,000 miles in length, with shorter routes. One chain of routes extends from Portland, Me., to New Orleans, and another through the middle western states, while still others connect principal cities on the Pacific coast. It is hoped that the operation of these routes and of others to be esablished will materially aid in the distribution and in the lowering of the ost of food products.

Her Kind of Measles.

During a session in the primary room it one of the local schools recently, one of the scholars "broke out." The leacher sent her home with a note to the effect that she believed the child had measles, but "perhaps only Geran measles," When the mother read that part of the note, the child screamed out:

In the new play "Western Blood' which Tom Mix has just made for William Fox, and which will be shown at the Gem Theatre, Thursday, fireworks, and perhaps no one sees so July 11, this whirlwind star is doing his bit for the government in procuring remounts for the soldiers. He meets the daughter of the officer in charge of the work and he has his own way of getting acquainted with her. It is decidedly startling and new to screen love affairs. When she is captured by bandits employed by agents of a foreign government that is trying to embroil this country in a war with Mexico, Tom rescues her after a hair raising battle.

There is an immense amount of umor in this fast and thrilling play and the star has a horse that helps him get the thrills and humor "over" The personality of Mix makes any of the plays in which he appears a pleas-are themselves clever with horses. Victoria Forde who appears with Mix in many two reel comedies, is his leading lady in "Western Blood" and any who have viewed the Mix comedies knows that Miss Forde is one of the cleverest riders who appear on the screen today.
